100 CADETS BELIEVED DROWNED

2 Ships Meet in Channel

No Trace of Survivors from Italian and Russian Steamers

DUNGENESS, Kent, England, Feb. 25.—With no trace found of any survivors of the Italian steamer Alcantara which was in collision with the Russian training ship Tovarisch in the fog-enshrouded Strait of Dover yesterday, the Kenitsh coast was beginning to worry about the fate of both ships today.

Although the Tovarisch was reported to be trying to make Southampton, there is considerable anxiety as to her present whereabouts, since no wireless has been received from her since the "S.O.S." calls were sent out after the collision. The fear is expressed in some quarters that the Russion ship may have sunk with the 100 cadets she carried. Reports to shipping and other agencies, however, afford no confirmation for such fears.

Futile Search

Lifeboats from here and Rye, which went to the scene of the disaster, returned this morning after a night-long futile search. There is thought to be a chance that some survivors of the Alcantara may be aboard the British steamer Baron Douglas, which is said to have been in the vicinity of the collision and which has not yet reported to any point. Motor boats which set out after the "S.O.S.", returned and their crews described the difficult and slow search they had made among the floating timbers and wreckage in the thick murky fog without getting in touch with any missing men.

Captain G. St. Clair, of the Sandgate coastguard station, who was in charge of the lifeboat search, said: "I don't think that there is any doubt that the Alcantara sank, but apparently the Tovarisch did not go down."

GROUND SCHOOL TO GIVE PRIZE

Instructor Yorke will complete his lecture on instruments at the Monday night session of the ground school of the Edmonton Aero club at the Prince of Wales armories. The instructor also will speak on motors and conversion tables.

Final arrangements will be made for the glider competition. A prize of $2 is being given for the student who constructs a glider with a minimum weight of four ounces which will make the greatest distance. There are also prizes for duration flights.

There is a possibility that an air-cooled motor may be obtained locally for the plane which the students expect to build.

At the meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at 42 Gariepy block, Instructor Yorke will speak upon head resistance and power.

Canada and U.S. to Co-operate on Rails

Bulletin Staff Correspondent

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—A bill has been introduced into the U. S. congress and a like bill is to be introduced into parliament here, providing for joint sessions of the Dominion railway board and the U. S. interstate commerce commission to consider border transportation questions. The hearings will be held in the two countries, and the curious situation of the Canadian board sitting in the United States and the United States board sitting in Canada will be presented.

Fire Does Damage of Half Million Dollars

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 25.—Fire destroyed an entire business block with a loss unofficially estimated at nearly half a million dollars here early today and drove three score guests of the Shenango hotel from the building. The hotel was one of four buildings destroyed.

While a maid employed at the hotel had not been accounted for, it was not ascertained whether she stayed at the hotel during the night.

Former Prince Carol Coming Back, He Says

NICE, France, Feb. 25.—Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania is being quoted by friends here as having declared that within two months he will be on the Rumanian throne, which he renounced when he eloped with Magda Lupescu.

Foreign Minister Titulesco of Rumania, a member of the Bratianu cabinet, which has always maintained that every effort will be made to keep Carol from returning, is now sunning himself at Mentone, a few miles away from Carol.

In reply to rumors that he could see Titulesco, Carol said "Titulesco would have seen me Thursday but I did not wish to see him."

STERILIZATION BILL PROCEEDS TO COMMITTEE

In Long Debate, Opposition Seeks Protection for Individual

After weathering a stormy passage, the Sterilization bill, introduced into the legislature by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture and health, finally received its second reading at the Friday evening sitting of the legislature and was passed on to the committee stage.

Debate on the motion by the minister commenced on Thursday afternoon and was maintained at a high pitch of excitement throughout, but despite the united attempts of all three opposition groups really to shake government faith in it, the measure went on to the next stage of progress.

Big Guns Boom

But it took some doing and ere the bill did pass on, some of the heaviest guns on the front benches, notably Premier Brownlee himself and Attorney General J. F. Lymburn, were swung into action to fire a few verbal salvos in defence of the measure, which C. Lionel Gibbs, Labor, Edmonton, had said had received but little support from the government.

When Mr. Speaker put the motion there was a chorus of "ayes" and no dissenting voices were heard.

The premier ordered "action front" just before the 6 p.m. adjournment and after Mr. Gibbs had hurled his challenge across the floor to the effect that the government was lacking in support of the measure. The premier said he had not intended to speak on the subject, but felt the occasion was such that a few observations were in order.

Segregation of the mentally unfit, presumably under state control, or submission by patients to the proposals in the bill under consideration were the only two alternatives in dealing with the problem.

Of the two courses, Hon. Mr. Brownlee said he would prefer the latter. When the bill was first drawn to his attention in executive council he had received it with anything but enthusiasm, but after careful study

Plane That Goes Without Fuel Tested by Lindberg; Works Well

Electrical Magnetism, Motivating on Rotary Movement of Earth, Supplies Power to Drive Engine

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 25—The Detroit Free Press said today that an aeroplane motor operated electro-magnetically without gasoline or other fuel has been tested successfully by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Major Thomas G. Lanphier, flight commander at Selfridge Field.

The motor, which, the newspaper pointed out, might revolutionize the scheme of automotive power, was the invention of Lester J. Hendershot of Pittsburgh, the article said.

Colonel Lindbergh, Major Lanphier and D. Barr Peat of Pittsburgh, business manager for the inventor, conducted a test of the motor yesterday at Selfridge Field and the Free Press reported it was successful in every respect.

No direct authority for news of the invention was given other than it emanated from one of the four men—Colonel Lindbergh, Major Lanphier, Hendershot and Peat.

The Guggenheim Foundation for promotion of aeronautics, the article said, has arranged for an immediate demonstration of the motor, which is said to be based on the principle of electrical magnetism, as supplied to the rotary motion of the earth.

Major Lanphier, Colonel Lindbergh, Peat, Hendershot and a group of leaders of the aircraft industry from St. Louis planned to take off today for an unannounced destination.

It is understood here that only an experimental model of the motor has been constructed.

William Stout, inventor of an all-metal type of transport plane, said he saw Hendershot's model in operation in Pittsburgh three weeks ago.

"The demonstration was very impressive," he said. "It was actually uncanny. I would like very much to see how a large model, designed to develop power enough to lift an aeroplane, would operate."

Stout said the model he saw was about the size of motors used to operate vacuum cleaners and sewing machines and was similar in appearance to any small electrical motor. "I was told," he said, "that the revolutionary feature was a hitherto unknown manner of winding armatures." Hendershot said he had succeeded in winding the armature in such a way that it draws energy directly from electrical currents.

EXPENDITURES OF PROVINCE TO BE HIGHER

Estimated Outlay $3,259,168.02 More Than in 1927

Provincial estimates for the fiscal year 1928-1929, provide for the expenditure by the province of Alberta of a grand total of $25,209,251.07. This is an increase of $3,259,168.02 more than was proposed for expenditure in the calendar year 1927.

The above mentioned figure of expenditure includes government telephones account, which will show a suplus of $47,669 this year.

The actual expenditure for 1927 will be brought down later, probably next week, in public accounts, although figures for some departments are already available.

The grand total expenditure is estimated as follows:—

Chargeable to income, $16,704,590.70; chargeable to capital, $8,504,930.37.

This is greater than the total expenditure of 1926, which was $21,207,888.29, of which $14,984,672.83 was chargeable to income and $6,223,215.46 to capital.

Total estimated expenditures in 1927 amounted to $21,950,353.05, of which amount $15,836,531.21 was chargeable to income, and $6,113,821.82 to capital.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The Daily Mail today says that the will of Thomas Hardy, disposing of 91,000 pounds, has been probated.

To his widow, Mrs. Florence Emily Dugdale Hardy, he bequeaths his household and personal possessions, an annuity of 600 pounds which would be reduced to half if she remarries, and all royalties or other proceeds from his writings for her lifetime, "in the full belief that should these furnish a superfluity beyond her wants she will deal therewith as may be best."

Mrs. Hardy is to have the use of the Hardy home, Maxgate, Dorchester, during her lifetime, with the power of its ultimate disposal.

Mrs. Hardy was much younger than the famous novelist and poet, who was known as the last of the great Victorians. They were married in 1914, and she was said to have given up her own literary work to devote all her time to him. He died in her arms on January 11 at the age of 87.

Late Jeffe Smith Buried on Friday

The funeral of Jeffe Smith, Connor Creek, who died in Edmonton Tuesday at the age of 52 years, was held Friday afternoon from Connelly-McKinley's funeral home, Rev. H. J. Boetthen officiating. Interment was made in the Beechmount cemetery.

Mr. Smith leaves one brother, C. H. Smith, and three sisters living in Naples, South Dakota. He had been a resident of Connor Creek for ten years.

FALSE ALARMS MANY, CHIEF'S REPORT SHOWS

Sixty-Six Useless Runs Made—Heavy Loss at Two Blazes

Fire losses in Edmonton last year totalled $200,655.91, according to the annual report submitted Saturday by Fire Chief Davies to the city commissioners. The total number of fires resulting in financial loss was 125.

During the year the department answered 545 calls, of which 107 were for chimney fires, 66 false alarms, 39 for burning autos, 7 fires caused by cigar or cigarette stubs, 2 caused by lightning, 1 from a spark from an electric switch and 1 caused by a man smoking in bed.

Only Two Bad Fires

Only two particularly bad fires visited the city during the year: the Western Grocers Ltd., where the loss was $52,812.00, and the Alaska Fur Co., where the loss was $61,035.00. For the other 121 fires the loss was only $86,808.00.

On the alarms sent in during the year, 126 were from a box, 383 by telephone, 31 by messenger and 5 from private alarms.

The highest number of calls was in November, when response was made to 68 calls, while July was the smallest with but 27 alarms.

More than 100,000 feet of hose was laid by the department while 5,340 gallons of chemicals were required. Ladders were raised 8465 feet.

100 Men Employed

Approximately 615 hours were required in answering the calls, while the department's apparatus travelled 2765 miles.

In addition to Chief Davies, the number of men employed in the department is shown to be exactly 100.

Jury Finds Doctor Killed Rich Widow

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25—After more than two hours' deliberation, a jury Friday found Dr. Charles M. McMillan, 57, guilty of murder in the first degree for the slaying of Mrs. Amelia Appleby, a rich widow for whom he acted as business manager. The verdict carried a recommendation of leniency which makes it obligatory for the court to sentence the physician to life imprisonment. Sentence will be passed Tuesday.

The body of Mrs. Appleby was found December 26 in the San Fernando valley, tied in a sack.

TRAIN OUTRAGE DUPLICATE OF ONE LAST YEAR

Six Masked Thugs Fire Fusilade of Shots—Get Clear Away

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—Half a dozen masked robbers, using wild west tactics, held up a Grand Trunk local mail and passenger train on the outskirts of Chicago today, terrorized 75 passengers and train employes, blasted a mail car and escaped with at least $130,000 and possibly more.

The hold-up was staged near Evergreen Park southwest of Chicago, at the identical spot where a $135,000 train robbery was executed a year ago and the police believe the same gang executed the second coup.

Thug on Train

One of the robbers boarded the train, a local between Chicago and Port Huron, Mich., at Chicago, with a ticket to Evergreen Park, about 12 miles from the downtown station. The train stopped at the flag stop and this robber got off. A quarter of a mile down the track five men wearing black masks and khaki overalls, flagged the train, consisting of two coaches, two baggage cars and mail car.

As the train stopped, a party of the robbers, armed with shotguns and pistols, invaded the coaches, firing promiscuously and intimidating the passengers. Two of the gang set a charge of explosive in the vestibule of the mail car blowing it away, then entered and subdued two mail clerks and two government agents guarding the money. One of the clerks was struck over the head when he attempted to resist, otherwise no one was injured, although more than fifty shots were fired. The two men with the explosive blasted the mail car safe and gathered up two mail pouches containing the cash consigned to two Harvey banks, where it was to be used to meet the pay rolls of the industries there.

Menace Passengers

The robbers, as soon as they had gathered up the cash, called upon their accomplices, who still menaced passengers and crew with their weapons, and all backed to a large touring car. The men then clambered in and sped away, the train proceeding to Harvey, where the mail clerks telephoned to postal authorities here. The train then proceeded on to Port Huron.

Of the money stolen $80,000 was a shipment from the Federal Reserve bank in Chicago to the First National bank at Harvey.

The $80,000 did not represent a loss to the First National of Harvey, said T. G. Hudson, vice-president of the Harvey bank, since it still was technically in the control of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. It probably was fully insured, Mr. Hudson said. The Chicago Federal Reserve bank immediately sent a duplicate shipment.

The previous hold-up of the same train occurred September 10, 1926. The money was consigned to the same two banks at Harvey.

SAYS RUSSIANS TIRED OF REDS

That Russia will become as democratic as England in the near future, owing to the fact that the people of Russia realize the futility of the Soviet government, is the declaration of Father Samilo, who with Bishop Adams of New York, is an Edmonton visitor today.

Bishop Adams has come here on the invitation of the people of Alberta to attend a committee meeting of the St. Vladimir orphanage.

The bishop claims to be the rightful head of the Russian church of North America, since he was consecrated before the arrival of the usurper Kedrovsky who was driven from office when it was found that he had produced bogus credentials.

Deficit Not Bad
The Dying Session
Modern St. George
Dissenters Silent

By W. A. DE GRAVES

Although Hon. Dick Reid announced a deficit of $215,980.33 when he opened the budget debate on Friday afternoon in the Legislature, he did not precipitate any wild excitement among the members. To begin with the Premier had prepared the way for the announcement some days ago when the Old Age Pensions bill was before the House, and among government supporters it was not news even at that time, while among the opposition members it was not unexpected following the court decision on the Coal Mines tax.

As it is the Provincial treasurer pointed out that the deficit corresponds very closely with the amount estimated for the collection of taxes which were challenged in the courts, and in which the Province lost the decision, so that it is not as serious as it looks.

The minister read a carefully prepared speech, taking particular pains with the figures presented, and immediately his presentation of the budget was completed, Archie Matheson, government supporter from Vegreville, adjourned the debate until Monday.

Next week the House will confine the bulk of its activities to getting the budget debate out of the way and the estimates will then be passed.

• • •

Just how long the House will last once the estimates have been passed is problematical. Nineteen bills are already on the order paper for third reading, which means that they have passed through the committee stage, and that their passage is merely a matter of form. Nineteen other bills are in various stages of passing through committee, while some sixteen are up for second reading. There have been fifty-four bills brought down so far this session, and indications are that a few more may be expected in the next few days. However, the prediction of one farmer member that Premier Brownlee will "get the boys out of the benches" by March 15, still holds good, as

Saskatchewan Budget Shows Good Surplus

REGINA, Feb. 25—Announcing a cash surplus of $91,846 on the operations of the government in the province for the fiscal year ending last April, Hon. W. J. Patterson, provincial treasurer, made his "maiden" budget speech in the legislature Friday night.

The revenue to the province during the period was $13,021,244.52, and the cash expenditures on revenue account $12,929,398.26.

Forced Down by Dust Storm, Continues Australian Flight

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 25—Bert Hinkler, who flew with a clock-like regularity more than 11,000 miles from England to Port Darwin, arrived at Camooweal, Queensland, today after being missing for more than 24 hours.

Hinkler started from Port Darwin yesterday morning on a 900 mile flight to Cloncurry. En route he was forced down by a dust storm. He made a good landing at Camooweal and machine was working well.

Hinkler intends to continue his flight to Cloncurry early tomorrow.

LOST 'PLANE MAY BE FOUND

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 25—Do the snowy waters of Northern Ontario hold the secret of the tragedy of the ill-fated amphibian plane, The Dawn, in which Mrs. Grayson and her companions disappeared two months ago? This question was revived Friday when a report came in that a wreck, believed to be that of The Dawn had been found somewhere in the Abitibi district.

Discovery Not Reported

TORONTO, Feb. 25—So far as could be ascertained no such discovery had been reported to the lands and forests department or any other government agency here, but Captain Roy Maxwell, director of the forestry air service, pointed out a possible explanation of the matter.

In 1921 the Laurentide Air Service, of Three Rivers, lost a big grey flying boat in the Abitibi country, and Captain Maxwell, who has been flying up in that country every year since that time, reports that the wreck is still visible through the ice in winter and water in summer.

Western Canada Livestock Union Chooses Alberta Capital

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 25—Robt. A. Wright, of Drinkwater, Sask., heads the Western Canada Livestock union for another year, being re-elected unanimously at the closing session of the 15th annual convention of the organization. Provincial vice-presidents for 1928 are: Alex. Davie, Ladner, B.C.; J. L. Walters, Clive, Alta.; Olaf Olafson, Mortlach, Sask.; George Gordon, Oaklake, Man. C. M. Learmonth, of Regina, continues as secretary. Edmonton will be the meeting place of the union next year, it was decided.

Resolutions passed by the union included the following:—

That before any further trade arrangements affecting livestock producers are entered into by the federal government, notice of such proposals be given the union in order that representation may be made to the government regarding the same.

That the attention of the departments of agriculture of the four western provinces be drawn to the importance and desirability of passing legislation to prohibit the keeping of scrub sires in all areas where public opinion will support such a move.

Encourage Youth

That encouragement similar to that given boys in cattle, sheep and swine contests at shows and exhibitions be extended by the government to the horse industry to stimulate interest in the developmen of young horses.

That a conference between representatives of the union and the railways be arranged with a view to working out a plan for the trial of movable partitions in stock cars.

The concluding function in honor of delegates to the convention was a banquet Friday night tendered by the provincial government, British Stock Breeders' association and livestock marketing organizations.

Many of the delegates left Friday night for the east and others will go today to Victoria before returning to their homes.

TRAINMAN KILLED

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Feb. 25.—When a sixty-car freight train crashed into several cars of lumber on a siding at Lampedo, near here, William Gould, of Moncton, was killed and a companion seriously injured. Hon. George Hoadley got a new name Friday when Col. C. Y. Weaver, Edmonton Conservative member, in discussing the much talked of Sterilization bill sponsored by the minister, referred to him as the "modern Saint George, trying to slay this dragon."

The Edmonton member admitted that the Honorable George was not so picturesque as the other George and that his mission had less glamor surrounding it, and was not nearly so romantic as the mission of the St. George for Merrie England fame, but nevertheless the Agricultural Minister was a modern Saint George, at which the Honorable George bowed smilingly.

But Col. Weaver was one of the opponents of the bill, sir. He had searched very thoroughly Mr. Speaker, and diligently, Sir, but he had failed to find any large collective body of medical opinion which had ever expressed itself as favorable to this method of dealing with mental disease, and the Edmonton member was fearful, Sir, lest this lead to some poor unfortunates becoming the prey of the unscrupulous. The member himself, Mr. Speaker, pretended to no great medical knowledge, and he doubted, in all good faith let it be said, Sir, the medical qualifications of even the Honorable the Minister, so as laymen who have only scratched the surface of this thing, the ministers, Mr. Speaker, and the members of this Legislature, Sir, should be very careful before entering into legislation of this kind. Then there was the constitutionality of this measure to consider.

* * *

Hon. J. F. Lymburn, as attorney general, settled that point. The government, Mr. Speaker, had secured the opinions of none others than Eugene Lafleur, K. C., and O. M. Biggar, K. C., two of the greatest constitutional law experts in Canada, Sir, and both these authorities had declared that this bill before the House was constitutional and within the legislative power of this legislature.

But there was another angle to consider, Mr. Speaker. Much had been said of interfering with the rights and liberties of the subject, but by what right had any government to lock an individual up in an institution, and keep him there a lifetime, Sir, if by a simple operation he can be turned loose to enjoy the amenities of life open to others, and at the same time be no menace to the community?

* * *

L. A. Giroux of Grouard differed, Mr. Speaker, differed long and volubly. If a man was found to be sane after treatment he should be turned free without restrictions, otherwise he should be left where he is. There should be no inteference with the personal liberty of the subject.

Mr. Giroux would like to read a paragraph from a book, Mr. Speaker.

"It looks red already," commented Premier Brownlee, referring to the cover of the book, which was a violent red in color.

"It's a good thing. It should be always read," said Mr. Giroux, missing the joke, and reading at length from the volume.

"What's the date of that?" asked the Health minister, who had quoted several very latter day authorities.

"It's 1907," admitted Mr. Giroux amid laughter, but he held that it was none the less authoritative.

* * *

And Ald. C. L. Gibbs, the Edmonton Labor member, was also unconvinced that the bill was going to get at the root of the evil. Mr. Gibbs, Sir, wished it to be definitely known that he was speaking for Ald. C. L. Gibbs, and not for the Labor party. The defence of this bill so far was not adequate, Mr. Speaker, and Ald. Gibbs, with all due deference, Sir, would suggest that this was one of those things in which a little more of that so much heard of "negotiation" could be employed with benefit.

The members had been told that this legislation was in operation in California, Mr. Speaker. Well, one had only to look around, Sir, to see that imbecility was very rampant in California. One had only to go to the motion picture theatres to realize that, Mr. Speaker. But leaving California for the moment, Sir, more opinions of experts should be given the legislature. Bring them them before us, Mr. Speaker, and let us go to the real root of this matter and deal with something that will get us somewhere. Certainly we have not the information presently before us to show that this bill is all right, and the Minister would be very remiss, Sir, if further information was not forthcoming.

* * *

Premier Brownlee was surprised, Mr. Speaker. Surprised not only by the extent of the criticism of the bill, which was surrounded by safeguards, but also because it had been pointed out that the government, Sir, would welcome with open arms any further safeguards which would prevent the indiscriminate operation of the bill.

And he was surprised, also, Mr. Speaker, at some of the archaic arguments put forth against it. For instance, the argument that it would interfere with the rights of the individual. Archaic, Mr. Speaker! The old idea that an Englishman's home is his castle has gone by the board. The freedom of the individual cannot stand against the modern conception of the State and society, and the welfare of the State and society now comes first, Sir.

And if you, Sir, Mr. Speaker, would just keep your eyes off the clock and not see six o'clock for a minute or two, the premier would point out that there are but two alternatives facing this legislature. One is segregation of these unfortunates, with extensive additions to government institutions necessary year by year, Sir, and still no adequate steps being taken to deal with this problem, and the other is the passing of this act, Mr. Speaker. And surely, Sir, with the weight of authorities where similar measures are in force, and are found workable, behind it, there should be no hesitation. We should pass the bill as asked for by the Minister of Health, Mr. Speaker.

* * *

And in the night session Milton McKeen of Lac Ste. Anne followed the lead of Premier Brownlee and the Minister of Health, upholding the necessity of the bill, and after a few concluding remarks by Hon. George Hoadley, the debate petered out, and when Mr. Speaker called for the vote, with many seats empty, not one dissenting voice was heard.

ALL BUT THE PIPE

If Beman G. Dawes, chairman of the board of the Pure Oil company, only had a pipe with an inverted bowl he could very easily pass for his brother, the vice-president. He posed thus after testifying before the senate Teapot Dome investigating committee at Washington.

BUDGET VOTE TO SHOW HOW HOUSE STANDS

Will Reveal Strength of Various Parties in Commons

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—The parties in the house of commons will disclose their numerical strength next week for the first time this session. When the budget debate concludes about the middle of the week, the house will divide three times. The first vote will be on the sub-amendment moved by the Progressive group. Next, the house will divide on the Conservative party's amendment to the budget and finally on the minister of finance's motion.

Last year when there were only a Progressive amendment to the budget it was overwhelmingly defeated by a majority of 161. The budget itself was carried by a majority of 33.

The party strengths are the same this year as last and to date there has been no indication of the government or opposition supporters departing from the party ranks over the budget.

The actual carrying of the minister of finance's motion will not dispose of the budget. Resolutions must be introduced to give effect in law to the fiscal changes announced by the minister and as these must be taken up in committee of the whole there is wide latitude for intensive debate over the details of tariff and taxation matters.

With the budget cleared away the house will return to government measures, private bills and estimates. About ten government bills have reached the committee stage or wait second reading. None are of major importance. There are some twenty five private bills which have been introduced.

The government has not to date given notice of any further legislation though it is said that some important bills will be brought down within the next few weeks. The immigration investigation will probably be the centre of interest and will no doubt seek from the house the privilege of sitting while the house itself is in session. This has been the course followed by important committees in other sessions.

ALBION BARS ALDEN

Alden Gay, American actress, has been forbidden by the British Ministry of Labor to appear in a play in London. Immigration technicalities are involved.

Double Shifts Will Rush Paving Plans

In the specifications which are being sent out for the paving contracts to be carried out with the coming of spring, a clause has been inserted which calls for the operation of a double shift, it was stated by City Engineer Haddow.

"The majority of the paving is to be done in the downtown district, and it is necessary that the work be completed in the shortest possible time," he explained.

Laying of street car rails on 100th street from Jasper to the C. N. R. depot will be completed by July 1st, while the entire paving program will be concluded by October 1st.

U. S. MERGERS INVOLVING BIG SUM ANNOUNCED

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Three huge mergers in the banking, moving picture and motor truck fields, involving aggregate assets of $1,159,000,000, were reported in the financial district today as in formulative stages.

Consolidation of the Bank of America, the Bowery and East River National Bank, the Commercial Exchange Bank, the Manufacturers' Trust company and a group of smaller banks controlled by interests affiliated with the latter company, was said to be imminent. The institution would have resources of approximately $850,000,000 and would be headed by Edward C. Delafield, president of the Bank of America.

The new institution would be known as the bank of America, perpetuating a name that has been on Wall street 116 years.

Wall street also heard reports that the William Fox Moving Picture interests would shortly take over the Stanley Corporation of America, which controls 270 theatres in some 100 cities. A merger of these two concerns would bring into existence a $300,000,000 organization controlling more than 600 theatres in the United States.

The motor merger was that of the Brockway Motor Truck company of New York and the Indiana Truck company of Marion, Ind., with combined assets of 19,000,000. George A. Brockway, president of the Brockway company, said that the two concerns, which had sales in excess of $15,000,000 last year, would combine as the Brockway Motor Truck Corporation.

MORE ABOUT

and considerable reading he had altered his views. He was now of the opinion that the world would soon see as great progress in the treatment of mental diseases as it had in the development of physical and surgical treatment for other ills. He frankly admitted that there was no use denying that scientific opinion was at variance on the subject, but that the trend now was toward crystallization in favor of the action advocated in this bill.

Problem Met

Alberta, in common with other provinces, faced a tremendous problem in the treatment of mental cases and it had to be met fairly and squarely.

Regarding suggestions that there ought to be an inquiry before the house in committee as a whole for the adducing of more evidence on the question, the premier said that all available information had been placed before the members in debate and that the bringing here of outstanding men would only substantiate the opinion they had expressed in the written articles quoted in debate.

Ten of the leading scientists of Britain, he said, were actively advocating sterilization and among these was Sir William Arbuthnot Lane.

He expressed himself as surprised that two particular points had been raised in the debate: one that the bill was interfering with personal liberty and the other that no sufficiently good protective measures were surrounding the bill for the magnitude of the action being taken by the legislature in adopting it.

Regarding the first, he said the time had gone when an Englishman's home was regarded as his inviolate castle. In this age of democracy the rights of the individual had to give way to the rights of the state. Regarding the second, the government would gladly welcome suggestions as to greater safety methods, if any such suggestions were forthcoming.

Dealing with the argument that there would be a large increase in social evils if the measure were passed, the Premier said that these dangers would be as prevalent whether the treatment was given or not. California had found that setrilization did not increase such evils.

Hon. J. F. Lymburn agreed that none in the house were qualified to speak authoritatively on the subject, yet as reasonable men they were entitled to pass judgment to some extent on the wisdom of the measure, especially as regards the facts. There was one incontrovertible fact; that the number of mental cases showed an annual increase in this province. This problem had to be dealt with and the provisions under consideration provided the best method of coping with it.

Bill Is Intra Vires

The question had been raised regarding the constitutional authority of the province to enact such legislation. The opinion of both Eugene Lafleur, K.C., and O. M. Biggar, K.C., two eminent constitutional lawyers, was that it was within the jurisdiction of the province. Michigan state had a bill the provisions of which were similar to those presently under review. In states where the act had been declared ultra vires the provisions had been used as a punitive measure, while there had been an absence of safeguarding the state interests.

L. A. Giroux, Liberal, Grouard, took his place among the mighty of the house early in his address. He wanted it made "abundantly clear" that while he opposed the bill as drafted, he favored it in principle.

His use of the phrase "abundantly clear" brought forth some merriment, as there has been no phrase since the house opened that has received the same attention as has this. Joseph T. Shaw, Liberal leader, used it first in his speech on the throne debate. A. A. McGillivray, K.C., Conservative leader, then took it up. Finally the phrase, tiring of the opposition numerical limitations, crossed the floor to government ranks and appeared in Premier Brownlee's speeches. On Friday it re-crossed and was used to good advantage by Mr. Giroux in the benches whence it came.

Mr. Giroux directed his opposition to that section of the bill declaring that a patient found sane enough to leave an institution must choose between sterilization or remaining there. He also argued that scientists had not agreed that the feeble minded could transmit their infirmities, particularly where such infirmity was due to disease rather than heredity.

Black Alternatives

C. Y. Weaver, Conservative, Edmonton, said that while he fully realized the necessity for reducing as much as possible the number of mentally deficient there was a duty to see that both the interests of posterity and the individuals concerned were taken care of.

Persons in mental institutions desired above all else to obtain their freedom and the two alternatives this bill placed before them were terrible indeed. He urged that even more stringent immigration regulations be imposed. In conclusion he urged the house not to rashly or hastily embark upon such a far-reaching scheme until consultation had taken place with outstanding authorities on both sides.

C. Lionel Gibbs, Labor, Edmonton, thought the government defence of the bill far from convincing. He wished it understood he was speaking for himself, not for the Labor party, as there had been no definite party policy formed on this question. He thought much more information should be gathered and imparted to the house and thought that Alberta was not yet in a position to endorse the principle of the bill. Greater precautions should be taken to protect the country from indiscriminate inflow of immigrants.

Milton McKeen, deputy speaker of the house, spoke in support of the measure in the evening, as did Hon. George Hoadley.

THREE BREAK WAY OUT OF QUEBEC JAIL

ST. JEROME, Que., Feb. 25—Three prisonrs who were to stand trial next week at the local assizes escaped from the jail here last night by loosening and bending one of the iron bars in a window in the corridor of the building and then making their way along a well from which they jumped to liberty. The fugitives are Omer Cantin, 22; Joseph Davidson, alias Charbonneau; and Arthur Davidson, alias Martin, 20.

Investigation showed that the trio was heading north and all towns in the northern section of the country as well as the police of Montreal, have been notified.

The prisoners had only recently been brought to the local jail from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, where they were serving a two-year sentence each. They were to have been tried next week, Cantin for rape, and the Davidsons for attempted murder.

Flames in a hot air register at the Beulah home, 97th street, were extinquished by firemen from No. 5 hall at 10.30 p.m. Friday.

Sale of the south-west corner of 100th street and 96th avenue for $270 cash was approved by the City Commissioner Saturday.

Police Merger Plan Is Not Decided

Inclusion in the estimates for the fiscal year 1928-29 of provision for about $400,000 for the Alberta Provincial Police do not necessarily mean that all negotiations for the merging of the provincial force with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have been terminated, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee Saturday.

"It's easy enough not to spend the money if it isn't needed," he said.

SCHOONERS FOR ESKIMOS ARE BUILDING HERE

Esquimos are no longer using their little kyacks to do their trading and fishing. This is illustrated by the fact that three more schooners are to leave Edmonton in the near future to be delivered to them in the north country.

Work is in progress day and night at Capt. Matheson's boat-building works on 67th street, to get three schooners finished by the time the ice breaks up.

These schooners are being supplied to the Esquimos up at Aklavik by the Northern Traders company, and will be used for fishing and general trading.

Capt. Matheson has been in the boat-building business for twelve years and says that it is improving every year, this year being the busiest he has yet experienced. Previous to coming to Edmonton, Capt. Matheson was a sailor on Lake Huron for seven years, on the Lake of the Woods for 12 years, and spent five years pioneering from McMurray to the Arctic.

The biggest boat that Capt. Matheson has built so far is a tug of 50 feet. He is able to turn out 15 boats a year.

PRIZE MONEY IS INCREASED

Increased prize money is being offered by the provincial department of Agriculture in the various children's classes which will be one of the features of the Spring Show which will be held in the Exhibition arena from April 10 to 14. In addition, several new classes have been added, notably for grade colts, both draught and light horse breeding, fitted and shown by boys under 18 years of age.

There will also be a judging competition for both boys and girls over 14 and under 18 years, the competitors to judge one class each of draught horses, light horses, baby beef, and dairy calves, for which $200 has been offered in prize money by the provincial government.

Entries for the Spring Show close on March 24th.

Camrose Ends Trouble With Roads in Winter

Exclusive to Bulletin

CAMROSE, Alta., Feb. 25.—The problem of keeping open winter roads leading into the town of Camrose appears to have been solved. The report of E. V. Kerr, chairman of the Good Roads committee of the Camrose board of trade for the past year, presented at the annual meeting of that organization on Tuesday night, February 21, outlined the method by which success in maintaining winter roads had been attained.

Business men and farmers both agree as to the desirability of keeping roads open for automobile traffic during the period when the snow is upon the ground. But conditions are such that the undertaking presents several difficulties. Mechanical snow-removal equipment of different types is being offered but these were found to be either inadequate to do the work or too costly for the average municipality. After consideration had been given to several types of snow plows, it was decided to have a plow built locally according to determined specifications. The plow so built had a 16-foot blade and was propelled by a 15-30 tractor. The total cost of the plow was less than $150.00.

At the annual meeting of the board of trade it was determined that a Camrose good roads association should be organized and the work heretofore undertaken by the good roads committee of the board of trade will be taken over by the new organization as soon as it is fully formed in a short time.

The unexpected and sudden death of Mrs. H. E. Teeple in St. Mary's hospital, Camrose, on Monday, February 20, removed one who was counted among the early settlers in the district. Born in Michigan, she came from that state in 1900 with her parents, the late Charles Truman and Mrs. Truman, to Ponoka, where they settled. At that place her father and an uncle started a sawmill. In 1902 she was married to H. E. Teeple and soon afterward she and her husband settled a few miles south of Camrose, where they have since resided. The cause of death was heart failure following a period of illness.

The late Mr. Teeple is survived, besides her husband, by five sons—Homer, Morton, Wayne, Frank and an infant son; four daughters—Jeanne, Virginia, Enid and Marion. She is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Anne Truman, Hammond, B.C.; Mrs. W. G. Topham, a sister, also at Hammond, B.C., and another sister, Mrs. H. G. Lawes, at Vernon, B.C., as well as by two brothers, Charles and Harry Truman of Ponoka, Alta.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. M. S. Kerr, B.A., in the Camrose United church Thursday afternoon at 2:30 after which interment of the deceased was made in the Camrose cemetery.

U.S. Immigration Changes on Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Immigration revision was placed definitely on the legislative program of this congress when a bill proposing the quota for all countries entered the committee stage in the house of representatives.

The bill would remove quota restrictions now enjoyed by countries on the American continent and would make all countries, including Canada, subject to the quota.

So far as can be ascertained, the government is not favorable to the bill.

Military Orders

61st Field Battery, C.A.—Battery orders by Major W. A. Lewis, M.C., commanding 61st Field Battery, C.A.

$300 RAISE TO CIVIL SERVICE, OTTAWA STATES

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—The Ottawa Journal in today's news page says:

"The civil service commission's report on the salary revision of technical and professional men in the public service is complete and recommends a $300 flat increase be granted, the increase to go into effect on April 1.

"The report will be handed to Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secretary of state, who will present it to his colleagues in council.

"It is understood the prime minister and members of his cabinet are favorably disposed to the $300 figure."

AFGHANISTAN'S KING HAS GOOD TIME COMING

By Milton Bronner

LONDON, Feb. 25. — Amanullah is coming to London town. They'll give him the time of his life when he gets here. The army and navy will parade their troops, battleships and airplanes. The king will wine and dine him at Buckingham palace. The prime minister and other British factotums will make speeches to him. Simultaneous attacks will be made on his brain, his heart, his stomach.

For Amanullah is "some punkins." He is a pawn in the game of empire.

Not a Cereal

His name sounds like some new breakfast food, or exotic fruit, or radio entertainer, or new dentifrice. But Amanullah is none of these. He is the young king of the kingdom of Afghanistan, "buffer state" between Russia and India. Many people probably never heard of him, but to London and Moscow he is a very important personage.

Russia, whether Romanoff or Soviet ruled, has always wanted to dominate Asia. England always has wanted to keep India. Afghanistan holds the key to possible invasion of India by Russia—the rhymed and storied Khyber Pass. And that's why Amanullah's god will is sought by both big nations so zealously.

As a king, Amanullah is self-made. When his father was murdered in 1919, a relative proclaimed himself Amir of Afghanistan. An elder brother of Amanullah tamely submitted. But Amanullah balked. The important towns of Kabul and Jellalabad supported him. Soon all the country recognized him as its ruler.

England, seeing the trend of things, recognized Amanullah not as Amir but as king, and recognized Afghanistan's complete independence.

Then the Soviets got into the game. Soviet agents travel freely into Afghanistan. They have sought to convert the country to Russian governmental doctrines. Recently Russia established an air line between Kabul, the Afghan capital, and Central Asian points.

So far Amanullah has not leaned heavily toward either Russia or England. When he wanted doctors, lawyers and engineers to assist in shaping the Afghan government's policies, he sent to Turkey for them.

Now he is on his first trip to Europe, and he is certain to get plenty of attention. Territorially, his kingdom is one of the smallest, but before London gets through with him Amanullah is likely to feel that he is about the largest figure on the whole eastern hemisphere.

Celebrating the surrender of Cronje at Paardeberg on February 27, 1900, campaigners from South Africa and comrades of other campaigns are holding a smoker at the Army and Navy Veterans' club rooms on Monday night next. Four of the men who were with the R. C. R's at the surrender are expected to be present.

THE BUDGET

The budget presented in the Legislature by the Provincial Treasurer on Friday is not so discouraging as the bald figures would suggest. There was a deficit for the year of $215,980, whereas a year ago a surplus of $26,178 had been predicted. This unfavorable balance was brought about by a shrinkage in income from three sources. The supplementary revenue tax brought in $374,000 less than expected. Dominion subsidies were $95,000 less than hoped for. The disallowance of the tax on coal mines prevented the collection of $160,000 through that impost. Fortunately there were substantial increases of revenue from other sources which went a long way to off-set these losses. In the total the income showed a shrinkage of $237,645 from the amount estimated a year ago. While, therefore, the deficit is moderately large, it is due to a too sanguine forecast of the year's income, not to spending largely in excess of the program. In point of fact the expenditure only outran the estimates by $4,500.

For the coming year the Minister looks for a decidedly better showing. He anticipates that the revenue will exceed the outlay by $227,335, a surplus sufficient to make up for the deficit of last year.

There will be little disappointment that there are no reductions in taxation, since few if any were looked for. On the contrary there may be a sense of relief that no new taxes are being brought in and no old ones increased. And if the tenor of the report of the special advisory committee is any guide the tax-payers will be well advised to not build any high hopes of reductions a year hence.

One part of the budget statement which ought to arouse the serious attention of both the legislators and the public is that relating to the public debt. The net bonded debt of the province now stands at $87,976,999. A year ago it was something in excess of $84,000,000. With a population of about three-quarters of a million people, the continuous addition to this overhead is a matter deserving of consideration. One favoring factor is that the interest rate is declining, which both helps to lessen the load and shows that the credit of the province has not been compromised.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

The by-laws committee of the city council threw out a proposed charter amendment which would have empowered the council to borrow each year during the next five the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars without consulting the burgesses, with which to defray the city's share of the cost of repairing or improving highways. Council already has power to borrow for this purpose and in this way to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars a year. The suggestion is made to increase this to fifty thousand.

That sum is small enough for such purpose, and twice the amount would not be excessive. The procedure may be objected to on the ground that the tax-payers should be consulted whenever a capital outlay is in contemplation. This objection could be met to a sufficient degree by another amendment which provides that "It shall not be "necessary to submit or refer to the burgesses any bylaw for contracting debts to "pay that portion of the cost of any local "improvement which is to be borne by the "city at large."

This clause safeguards the city, to the extent that the property-owners affected may block the undertaking of any local improvement if they do not think it advisable. And it may fairly be held that where the property-owners are willing to bear their major share of the cost of a local improvement the city should not prevent the work being done by refusal to bear its comparatively small share of the cost. In practice under the present system that does occasionally happen, and for obvious reasons. People whose streets are paved and boulevarded may, and sometimes do, vote against a proposal that the city pay part of the cost of paving or boulevarding some other street.

That is neither fair as between one section of the city and another, nor is it helpful to the general improvement and progress of the community. In the making of local improvements the city's interest is guarded by the commissioners, the council, and the public utilities commission, whose consent must be obtained to any capital expenditure. This triple line of protection is ample safeguard for the tax-payers at large against the undertaking of local improvements an any scale large enough to menace the civic credit.

AN EXCUSE THAT CONDEMNS

By way of apology for the refusal of the Legislature to bring the Old Age Pension scheme into effect in Alberta, we are told that if this were done "there would be a flood of applications from people who, without the pension scheme, will not ask for relief."

If that is a fact, what does it mean? It means that there are in Alberta a large number of old people who are keeping soul and body together on an income of something less than one dollar a day, since anyone receiving that amount of income is not eligible for a pension. And that, because these people are too sensitive to ask for charity, we should refuse them a pension.

The act of refusal was bad enough. The apology is worse.

Little Girls

By EDGAR E. GUEST

They're as cute as they can be,
When they're two years old or three.

They are something to adore,
When they're three years old or four.

Would those charms could long survive
Which are theirs when they are five.

But they have such lovely tricks
When they've journeyed on to six.

Then their little legs grow stout
And those two front teeth come out.

Seven and eight and nine they stage
What is called the awkward age.

After that, through many a year
All their graces re-appear.

Loveliest creatures on life's stage—
Little girls—at any age!

Better Than Money

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A feature writer in the press the other day said that Edsel Ford, although his father was a multi-billionaire and he himself was announced as the "Ford of the Air", dolefully declared that he "wished he had gone to college."

This writer said that if Ford had gone to work the day Jesus was born and had worked steadily ever since at $3,000 a day he wouldn't be worth as much money as he is now. That, of course, doesn't count interest.

And yet this fortunate young man wished he had gone to college.

So there must be something better than money.

It may be hard for the average person to put himself in the place of the individual who has all the money he wants and can buy anything he likes, but if we can imagine ourselves in such a fix we might also be able to imagine ourselves as unhappy.

The trouble is that it takes two things to make happiness—the right kind of supply and the right kind of wants and enough of each.

Give a savage a million dollars or so and the difficulty with him is that he hasn't the right kind of wants to be satisfied with all this money.

Life may be compared to a house; having more resources in one's life is like having more rooms in one's house.

Do You Remember?

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Edmonton Bulletin, Saturday, February 25th, 1888.

Telegraphic—Winnipeg, Feb. 20th:—

Earl Dufferin, late viceroy of India, has accepted the appointment of ambassador to Italy.

The curling contest at Winnipeg for Sir Donald A. Smith's cup was won by Mark Fortune's rink of the Granite.

If the fisheries' treaty is ratified an international commission, it is reported, will be appointed to settle the boundary between British Columbia and Alaska.

Sir John Macdonald denies having said he would send troops to Winnipeg if the construction of the R. R. V. R. is persisted in.

Attorney General Martin gives notice of the intention to call on the Government to apply to the federal parliament for power to bridge the Assiniboine at Winnipeg and at Portage La Prairie.

A draft of the fisheries treaty was given publicity at Washington last night. The general provisions are pretty much the same as already outlined. Provision is made that U.S. vessels shall have free entry to Canadian ports at any time that the United States admits Canadian fish duty free.

Mount Vernon, Ill., was wrecked by a cyclone. It is believed 50 people were killed.

Hon. C. R. Hamilton has resigned as member for Shoal Lake.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press says there is a great railway project to connect China and America by way of Alaska. It is proposed to bridge the Behring straits.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the Daily Bulletin, Tuesday, February 25th, 1908.

F. W. Peters, general freight agent of the C.P.R. is in the city. He announces a reduction in freight rates from eastern points to Edmonton and Calgary, amounting to 5 cents a hundred freight in class 5, and 8 cents a hundred on agricultural implements and machinery.

London—The new educational bill was introduced in the House of Commons today by Reginald McKenna.

Montreal—McGill university conferred the degree of LL.D., upon Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador to the United States.

Winnipeg—Steel on the Hudson Bay railroad has been laid to the Pas, at the junction of the Saskatchewan and Carrot rivers.

Ottawa—A bill is before Parliament to authorize the construction of a railway line from Saskatoon to Dawson.

Nine money bylaws were approved by the burgesses yesterday. They provide $42,500 toward the cost of placing a traffic deck on the high level bridge; $49,000 to meet a deficit on the sale of debentures; $30,000 for the purchase of rails and other street railway material; $40,000 for the municipal telephone system; $60,000 for extending the electric lighting system; $5000 for an isolation hospital; $20,000 to extend the fire protection system; $130,000 for paving; $10,000 for cement and plank sidewalks laid last year.

TEN YEARS AGO

From the Morning Bulletin, Saturday, Feb. 23rd, 1918.

A most comprehensive scheme for making Alberta the seed grain centre of the world has been worked out by the department of agriculture and will be put in operation this year. It will take some three or four years to get the plan fully developed so that there will be a commercial supply, but once established there will be no question as to the quality of Alberta seed grain. The entire proposal was outlined by deputy minister Craig at a meeting of the fairs' delegates and those attending the seed fair, on Thursday afternoon.

Amsterdam—A Russian envoy with the peace proposals of the Bolsheviki Government has arrived in Berlin. A despatch from Petrograd says Trotsky has started for Dvinsk to "liquidate the new hostilities."

Ottawa—An order-in-council has been passed closing seven western land offices, including those at Red Deer, Medicine Hat and High River.

New York—Samuel Gompers, speaking here last night, thus voiced the stand of American labor toward enemy peace proposals: "I say you cannot talk peace with us now—you cannot take part in international conferences. Either you smash your autocracy or we will smash it for you. Get out of France, back from Belgium, back from Serbia, back to Germany; then you can talk peace."

Health and Diet Advice

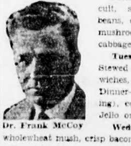
By DR. FRANK McCOY

Diet Specialist and Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions on Health and Diet Answered by Dr. McCoy, when addressed in care of The Edmonton Bulletin

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 26TH

Sunday: Breakfast—Eggs poached in milk, served on Melba toast. Baked apple. Lunch—Sweet corn (canned), cooked asparagus. Salad of grated raw carrots. Dinner—Baked chicken, whole wheat dressing. Buttered beets, spinach. Salad of shredded lettuce. Apricot whip.



Dr. Frank McCoy

Monday: Breakfast—Cottage cheese, toasted Triscuit, sliced pineapple. Lunch—Cornbread, string beans, cauliflower salad. Dinner—Broiled steak with mushrooms, baked eggplant. Salad of chopped raw cabbage. Pear sauce.

Tuesday: Breakfast—Coddled eggs, Melba toast, Stewed prunes. Lunch—Cucumber and olive sandwiches, using genuine wholewheat bread. Raw celery. Dinner—American cream cheese (1-4 yound to a serving), cooked asparagus, cooked turnips, head lettuce. Jello or Jell-well, no cream.

Wednesday: Breakfast—Small dish of cooked wholewheat mush, crisp bacon, Melba toast. Stewed raisins. Lunch—*Orange milk. Dinner—Broiled rabbit, baked eggplant, steamed carrots. Salad of raw spinach. Dish of junket.

Thursday: Breakfast—French omelet served on Melba toast. Stewed figs. Lunch—Baked sweet potatoes, cooked celery. Salad of shredded lettuce. Dinner—Vegetable soup, roast beef, grated turnips and beets baked together in a shallow pan. Prune whip.

Friday: Breakfast—Poached egg, crisp waffle, browned all the way way through, in which may be had a small amount of maple syrup and butter. Apple sauce. Lunch—Buttermilk (1 pint), with 10 or 12 dates. Dinner—Jellied tomato consomme, broiled filet of sole, spinach, asparagus. Sliced tomatoes on lettuce. No dessert.

Saturday: Breakfast—Baked stuffed apple, with a little cream if desired, and a slice of Melba toast. Lunch—Roast mutton, mashed squash, cooked lettuce. String bean salad Grapejuice whip.

Orange Milk: Made by thoroughly mixing, preferably in a shaker, equal amounts of raw sweet milk and orange juice.

*String Bean Salad: Use the fresh string beans if possible, but if the canned ones are used, boil them for a few minutes and let cool before using. Place in a large salad bowl, using two forks to toss about and thoroughly mix with the desired amount of chopped parsley and minced ripe olives. A little chopped celery may also be added, and if a dressing is wanted, use a little olive oil. Serve on crisp, cold lettuce leaves on individual salad plates.

I receive hundreds of letters daily from readers asking me to give them the basic few rules of proper food combinations. I have therefore prepared a special brief article on this subject. You can obtain this by writing to me, care of this newspaper. Ask for my article called "Food Combinations."

Question: Miss S. writes: "I am 18 years of age and have just acquired heart disease. Will fasting and diet effect a cure?"

Answer: There is no treatment I know of so effective for heart disorders as for you to stop all food for a few days, and then make your diet as light as possible, avoiding all foods which are in themselves gas-forming, and all combinations of food which produce excessive flatulence.

Question: K. L. asks: "Will you please tell me what fruit contains the most iron?"

Answer: Cherries contain more iron and blood-building properties than any other fruit found on the market. However, their use should be governed by the same rule that applies to all other acid fruits, in that they should be used by themselves or in combination with sweet milk, and never in addition to an ordinary meal. There is a common belief that cherries and milk are harmful, but experience has proved this not true, unless a starch such as bread is added to the combination, when fermentation is quickly started on account of the strong acid of the cherries. No kind of starch should ever be used with this fruit, whether the cherries are fresh, cooked, or canned.

SEXUAL STERILIZATION

Editor Bulletin:

Sir,—What has sterilization to do with the life and health of the nation? Nothing at all. It is the baleful fountain of disease and death.

During many years of study, I have received many opinions, but there is a vast difference between opinions and facts.

It has been tried in about twenty of the American states, but the result has been, chiefly litigation. In eight of the states there have been only two operations, up till 1926.

In my study I have consulted the best authorities, including university professors, judges of the criminal court and juvenile court, police magistrates, and deputy attorneys-general, as well as the best publications on the subject; from which sources I have learned many facts; a few of which I present.

Sterilization does not, in the slightest degree, restrain sexual vice, nor prevent sexal crime. It tends to increase both, and consequently, venereal disease.

During the past twenty-four years, 6,240 people have been ster-

Planetary Influence on this Day for ALL

Today is favorable for journeys, for business, but not for the consummation of important deals.

For Those Whose Birthday Is Today

If you were born on February 25, you will have an adventurous nature and a powerful mind, and should at all times have as an avocation one of the arts. There is a tendency to go to extremes, particularly when the personal efforts are directed in scientific fields. You create your own animosities. Avoid making trite statements. Your best efforts would be expended in any work dealing with music, the stage, literature, astronomy, navigation, any mechanical contrivance or mathematics. The most favorable periods for attempting anything reasonable in nature where beneficial results are required are the spring of 1928, the spring and winter of 1929, the year 1930, the winter of 1931, and the spring of 1932.

Enrico Caruso, Born February 25, 1873

An example of a person born on February 25 was Enrico Caruso, celebrated Italian tenor, who created some of the greatest roles of the opera, and whose horoscope indicates a progressive, buoyant, cheerful nature, emotional, temperamental and sensitive. There is indicated a cheerfulness which might well be associated with adolescence. hTe great love for approbation in his particular field is so intensely indicated in his horoscope that he was certainly a person of destiny for his chosen career. His name, as indicated in the horoscope, will last through eternity. Another person born on this date was Camille Flammarion, eminent French astronomer.

Planetary Conditions for Tomorrow, February 26

Do nothing of importance. Avoid friction.

If you were born on February 25 you have rather a rash nature requiring restraint. You are adventurous and might be termed an opportunist. Your mind should be well developed in order to cope with outstanding interests which will surely make themselves felt later in life. Your best efforts would be expended in any work dealing with materia medica, science law, the government, literature, especially criticism, hygiene or outdoor work. AMENDMENT TO CUSTOMS ACT COMING SOON

Bulletin Staff Correspondent

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—Comprehensive amendments to the customs and excise acts will be contained in a bill to be brought down during the present session of parliament by Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of national revenue.

In addition reorganization of the staff and the system will be carried out. No present senior staff changes are in contemplation, and whatever changes are made will be based on efficiency or lack of it. An audit report tabled yesterday recommended the closing of about 600 of thesmaller ports, but the Bulletin has ascertained that while some of the smaller ones will be dispensed with nothing like this sweeping closure will be carried out. The auditors base their conclusions on revenue, but the minister bases his on public service.

FORESEES BIG NAVAL FIGHT

TORONTO, Feb. 25—A struggle between the greatest navies of the world for the freedom of the seas was foreseen by Lieutenant-Colonel Rev. H. J. Cody, of the Queen's Own Rifles, chaplain, addressing the 45th annual banquet of the sergeants' mess here last night.

"The common people do not want war," Canon Cody said, "but in moments of insanity, and moments of insanity come to any nation, they may be drawn into it. The mere discussion of such a topic should make all men and women do their utmost to prevent international friction. In the event of such an occurrence, Canada, with the British empire and our friends in the United States will be the best means of avoiding the clashes of race and color which loom on the world's horizon."

Revered Old Timer Dies at Bon Accord

Exclusive to Bulletin

BON ACCORD, Alta, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Amie McCue died suddenly on Sunday morning. Seldom has there been a death which has more deply affected the hearts of the whole district. Mrs. McCue has lived here for twenty-eight years.

She had been in rather poor health for about a year, but only for a week did she consent to go to bed, and the end came before even her family realized that she was seriously ill.

Amie June Butterworth was born in London, England, on March 28, 1883. She came to Alberta with her grandfather in 1899, and they homesteaded on land just northeast of Bon Accord four miles.

In the autumn of 1902 she was married to Mr. Clifford McCue. They set up their home on the land near Gibbons, where she died. Her family consists of Arthur, Dora, Ruth, Winnie, Caroline and James, all of whom are at home but Dora, who is teaching school at Clover Bar.

Besides these chidren, she leaves twobrothers in Ohio, and one sister in England; two uncles, Wm. Wells and Wm. Jays, of Coronado, Alta., and three cousins in Alberta, Tom and Wm. G. Carpenter of Boyle, Alberta, and Chris. Jays of Edmonton.

The funeral service was held on Thursday afternoon from the church at Bon Accord, the pastor, Rev. John M. Fawcett, conducting the service. The building was filled to capacity with sorrowing friends. Mr. Arthur McCue's Trail Ranger class attended as a group. A touching tribute of sympathy and respect was the lowering of the flag at the school house as the cortege passed by.

Beautiful floral tributes surrounded the casket from the children, Mr. and Mrs. Schadick, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McCue, Miss Nellie Craig, Miss Myrtle Berquist, Mrs. L. Bibaud, the Gibbons United church laides aid and the Bon Accord Sunday school.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Chas. Brumfit, Robt. Gibbons, A. E. Hancock, E. J. Davidson, Claude Thornton, and Walter Blodgett. Interment was made in Bon Accord cemetery.

Mr. O. W. Roberts, of the U. G. G. elevator, received a telegram on Thursday morning, announcing the death of his mother, at the age of 76 years. Mr Roberts left on Thursday night to attted the funeral, which will take place at Marengo, Saskatchewan.

An example of a person born on February 26 is Alexander Abbott, American hygienist, director of the laboratory of hygiene at the University of Pennsylvania, and a Johns Hopkins graduate, military mentality, capable of aspiring, with an unusual insight into scientific realms and deduction. There is a marked ability for diagnostic work. He would have been particularly successful as a surgeon, where he could have blended his ability with his natural aptitudes. Other persons born on this date were Victor Hugo(famous French writer, author of "Les Miserables" and William F. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill."

ilized by surgical methods, and during the same period 1,872,000 have been sterilized by disease, in the United States. In all countries 80 per cent. of the female prostitutes are sterilized by disease, so that venereal diseases are propagated much more by sterilized people than by others. All of which tends toward the death of the nation.

Mutilation of the human body is a serious crime, especially that which would prevent reproduction, as that strikes at the life of the nation. The criminal code of each of the American states, as well as that of Canada, provides penalties for such mutilation, varying in fines from $500 to $1,000, or imprisonment, from five years to six months, or both. In the practice of medical science, the Criminal Code of Canada makes provision for many mutilations, with the consent of the subject, or his guardian, for the benefit of such subject, but it does not apply to sterilization; so that such an operation is a crime, if performed with or without the consent of subject or guardian.

Each American state has a constitutional right to amend its criminal code; so has the Dominion government, with consent of parliament.

No provincial government has, or ever will have any such right.

Sterilization would not be considered in Britain. See report of commission. Read "Burt," "Treadgold," "East," and other authorities.

If any hon. member of the Alberta government or legislature has an insatiable ambition to encroach on the jurisdiction of the Federal government, it would be well to start on something more rational, and less dangerous; such as reducing the penalty for stealing a cow, and doubling the penalty for white slavery.

Sound Advice to Miss Twenty-one, Whose Mother Urges Her to Marry a Wealthy Suitor Instead Of Her Poor Sweetheart—Why the Wage-Earner-Mother's Place Is in the Home — Should a Lonely Widow Marry For Companionship?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 21 and am at the point where I have to decide my fate. I am desperately in love with a fine young man who loves me, but who cannot marry for several years because he cannot afford now to support a family. A wealthy man wants to marry me and my mother insists upon my marrying him, because he can help our family, and we are poor. Shall I marry this rich man, even though my poor sweetheart has my heart and soul? I could make the best of it—be a good wife and No. 2 need never know. Is not my duty to my mother more than my own happiness. I am nearly insane trying to decide what I should do. LEOLA.

Answer:

Listen to your own heart, Leola, and not to your mother's fallacious arguments. No sophistry can make wrong right or good come of doing evil, so don't let her persuade you into committing a crime against yourself, your sweetheart and the innocent rich man whom she also proposes to sacrifice for her own benefit.

No girl is ever placed in a crueler situation than you are, for your own mother is demanding of you your life and happiness in payment for her care of you. And it is hard to refuse her because you love her, because,you have always obeyed her and because of your sense of duty to her. And it takes more courage and backbone than the average child possesses to defend its own rights against its parents.

Your mother justifies herself in the hard bargain she is trying to drive with you by saying to herself that it is for your own good; that she doesn't want you to marry a poor man, as she did, and to have to go through all the struggle and anxiety and hard work that she has; that, after all, romance lasts but a short time, and after it is gone all husbands are more or less alike and all disappointing; and that then the only thing that matters is whether the man can give his wife an establishment and cars and fine clothes.

But this is not true. It is love and nothing but love that makes marriage a success. Rich food does not satisfy the woman who is starving for love and tenderness. A shopping ticket does not take the place of companionship and a heart can ache just as intolerably under chiffon velvet as it can under homespun. No woman who marries one man loving another will never have one hour's peace or cententment no matter how her husband loads her down with jewels or how many country places and town houses he bestows upon her.

You haven't any right to ruin your own life to please your mother by marrying this man for whom you do not care. Still less have you the right to ruin the life of the fine young man who loves you, as you will do if you blast his faith in women by permitting yourself to be sold to the highest bidder.

Nor have you any right to ruin your wealthy suitor's life by perpetrating a particularly mean fraud upon him. For well you know that he would not marry you if he knew that you were only marrying him for his money and that your heart and soul belonged to another man and he was only getting the outside shell of you. Having money does not change a man's nature, and the rich man wants his wife's undivided affections just as much as the poor man does.

Therefore, refuse to listen to your mother's selfish and evil counsel. It is bad advice from every point of view. Moreover, mothers are poor pickers, and they are so greedy to get at a little money that is in the hand, so anxious to cash in on their pretty daughters, that they overlook what they call on Wall Street "the long pull."

I have known many a mother to break off her daughter's marriage with a poor young man and force and cajole her into a marriage with a rich man, and twenty years later I have seen the poor young man rich and prosperous and sitting in the seats of the mighty, while the former rich man had lost his money and was a down-and-outer and his wife took in boarders to support him.

So tell your mother that you will work to support her, but that you will not sell yourself in marriage. There is no justification of that and it never brings happiness. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a steno-bookkeeper, have a good business reputation and can command a good salary. When I was married I did more than my share toward furnishing a home and I kept on with my job until my baby was coming. Now my husband insists on my going back to work and says we will never have a home unless I help to earn it at my trade. But I am old-fashioned and domestic, and I feel that a woman's place who has children, is in her home, and that nobody can take care of a baby as its mother can. I don't feel that I would be satisfied to leave my baby to a young girl who is the only person we could afford to hire. What do you think about this? MRS. W. O S.

Answer:

You are absolutely right and your husband is entirely wrong in the positions you take in this matter. So long as there are no children there is no reason why a woman should not keep on with her job after marriage if she so desires and if she and her husband consider it best.

For a wife to continue to be a money-earner enables many a young couple to marry who would otherwise have many dreary years of waiting until the man was able to make enough to support a family. It also enables many a young couple to buy their own home, which they could not do if the husband were the only one who brought in a pay envelope.

But when the babies come the whole status of the case is altered, and during her child-bearing period no woman should work outside of her home or follow any occupation beside that of wifehood and motherhood. If she does, she defrauds her children.

To begin with, she cheats them out of their rightful heritage of strength and vigor, for no woman who toils all day in office or store or factory has much vitality left to give to her offspring. And she deprives her children of the most important thing in the world, a mother's personal care at the formative time of their lives.

Science has made substitutes for almost everything else, but human ingenuity has never invented a synthetic mother that would take the place of the real one. No institution, no matter how perfectly it functions, can do it. No hired hands can do it.

It takes a mother whose love makes her clairvoyant to understand the child and to have endless patience with it. It takes a mother with her cooing and gurgling and baby talk, with her tender arms and her soft breast, with her stories and prayers and lullabies, to form the child's ideas and teach it the way it should go, to mold its manners and to give it its point of view in life.

To be a mother is the biggest job in the world and the most important, and any woman who performs that well has done her full day's work and more, and her husband should not expect anything else from her.

Of course, it is nice for a young couple to have a home, but when they have to buy it at the price of the children it costs too much. It isn't worth it. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a widow past 65 years old. I have a good home, but get very lonesome being alone in a large house and long for some one to talk to. A widower past 70, a man of good standing and who was a good husband and provider for his family, wants to marry me. He is willing to sign a marriage contract so that he does not get any of my property. He just wants a companion. We have known each other for a long time and would be happy together. Should I marry this man? A LONESOME WIDOW.

Answer:

Hop to it. There is no reason why you two elderly people should not get married and give each other the companionship that you need. Your age makes no difference. In fact, old people need good chummy husbands and wives more than young people do, and I am sure that any woman of 65 who still has enough personality about her to attract men must be a charmer. DOROTHY DIX.

Dr. F. J. Lewis gave an interesting address before the Philosoph on "The Emergence of Plant Life," in which he drew a picture of the early history of vegetation and the factors which may have brought about the present organization of the higher plants living on the surface of the earth. The materials for such a history he found in the fossilised remains of plants in the crust of the earth, and in certain solvent features in modern vegetation which afford suggestive evidence that the problems of the primitive plant world were very different from those of the present day.

BIG 4 TAXI
Anniversary

JUST ONE YEAR AGO TODAY we decided that Edmonton people were ready for a new taxi service---a service that would meet their demands for promptness plus luxurious appointment.

WITH these predominating factors in view, we entered the field. The steady phenomenal growth of this business fully justified the venture, and the success can frankly be attributed to two specific causes.

1st—Our past record over 25 years of public service in the city.
2nd—Our established integrity for clean business ethics, characteristic of the organization management which stands behind it and from which it derives its name.

PASSENGER traffic is no new venture with us. Old timers will remember the excellent service we rendered for ten years during which time we handled the entire passenger traffic of C. P. R. between Strathcona and Edmonton from 1905 to 1915 . . . long before the advent of modern sedans.

OUR equipment in those days was horse drawn, but the very best available at that time.

THESE were he pioneer days when we operated busses over the trails, through the bush, stumps, ice and snow . . . crossing ferries and negotiating hills sometimes knee-deep in mud . . . without a single accident . . . a record that we may well feel proud of.

TODAY BIG 4 TAXI service is recognized as leader in the city. We operate a fleet of luxurious sedans . . . at your disposal day and night. Manned by drivers chosen for their carefulness and courtesy.

STEEL HOME PLANT HAS BEEN OFFERED GLASGOW COUNCIL

Lord Weir is Willing to Provide Equipment to Build 5,000 Houses

OFFICIALS' VIEW

Think That Generosity is Due to Building Failure in Scotland

Lord Weir has offered to transfer to the Glasgow Corporation the whole of his plant and equipment for the building of steel houses. The works are at Cardonald.

A condition governing the offer is that the corporation use the factory to build no fewer than 5,000 steel houses.

UNEMPLOYED REQUEST

Lord Weir laid down no conditions as to the rate or the method of payment of workers, but expressed the hope that the corporation would recruit all workers from the unemployed ranks.

Last year (he stated) his company was supplying steel houses at the rate of 50 per cent. of all working-class houses built in Scotland. He added that the main obstacles to the Weir scheme are:

The Socialist party and the trade unions were opposed to his policy of remuneration to the unemployed because it did not conform to the trade union standards.

A carefully-worked campaign of criticism against the actual merit of the houses, and

The natural opposition of the numerous vested interests associated with the corporation and the building trades.

A RECORD YEAR

Bailie Logie, convenor of the Housing Committee, told a newspaper representative that the present year was likely to be a record for the building of houses under the corporation scheme.

He did not think that the members of the council would be prepared to depart from their present programme and to adopt the proposals put forward by Lord Weir.

A building trade official thought Lord Weir's offer seemed to indicate that the steel house in Scotland had failed.

£1,000 JEWELS ARE FOUND IN GUTTER

Handbag is Left Lying Unseen on Busy Roadway for Hours

The wife of the licensee of the Shakespeare Hotel, Kirkdale, put jewels worth £1,000 in a chamois leather bag enclosed in a handbag when she went for a motor drive with her husband but missed the jewels on her return.

Less than two hours later an old man accidentally kicked what he thought was a ball in the gutter. Picking it up he found it was a chamois leather bag, and was surprised on reaching home to discover the contents, but did not think the jewellery was of value until he read the papers. He visited the hotel later and restored the valuables.

Scores of people must have passed the spot unaware that a bag of jewels was in the gutter.

"CANNON-BALL" GIRL INJURED

Strained Ligament of Leg When Shot Into Circus Net

The girl shot from a cannon, the chief thrill at the Crystal Palace Circus, was unable to take part in the performances recently.

Few of the audience were aware that she had suffered any mishap.

Miss Alexine was shot from the cannon in correct style, but in landing in the net she strained the ligament of her leg. Although in great pain she pluckily took her bow.

A doctor later said the leg was so swollen that it was impossible for her to appear for a week.

Her brother took his sister's place the next day and continued until the circus ended.

SPEND MILLION A YEAR ADVERTISING

Advertising was the most powerful and cheapest force for selling known, and yet there were hundreds of firms lacking trade who had not commenced to use it, said Sir Charles Higham to the Incorporated Secretaries' Association in London.

At least 150 millions a year were spent in the British Isles alone in advertising, with 20,000 people engaged in it.

There were six advertisers in the world who each spent one million a year in that direction, the British Government being one of the six. There were stores in London alone who each spent half a million pounds yearly in the same way.

IN BUSINESS 40 YEARS CANNOT READ

A man who, although he had been in business for 40 years, could neither read nor write, was summoned at Liverpool Police Court.

Alfred Carney, aged 76, a master carter, of Winslow street, was fined 1s. on each of 27 summonses for failing to pay health and unemployment insurance contributions in respect of 12 employes for a year, and ordered to pay £46 off arrears.

It was stated that Carney's two sons were mainly responsible for the management of the business.

FARMER SHOT AT FOXHOUND

For cruelty to a foxhound belonging to the Warwickshire Hunt by shooting it, Jam Frogley, farmer, of Draycote, was fined £25 at Rugby.

He said that the hound was about to worry sheep ,and he had warned the Hunt to keep off his land.

Frogley was fined a like amount for a similar offence last year.

NEAR-ROBBERY OF ATHLONE BANK

Bandits Were Foiled, by Fearless Manager and Screaming Wife

HOLDS ONE

Other Marauders Were Later Captured by Civic Guards

"Hands up! Your money or your life!"

These words were addressed by the leader of four men armed with revolvers to the manager of the National Bank at Athlone, Co. Roscommon.

The bank had just opened when the four men entered. Three approached the manager, John Rice, asking for £10, at the same time drawing their revolvers, while the fourth made the "Hands up" demand. The cashier and the rest of the staff were also covered.

Mr. Rice refused to put up his hands, and was ordered to produce the keys of the safe. These, he replied, were in his private apartments upstairs.

Two of the raiders then ordered him to leave his office. Through a side door the three men went to the hall leading to the living quarters.

RAIDERS ALARMED

In the hall Mrs. Rice came on the scene and, realising the position, screamed at the top of her voice. A gun was thrust in her face, and she was told to be quiet or she would be shot. She continued to scream, and made her way along the private hall to the street.

Two of the raiders, now alarmed, followed and ran. Meantime, two other raiders were in the bank office, which Mr. Rice re-entered through the public door.

Behind this door, with his back to him, stood a raider watching that none of the staff got out. Mr. Rice at once grabbed the man and held him till he was taken into custody. The last raider also ran.

In the afternoon three men, believed to be those who took part in the bank hold-up, were arrested by Civic Guards.

771,092 ATTENDED FOOTBALL CUPTIES

Receipts of £52,381 Show Increase of £2,000 on Last Year's Total

Over three-quarters of a million people saw the third round ties in the Football Association cup match.

The total is officially given as 771,092, and the gate receipts £52,381. This shows a large increase on last year, when the attendance was 693,672 and the receipts £48,491.

The biggest attendances were at Manchester, with a crowd of nearly 50,000, and at Highbury, with 43,000. Some of the most noteworthy figures are given below:—

	Attendance.	Gate receipts.
Manchester City v. Leeds U.	49,466	3,390
Arsenal v. W. Bromwich A.	43,322	3,121
Millwall v. Derby County	38,850	2,535
Birmingham v. Peterboro'	38,000	2,160
Preston N.E. v. Everton	37,175	3,036
Bristol City v. Spurs	36,290	2,240
Wolverhampton v. Chelsea	32,134	2,481
Liverpool v. Darlington	28,500	1,810
Notts C. v. Sheffield U.	28,000	2,000
Portsmouth v. West Ham	27,652	2,307
Blackburn v. Newcastle	27,652	1,775
Sheffield W. v. Bournemouth	26,797	1,846

The two smallest attendances were: Southport v. Fulham, 8,000 (receipts £600), and New Brighton v Corinthians, 9,256 (receipts £700).

FIVE GRADES OF EGGS IN MARKET SCHEME

Newly Organized Advisory Board Wil Penalise Offenders

An egg marketing scheme of great importance to the poultry industry, drawn up by the Poultry Advisory Committee of the Ministry of Agriculture, has been issued. This committee, recently reconstituted now includes every branch of the producing and distributing business.

It defines five grades for eggs—first quality, specials, standards, mediums, and smalls—the grades depending chiefly on the weight of 120 eggs, which diminishes from 17lb. to 14lb. It will be a punishable offence to apply the grade descriptions to eggs not conforming to the definition.

If and when a marking order for imported eggs has been made all eggs which have been cold or gas stored are to be marked. Also all eggs preserved by lime, water-glass, or oil are to be marked "preserved."

The scheme includes the registration of a national quality mark, primarily for use on packages.

VEGETARIANISM ALMOST WRECKED FAMILY HOME

Compositor Banned Even Milk and Butter for Baby

NEAR TRAGEDY

Husband Promises to Be Less Strict in His Views on Diet

A husband who was a strict vegetarian, and who was said to have refused to allow his infant son to have milk or butter, was cautioned by the Lord Chief Justice at the Old Bailey.

His wife, Ruth Jones, 24, of Finsbury Park, pleaded guilty to charges of attempted murder and attempted suicide.

Gerald Dodson, prosecuting, said the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Jones had not been happy owing to the husband's ideas on food.

"He seems to have been a rigid vegetarian," he added, "and to have insisted upon a diet of herbs, not only for himself, but also for his wife and baby.

ORANGE JUICE DISPUTE

Mr. Dodson added that Mrs. Jones became very depressed, and turning on the gas in her bedroom tried to commit suicide and to kill her child. After a time, however, she realised what she was doing and turned the gas off.

In the statement she said:—

"Ever since and just before baby was born I have lived unhappily, chiefly because my husband was a vegetarian. He has knocked me about on several occasions because I wanted to give baby proper food.

"He will not allow baby to have milk, butter, or any proper food. He carried on to me because I gave baby some orange juice. It upset me, and I decided to do away with myself and baby."

Tindal Atkinson, on behalf of Mrs. Jones, said the husband had drawn up a very rigid diet for himself and his family, and a doctor whom Mrs. Jones consulted had assured her that if this were persisted in the baby would not live.

HUSBAND'S PROMISE

The husband, Herbert Jones, a compositor, said that he was willing to take his wife back. He promised not to insist on the vegetarian diet.

Lord Chief Justice: You realise that it is one thing for a person to be a vegetarian, because it suits him, and quite another thing to insist upon it for others against their will.—I realise that now. I did not before.

Mrs. Jones was bound over.

LORD HEWART ON PUBLIC ECONOMY

Calls Figures in Britain's Annual Balance Sheet "Appalling"

LONDON.—In a speech at Manchester the Lord Chief Justice, Lord Hewart, raised some interesting questions.

"I have never connived," Lord Hewart said, "and I will never connive at any heresy which involves the proposition that a Chief Justice of England, summoned as he is to the House of Lords not merely to vote but also to advise, is condemned to a lifelong and compulsory silence upon the affairs and the interests of the State. . . . No, a Chief Justice, whatever his privation may be, is not relegated on all occasions to an austere and pensive silence.

"True, it is that men praise economy in general, while they resist every proposal for economy in particular. But can anybody apply the rare but refreshing process of thought to the disgusting subject of taxation without being appalled at the annual balance-sheet? . . . The service of the debt costs you annually $2,000,000,000, the armed forces of the Crown cost $600,000,000, and the Civil Services cost $1,200,000,000. Is there no Hume or Colden, is there no Bright or Gladstone, to grapple with figures like these?

"And you may depend upon it that if you have superfluous or swollen departments, the evils which they involve will not be limited to waste of money.

"Will nobody ascertain, with exact precision, what departments there are; how and why and under what authority each of them came into existence; whether, as to each of them, its purpose remains or has been fulfilled or abandoned; what is the size of its staff as compared with the last year before the war; and how, for example, the salary and bonus of each of the twenty exceedingly able gentlemen at the head of the department contrast and compare with his pre-war emoluments?"

DOGS WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD AT PALACE

£100,000 Value for 700 Pets at Terrier Club's Show

Many pedigree dogs are now worth literally more than their weight in gold. Soon they may be worth more than their weight in platinum, according to the experts at the National Terrier Club's Championship Show at the Crystal Palace.

The total value of the 700 dogs there was estimated by an expert at £100,000.

"Every year," said one expert, who is a famous breeder, "really fine thoroughbred dogs increase in value. Supply does not mean demand, and prices soar. There are some dogs here for which £2,000 has been refused. Every year there are dogs that are valued at sums running into four figures.

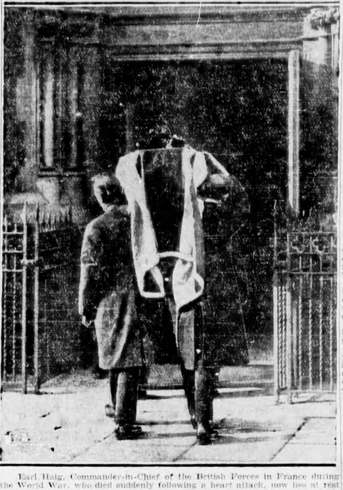
Dr. Roslyn Bruce, one of the judges, said: "The most popular dog in the future will undoubtedly be the Border Terrier. These dogs are developing rapidly and gain favor because they are lively and good working dogs."

CO OPERATIVE FIRE LOSS.

The stores and contents of the Green street Co-operative Society, Ltd., near Sittingbourne, have been destroyed by fire, the loss being estimated at £8,000.

The ratable value of Birmingham has been increased by the new assessment to the extent of £700,000.

The Passing of Britain's Great War Commander



Earl Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces in France during the World War, who died suddenly following a heart attack, now lies at rest in Dryburgh Abbey, on the banks of the Tweed in Berwickshire. The body was taken there following impressive burial services in St. Columba's Church, Pont street, at which Earl Haig was an elder, and Westminster Abbey. The picture shows the coffin being carried into St. Columba's Church.

MOUNTAIN RAIN IS GARNERED FOR ELECTRIC POWER

Three Years' Work of Harnessing Waterfall Over 30 Square Miles

LOVELY NEW LAKE

Undertaking Will Blot Out Many Homes in North Wales

An artificial lake covering an area of three square miles and comparable in its beauty of setting with any natural sheet of water in the country, is one of the features of the new North Wales electric power scheme, which will be in working order next July.

For three years 1,000 men have been at work to harness, for electrical purposes, the rainfall of 30 square miles of mountains round Trawsfynydd, in North Wales. The work already done includes:—

Building a 100ft. dam of reinforced concrete.

Blasting two tunnels through the mountains.

Laying many miles of steel pipes, varying in diameter from 9ft, 6in. to 4 1-2in.

And as soon as the official opening has taken place work will be begun to increase the size of the lake to five square miles.

SUBMERGED CHAPEL

The lake will skirt the village of Trawsfynydd, running over a main road and covering several small farms and a tiny chapel that stands empty, desolate and half-ruined in the low-lying valley.

Banked behind the huge wall of concrete the water will be released to flow into a ravine which is the bed of the River Pryson. Then it will be carried to a great concrete tunnel.

Pouring into this great structure, it will enter a mile and a half pipe line to be conveyed on its way to the power house lying hut-like, despite its great size, at the foot of the high mountains. On its way the pipe line passes through two tunnels blasted under high hills.

The pipe-line terminates in three small jets of only 4 1-2in. in diameter. From these the water will strike with tremendous force on the Felton wheels and these, driven round at high speed, will turn three huge turbines, each weighing a ton and a half.

The undertaking is the biggest in the North. It will supply Wrexham and many other towns and villages as far away as Crewe. The turbines have an output of 9,000 brake h.p. working at 333 revolutions per minute.

MISS BALDWIN HAD HUNDREDS OF HATS

Mystery Woman in Richmond Had Home Packed With Furniture

Miss Baldwin, a mystery woman of 82, who lived alone in the same house for 52 years, had a mania for buying furniture; left no space in which to erect a bed, and had hundreds of hats, has just died at Rose Cottage, Richmond.

It is believed that she was a native of Cranford, Middlesex, and she once told a neighbor that she had two cousins. "They never trouble me and I never trouble them," she added.

All the rooms were found packed with furniture and household goods, most of which she obtained at auction sales which she frequently attended.

"Miss Baldwin would change her hat several times a day," said a neighbor. "Although she had many bedsteads she never slept in bed because there was no room to erect one. She never appeared short of money, but where it came from was a mystery."

Sir John Robertson, medical officer for Birmingham (just retired), has been presented with a silver tea service and other gifts by the Health Committee.

TORY SEEKS TO PREVENT LIBERALS USING CLUB

Col. James Grimwood Asks Court to Grant Injunction

TWO-YEAR FIGHT

Plaintiff Claims it Impossible to Enjoy Tranquillity in Election Time

A quarrel between a Tory and his club will be fought out in Mr. Justice Romer's Court early in March, when Colonel James Grimwood, of Messrs. J. Grimwood and Co., incorporated accountants, of Coleman-street, E.C., will apply for an injunction to restrain the City Carlton Club from altering its rules to admit Liberals as members.

As the Judge has intimated that he will require evidence to be called to define the meanings of the words "Liberal" and "Conservative," Col. Greenwood has subpoenaed Sir Herbert Samuel, chairman of the Liberal Party, and also intends to call a leading Conservative probably, Col. Davidson, the chairman of the Tory Party.

TWO-YEAR-OLD DISPUTE

Col. Grimwood's quarrel with his club began at the club's annual meeting in March, 1926, when Sir Sidney Wishart, the chairman, proposed an alteration to the foundation rule with the object of admitting Liberals to membership. The vital part of this rule reads:

". . only persons eligible for admission are British subjects who profess and will support Conservative and Unionist principles and acknowledge the recognized leaders of the party.

The alteration proposed was to delete all the words from "profess" to "party" and substitute

"are in favour of maintaining the unity of the British Empire and all constitutional principles, and are opposed to Socialism."

Colonel Grimwood opposed the alteration but only three out of 200 voted against it and he then decided to fight the case in the Law Courts.

"CONTRARY TO TORYISM."

"It was my only course," he said. "It is true that when the City Liberal Club closed down a number of Liberals came in as members, but they signed the full ticket. It is a very strong ticket. To alter it to admit a rush of Liberals is contrary to the spirit of the Conservative cause. It is rank treason.

"I do not believe there is a rush of Liberals, but I object to share a Conservative Club with a Liberal. It is all very well to sit at table with him in times of peace, but during times of election it cannot be done. The club is a political club, and you could not sit still at election times and hear a Liberal expounding his views without trying to controvert them.

"CUT" BY OLD FRIENDS

"I have paid my annual subscription each year since the dispute began, but I do not go to the club. It has been a great wrench for me to remain away, and it has not been pleasant for old fellow-members to cut me in the street because of the stand I have taken. I have been a member of the club nearly 20 years, and I had lunch there every day until this disagreement.

"The club has a deficit. It proposes to admit Liberals to obtain sufficient revenue to wipe out the deficiency. Obviously the proper thing to do would be to raise the subscription, which at present is 20 guineas, but it will not do that."

Many years ago Col. Grimwood unsuccessfully fought Will Thorne in South-West Ham.

RELIC OF HAROLD'S STAND.

A battle-axe has been unearthed at Battle a few yards from the spot where King Harold planted his standard at the battle of Hastings. It appears to be a relic of the fight.

The car used by men who attempted a "smash and grab" robbery at West Croydon was found abandoned at Melfort road, Thornton Heath. The number is Y.N.2023. It had been stolen from Bayswater.

BOY'S PLAY-DAY DISCOVERY NOW FAMILY HOME

Unemployed Man Brings Wife to Kent Cave to Dwell

CAVERN ROMANCE

Primitive Quarters in Chalk Cliff Home Pay Neither Rent or Taxes

Some 30 years ago a London boy, while looking for a lost ball, discovered a "smugglers' cave" 50 ft. below the level of the road to the village of Thong, in Kent.

Little did this boy, now Thomas Fones, think then that one day this cave, which was once below the sea, would house himself, his wife and his children.

Fones, now middle-aged and workless, told a correspondent how the modern cave-dweller lives.

With a sweep of an arm browned by years of exposure to wind and rain, he indicated three semi-circular and roofed chalk pits leading off the main cave wall.

THE GUEST ROOM.

"This," he said, pointing to one, "is where we live ourselves, my wife and I. This is the guest room."

Then he led the way to the second best cave, in which there was a bed, in case either of his two grown-up daughters, who are in service, or the chance guest should call.

"But come inside and see our little dwelling-place for yourself. Feel the cave walls—they're chalk, many feet thick. Feel the ceiling. Chalk again, white washed by nature and as dry as a bone.

Mrs. Fones, a plump, shrewd little woman, smiled as though cave dwelling was the biggest joke in the world.

The fireplace she has made out of sheets of tin. The brazier was once an old pail, through which she had punched holes. I asked her about her furniture, shelves, book-cases and cupboards.

LOCAL FRICTION.

"Old boxes and chests, cretonne-covered and nailed together," was her laughing reply.

"We came to live here," said Mr. Fones, "because the little flat we had in East Ham was sold over our heads, and, wondering where on earth we were going to love, I suddenly remembered the cave I had tumbled on as a boy and had got to know well when I first came down to work unloading cargoes in Tilbury Docks.

"We live here rent and rates free, and I must say that, save for a little local friction and a shortage of water supply at times, we are fairly comfortable now. The wife cooks over a coke fire, and we live mostly on stews.

LIFE IN THE OPEN.

"In the winter time, of course, it is cheerless here, and lonely, but in the summer time, or on a day like this, it is beautiful. Then we live in the open, with the sky for a roof."

Only one thing troubles the Fones' family now, and that is a fear that they might suddenly be called upon to pay rent and rates.

"But as the sea made this home for us I don't see what they could do." And, smiling again, Mrs. Fones called her husband to lunch.

£50,000 LOST IN SEVEN YEARS

Former Soldier Loses Fortune in Ventures on Stock Exchange

How a fortune of £50,000 was lost in speculation was described at Manchester Bankruptcy Court, when Geoffrey Mellor, a stockbroker's agent, came up for public examination.

It was stated that in 1915 Mellor received a legacy of £50,000, which brought him an income of £2,500 a year.

In reply to the Assistant Official Receiver, Mellor admitted that soon after he left the Army he entered into a series of Stock Exchange and other ventures, which ended disastrously, and by September 1922 the whole of his £50,000 capital had been lost. He invested £7,000 in a London bookmaking business, and lost it all.

The examination was adjourned.

£300,000 GIFTS FOR HULL COLLEGE

T. R. Ferens, of Hull, has made another munificent gift of £22,500 to the newly established University College of that city for the endowment of a Chair. Mr. Ferens announced the gift at a meeting of the council of the college, and said he was anxious that £20,000 should be earmarked for endowing a chair, the subject of which had not yet been specified.

The donor's previous gifts to Hull University College with accumulations are now worth considerably over £300,000, which includes the value of 18 acres of land.

WOMAN ADMITS FRAUD CHARGE

Admitting that she had embezzled £3,200, a woman cashier at the Glasgow Sheriff's Court has been remitted to the High Court.

It was stated that she had worked for the Kilpatrick Farmers' Society, Ltd., who had lost £3,000, and the Kilpatrick Threshing Mills, Ltd., who had lost £200.

The embezzlement had been going on for four years. It was said that she kept money that had been paid in to both organizations.

CHANGE NAMEPLATE OF OXFORD STREET

Hell-passage is the name by which a narrow winding Oxford thoroughfare between New College Lane and Holywell has been known to generations of undergraduates.

It was only a nickname, however, and until recently its official nameplate described it as St. Helen's-passage. Now, by the deletion of a few letters it appears as Hell-passage.

Who made the alteration? It has been reported that the City Council itself authorized the change, but the Mayor of Oxford said that was certainly not the case.

KING'S EMPIRE PUDDING.

The King's Christmas pudding will be made entirely of Empire-produced ingredients, and the Empire Marketing Board will give a demonstration of how it will be cooked at the Imperial Fruit Show, which opens in Manchester next Friday.

PRESERVATION OF ALLOWAY KIRK

Scene of Famous Tam o' Shanter Ghost to Be Saved

KING'S AID

Fund May Be Formed to Retain Seventeenth Century Structure

"Alloway's auld haunted kirk," of Tam o' Shanter fame, is to be scheduled as an ancient monument under State protection.

Captain Edward Page Gaston, of Scottish descent, living in London, and a devotee of Burns, explains that the decision has followed his appeal to the King.

"Being of Scottish ancestry, I have visited the Ayr district repeatedly during the last 25 years," he said to a Press representative.

"Some time ago I was astonished at observing the neglected state of the ancient church, which by a recent Parliamentary Act affecting old burying grounds, has been taken from the Burns's Trust, which had capably looked after it for many years.

"As little was being done towards keeping it in repair, a small portion of the seventeenth-century structure was in danger of collapse at the time of my visit, and some loose stones were almost falling from the walls.

"The proposal which I accordingly ventured to lay before the King was that the church structure should be officially scheduled as an ancient monument, and hence be protected permanently by the State.

"A prompt response was received from Buckingham Palace, and, by the command of the King, my letter was transmitted to his Majesty's Office of Works."

Captain Gaston also suggests that a fund should be formed for the preservation of Alloway Kirk.

SPEND MILLION ON STOCKINGS IN YEAR

Irish Women's Bill Only Tiny Fraction of Britain's Expenditure

The people of Great Britain in 1924 got through 22,750,000 pairs of stockings and socks. In the 12 years from 1912 the total had increased by nearly eight millions.

These striking figures were quoted by Comyns Carr, K.C., in London to the Government Committee which is considering an application for the imposition of a duty on imported hosiery and knitwear of cotton and wool.

"Making allowance for the increase in population," said Mr. Carr, "that means four pairs per head in 1912 and six pairs per head in 1924.

"Not only did they buy more stockings and socks, but they bought more expensive kinds. Taking manufacturers' prices, they spent 2s. 3d. per head in 1912 and 7s. 6s. in 1924."

£37,000,000 IN ONE YEAR

In 1924 the production, as shown by census, was just under £37,000,000; and last year was the best in regard to unemployment since unemployment registration was introduced.

"Irishwomen spend £1,000,000 annually on silk stockings," said Mr. F. C. Twigg, of Waterford, speaking at a Publicity Club meeting, in Dublin, on the possibilities of new industries in the Irish Free State.

"Think of it, gentlemen! A million pairs of shapely legs insisting upon, say, five million pairs of stockings in a year! Pricing them at an average of 4s. per pair—although I understand some coruscating examples cost up to 30s.—the annual stocking bill of the country amounts to the colossal sum of £1,000,000."

BIRTH RATE LOWEST YET ON RECORD

Steady Decline in England and Wales Since War

The birth-rate of 16.7 per 1,000 of the population in England and Wales during 1927 was the lowest on record.

This fact is revealed in provisional figures issued by the General Register Office.

The infantile mortality rate was 69 per 1,000 births—equal to that of 1923, when the figure was the lowest on record. In 1926 the rate was 70 per 1,000 births.

How steadily the birth-rate has declined since the war is shown as follows:

Year.	Births Per 1,000 Population.
1920	25.5
1921	22.4
1922	20.4
1923	19.7
1924	18.8
1925	18.3
1926	17.8
1927	16.7

other figures for 1927 are:

In 107 county boroughs and great towns, including London, the births per 1,000 population were 17.2; in 155 smaller towns it was 16.5; and in London 16.1.

The death-rate of 12.3 per 1,000 of the population was 0.7 per 1,000 above that of 1926, the excess having been due to the high mortality of the first and fourth quarters of the year.

BLIND "JACK' HAS UNCANNY GIFT OF THE SIGHTLESS!

Can Select and Name Newspapers and Distinuish Coins at Touch

SIXTH SENSE

Tells Names of Streets by Different Sounds in Traffic

The uncanny gifts possessed by the blind are demonstrated in a remarkable way by a country lad, of Ashburton, Devon, who, although totally blind, regularly distributes the various morning and evening newspapers to outlying houses and farms.

I first met "Jack," as he is called, in the Golden Lion Hotel.

The landlord, two local residents, who may be called Mr. X and Mr. Y, and I were sitting with our chairs drawn up to the fire in the hotel when Jack, armed with his bundle of papers, came into the lounge and turned his sightless eyes in our direction.

"Well, Jack, how are you?" called out Mr. X. Immediately Jack replied, "Very well, Mr. X, sir, thank you. Very well."

When the landlord spoke Jack turned towards him and at once greeted him by name.

BE YOU A PARSON?

Whereupon I spoke to him. At once Jack replied in the soft language of the tors, "I don't know you, sir, Who be you? Be you a parson?"

I called for a paper, put a worn half-crown in his outstretched hand and moved away. Solemnly Jack counted out 2s. 5d. change and handed it to me.

I picked up a copy of a newspaper from off the table, and, giving it to him, asked him what paper it was.

He thumbed it carefully and replied correctly.

We tried him with pennies, florins, and shillings. Not once was he at fault.

Next morning I saw him striding up East street on his morning round. To my astonishment he was not carrying the conventional walking-stick of the blind man.

I called out "Hullo, Jack." He stopped, and without a moment's hesitation addressed me by name.

He is, he told me, Jack Rogers, a nephew of Miss Lamason, a tobacconist and newsagent in the town.

"Only one thing troubles me," he added, "and that is motor-car traffic, but as I've only been knocked down twice I mustn't grumble."

I asked him how he managed to distinguish East street from West street, for both streets are similar and run uphill from the centre of the town.

"By the sound of the traffic," he replied. And his customers tell me very rarely is he at fault.

HAWKINS PORTRAIT GIFT TO PLYMOUTH

A portrait of Admiral Sir John Hawkins, the famous Elizabethan seaman, painted about 330 years ago by Federigo Zuccaro, has been bought for presentation to Plymouth, where Hawkins was born in 1532. Hawkins was closely associated with Plymouth during the whole of his adventurous life.

Zuccaro's painting, which bears the date of 1591, is in a fine state of preservation, and has never been restored. Until its purchase a few days ago it had never been out of the possession of the Hawkins family, the last owner being Miss Hawkins, who lives at Torquay.

Sir R. Leicester Harmsworth and Harold Harmsworth are the donors.

MYSTERY CHESTS OF SOUTHEND PIER

Scientific Experiment May Yield Great Britain £2,000,000

Two oak chests that have been fastened to the end of Southend Pier, and have long puzzled visitors, were for a scientific experiment that will probably bring trade worth £2,000,000 a year to the British Empire!

They have proved that certain strong rope which has hitherto always been imported, can now be made in the Empire.

In the chests, which were perforated to let in the water at high tide, were hundreds of yards of British sisal hemp and manila hemp, and for a year their strength and durability have been tested.

Experts appointed by the Imperial Institute have now found that the sisal rope is as good as or better than the manila rope which comes from American dependencies.

HAIR "COOKING" WAS TOO HOT

Judgment for £7 7s. and costs was given at Birmingham County Court in favor of Miss Betty Bailey, aged 21, of Sun street, in a claim for damages against Frederick Cooper, hairdresser, of John Bright street.

She said that while her hair was being "permanently" waved her head was severely burned in several places, particularly on one spot, about an inch in diameter, on which no hair would grow now. The "cooking" operation lasted too long, and her hair-roots had been killed.

After examining the girl's head, Judge Dyer said she had a wealth of hair, and he did not think the injuries would be very serious.

NASMITH PROMOTED TO REAR ADMIRAL

In the list of naval appointments issued by the Admiralty recently appears the name of Capt. M. E. Dunbar-Nasmith, V.C., who is promoted to the rank of Rear-Admiral.

It was Capt. Dunbar-Nasmith who, as a commander, ran the submarine E 11 into the Sea of Marmora in 1915 and destroyed 11 Turkish vessels. "Nasmith of the E 11," as he came to known, first sank a large transport, carrying ammunition. He then chased a supply ship with a cargo of stores and torpedoed her alongside the pier at Rodeste, ran ashore another store ship, and entering Constantinople harbor discharged a torpedo at a transport alongside the arsenal.

Little Stories For Bedtime

Polly and Johnny Chuck Go House Hunting

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
(Copyright)

Johnny Chuck was happy. Yes, sir, Johnny Chuck was happy—so happy that he felt like doing foolish things. You see Johnny Chuck loved Polly Chuck, and he knew now that Polly Chuck loved him. He had known it ever since he had fought with the foolish little dog who had dared to frighten Polly Chuck. After the fight was over and the little dog had been sent home "ki-yi-yi-ing" Polly Chuck had crept out of the old stone wall where she had been hiding and snuggled up beside Johnny Chuck and looked at him as if she thought him the most wonderful Chuck in all the world, as, indeed, she did. And Johnny had felt his heart swell and swell with happiness until it almost choked him.

This time, however, he kept one eye on Polly Chuck.

So now once more Johnny Chuck [illegible] began to think of a new home. He had forgotten all about seeing the world. All he wanted now was a new house, built so, with a front door and a hidden back door and big enough for two, for no more would Johnny Chuck live alone. So, with shy little Polly Chuck by his side he began to search for a place to make a new home.

The more he thought about it the more Johnny wanted to build his house over by the lone elm tree, where he had first seen Polly Chuck.

It was a splendid place. From it you could see a great way in every direction. It would be shady on hot summer days. It was near a great big patch of sweet clover. It seemed to Johnny Chuck that it was the best place on all the Green Meadows. He whispered as much to Polly Chuck. She turned up her nose.

"It's too low!" said she.

"Oh!" replied Johnny, and looked puzzled, for really it was one of the highest places on the Green Meadows.

"Yes," said Polly, in a brisk, decided way. "It's altogether too low. Probably it is wet."

"Oh!" said Johnny once more. Of course he knew that it wasn't wet, but if Polly didn't want to live there he wouldn't say a word. Of course not.

"Now, there's a place right over there," continued Polly. "I think we'll build our house right there."

Johnny opened his mouth to say something, but he closed it again without speaking and meekly trotted after Polly Chuck to the place she had picked out. It was in a little hollow. Johnny knew before he began to dig that the ground was damp, almost wet. But if Polly wanted to live there she should, and Johnny began to dig. By and by he stopped to rest. Where was Polly? He looked this way and that way anxiously. Just as he was getting ready to start to hunt for her she came hurrying back.

"I've found a perfectly lovely place for our new home!" she cried.

Johnny looked ruefully at the hole he had worked so hard to dig, then he brushed the dirt from his clothes and followed her. This time Johnny had no fault to find with the ground. It was high and dry. But Polly had chosen a spot close to a road that wound down across the Green Meadows. Johnny shook his head doubtfully, but he began to dig.

This time, however, he kept an eye on Polly Chuck, and the minute he found that she was wandering off he stopped digging and chuckled as he watched her. It wasn't long before back she came in great excitement. She had found a better place.

So they wandered over the Green Meadows, Polly leading the way. Johnny had learned by this time to waste no time digging. And he had made up his mind to one thing. What do you think it was? It was this: He would follow Polly until she found a place to suit him, but when she did find such a place, she shouldn't have a chance to change her mind again.

Public Showing More Interest in Animals, Humane Society Hears

The public is showing more interest in the work of the Edmonton Humane society, it was reported at the regular meeting of that organization, hld in the Y. W. C. A. parlor, eighteen complaints and inquiries having been received during the past month, it was reported. Mrs. Stanley Bowen presided. Mrs. Graydon, who is in charge of the mite boxes, turned in the contents and expressed gratification in the interest and generosity of the public.

It was announced that Mrs. Sissons, a member of the society, was ill in hospital and a message of sympathy was sent to her.

What's What

By HELEN DECIE

A girl is engaged to a musician whose mother, a native of Poland, speaks only a little English. The fiancee is devoted to her prospective mother-in-law, but, to avoid the embarrassment of broken English in table talk has decided to give a theatre party instead of an engagement luncheon or dinner. The girl's mother will be hostess and the two mothers will be seated together. May an engagement be announced at this sort of entertainment?

The fiancee seems to have solved the problem, so far as table-talk is concerned providing the customary after-the-play repast is to be omitted. Unless the hostess and guests meet in the lobby, and are there informed of the betrothal, it is not easy to see how an engagement could be announced at a theatre party.

Of course, it is not at all necessary to give an entertainment in connection with the announcement of an engagement. Instead, the announcement is sent to the social news editors of the daily papers. Later entertainments given by friends in honor of the bride-elect usually are limited to the younger set.

Weddings

MACKENZIE—MACKENZIE

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends in Edmonton took place in Bloor Street United church, Toronto, on Saturday, February 18, when Ethel Margaret, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. W. MacKenzie, of this city, became the bride of Dr. David Leslie Mackenzie of Toronto, son of the late John Mackenzie of Kincardine, Ontario, and Mrs. Mackenzie.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George C. Pidgeon in the presence of immediate relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom. Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie are spending their honeymoon in the United States and on their return will be at home at 255 Runnymede road, Toronto.

REID—JOHNSON

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Knox United church, Calgary, Wednesday afternoon, when Rev. George A. Dickson united in marriage Miss Esther T. Johnson of Calgary and Mr. James Elmond Reid of Edmonton.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mr. Cyril Hampshire, the bride entered the church and was given away by Mr. C. J. Malcolm. The bride looked charming in a gown of rose biege georgette with hat to match, carrying a bouquet of ophelia roses and sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid left on the afternoon train for Vancouver and Victoria, where they will spend their honeymoon, and on their return will reside in Camrose.

Mrs. Reid before her marriage was a member of the staff of the superintendent's department of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Mahaska's Oldest Old Timer Passes

Exclusive to Bulletin

MAHASKA, Feb. 24—Roderick McKenzie, one of Mahaska's oldest old timers died suddenly at his home here. The old man who was living alone had been working in his chicken house and dropped dead as he was returning to his cabin. He was found later in the afternoon by a neighbor and Constable Mathewson of Edson was immediately notified. Word was also sent to his sister in the States.

His funeral was held Wednesday. The services conducted by Mr. Rickie were held in the schoolhouse. A very large crowd attended as the old man was liked by young and old.

Mahaska sent out a large shipment of stock through the Livestock Pool on Monday.

The masquerade given by the Literary Society was a great success with a large crowd in attendance and a great many costumed in every conceivable way. Miss Jean Cameron and Archie Fairholm won the prizes for fancy dress and Miss Mable Cameron and Wayne Miller carried off the comic prizes.

An epidemic of the 'flu is circulating through the district.

BEAUTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Graying Hair

Dear Miss Leeds—I am a little over 40 years old and am getting quite gray. My hair is also becoming very thin. I wash it about every three weeks and use lemon in the rinse. What can I do to stop my hair from getting so thin?

L.M.

Answer—There are two things you can do to check the thinning of your hair. First, build up your general health, avoiding nervousness, worry and fatigue. Second, give more time to the massage and brushing of your hair. In massaging the scalp, place your right hand firmly on the crown of your head and with the other hand massage the left side of the head upward from the hairline with a brisk, zig-zag motion. Use the right hand to massage the right side of the scalp in the same way. Massage for at least ten minutes. If your scalp is inclined to be dry apply the following tonic twice a week before the massage: one ounce olive oil; 4 drams cologne water; four ounces bay rum, 1 dram tincture of cinchona. I think you would be interested in my leaflet, "Care of the Hair," that gives special suggestions for graying hair. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Improving Thin Neck and Arms

Dear Miss Leeds—I am 18 years old and am very thin. The bones on my neck show very plainly and my arms are also very bony. My measurements are: Height, 5 feet 5 inches; neck, 12 inches; bust, 34; waist, 25; hips, 34; thigh, 17; calf, 12; ankle, 8. I do not work and I sleep ten or eleven hours a day. Can you suggest a way to break this habit and to build up my body?

B. B.

Answer—The average weight for your age and height is between 125 and 128 pounds. Of course it will be necessary to build up your weight before you can fatten the thin neck and arms, but there is an exercise that will help fill out the hollows around your neck. Stand erect and rotate your shoulders forward, down, backward and up. Do this ten times on each side the first day and increase the repetitions daily until you are rotating the shoulders fifty times. Do not fatigue yourself, however. Your measurements, except your ankle, are too thin. Plenty of sleep is very necessary; do not try to keep awake but take naps whenever you feel like it. As you gain strength and normal weight you will not desire to sleep so long. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet on "How to Gain Weight," that gives suggestions on diet and other points of interest to underweights.

Remedy for a Red Nose

Dear Miss Leeds—My nose becomes red when I go out into the cold. This bothers me a lot. How may it be cured?

A. S.

Answer—Of course you know that it is normal for the face to become somewhat reddened when exposed to extreme cold. When the nose becomes very red when exposed to moderate cold, however, the cause is usually poor circulation, underweight or inadequate clothing. Wear thick stockings, stout shoes and lined gloves when the weather is wintry. When you arise in the morning take brisk setting up exercises for ten minutes and then give yourself a hard rubdown with a coarse, dry towel. This will bring a healthful glow to the surface of your body. Walk at least three miles a day out-of-doors. Avoid rich, highly spiced foods and stimulating beverages. Eat plainly cooked, simple foods, including plenty of salads and succulent vegetables. Drink six glassfuls of water daily between meals.

WHY TORTURE THE LITTLE ONES

Mothers, do you think it fair to torture your little ones by forcing them to take ill-tasting oils when they need a laxative medicine? Don't you find that the child's dread of these medicines often do more harm than good?

Baby's Own Tablets are the modern substitute for these neuseous does. They are the very medicine the child requires and are so pleasant to take that they are as easy to administer as a glass of water. They are the perfect remedy for all the minor ailments of little ones, being absolutely guaranteed free from injurious drugs.

Baby's Own Tablets accomplish all that castor oil and other bad-tasting remedies can do. In fact they accomplish more as they do not leave the child exhausted from its struggle against taking medicine. They relieve teething pains, banish indigestion and constipation, break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful, refreshing sleep. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Menus

By Sister Mary

Breakfast—Shredded fresh pineapple, cereal cooked with raisins, cream, waffles, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Scalloped macaroni and fish, cabbage and orange salad, fig cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Spanish steak, twice baked potatoes, creamed cauliflower and carrots, fruit salad, cheese cups, milk, coffee.

Keep in mind the use of carrots as a vegetable "stretcher." They combine excellently with cauliflower and make it possible to serve the more expensive vegetable proportionately often.

Scalloped Macaroni and Fish

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup flaked cooked fish, 3 cups cooked macaroni, 2 hard cooked eggs, 4 tablespoons coarse buttered crumbs.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Season with salt, pepper, parsley and lemon juice and bring to the boiling point. Remove from fire and add fish. Put a layer of macaroni into a well buttered baking dish. Add a layer of sauce and slices of hard cooked eggs. Continue, layer for layer, until all is used. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

Finances of Ryley Village Excellent

RYLEY, Feb. 25—The village of Ryley has just issued its annual financial statement in booklet form, showing the finances in excellent shape.

The current year's receipts were $2,179 while the disbursements were $1,048. The assets are placed at $15,622, and included, cash in bank, uncollected Municipal taxes, uncollected supplementary revenue taxes, fire hall and equipment, lands and other property, athletic grounds. As the liabilities were only $468, it leaves a large surplus of assets.

The property valuation is $200,664.

The total number of lots or parcels of land is 382, while the estimated population of the village is 280.

On Tuesday evening the I.O.O.F. Lodge here put on a banquet for the Rebecca Lodge in honor of their winning the Silver Cup recently in Edmonton. The men put on the whole program of eats etc. A very delightful evening's program was put on.

The snow being so scarce this winter has occasioned fully 1500 acres of brush land to be cut and cleared ready to break up next summer, in the district of Ryley, comprising say ten miles square. Mr. Shaw has rented his farm to Mr. Biford and will take a holiday this summer in clearing many acres on his farm.

HEALTHY FERNS

Never keep ferns in glazed earthenware. They should be raised from the bottom of their pots by putting pebbles of broken crockery under dirt. Give them a shower bath once a week. Never let them stand in a dish of water.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE CAN OBTAIN RELIEF

By Enriching Their Blood With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is thin and impure, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Wet or cold weather may start the pains of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood. Hot applications or rubbing with liniments may ease the pain, but do not reach the cause and the pains are soon back again. To get rid of this most painful trouble you must treat it through the blood and for this purpose nothing else can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which from first dose to last actually make new, rich blood, thus driving the rheumatic poisons from the system. Mr. Henry E. Amiro, Lower East Pubnico, N.S., tells what these pills did for him. He says:—"I had an attack of acute rheumatism so bad that I could not walk a hundred yards without so much suffering that I would feel faint. I could not do the least work, and any movement caused great pain. I was under the care of a doctor but did not improve much. Then reading of a similar case in a newspaper I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By the time I had used three boxes, there was no doubt they were helping me. I took altogether about a dozen boxes when I was entirely relieved of the trouble, able to walk four miles to my work, chop wood all day, and then walk home again. To anyone suffering from rheumatism I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Community Leagues

Mr. J. H. Hare, provincial poultry commissioner, gave an interesting and instructive address on poultry raising before members of King Edward Park Community league, Friday evening. The lecture was illustrated with slides, operated by Mr. V. Runnals, the pictures showing latest approved methods for the raising of poultry in severe climates, and how to obtain the best results from a flock of birds during the winter months. Types of birds most profitable from the commercial point of view were also shown. Attention was drawn to the faults of poor producers and general advice given as to successful poultry raising.

Mr. T. Housley occupied the chair. Mr. George Dewe conveyed the thanks of the league to the guest-speaker for his instructive address.

On Wednesday evening, March 14, Mr. George Buchanan will give an address on horticulture to which all interested are cordially invited.

Wesley Church Gets Shield for Work in Share-Selling Drive

The grand championship shield offered by the Religious Education Council of Alberta to the church in Calgary or Edmonton making the best showing in the unified Star-share selling campaign held February 4 to 11, has been awarded to Wesley church, Edmonton, it was announced Friday.

Results of the campaign will be announced shortly, as there are still a few districts to turn in reports. The provincial shield was won by Drumheller. The objective of the campaign was the sum of $9,000, to be devoted to the young peoples' work of the province.

Mrs. Hilda Pain, of Eburne, B.C., has been awarded the prize of $1,000 for sugesting a name for a magazine for women.

Beautiful Residence of Mrs. Robert Lee Scene of Church Tea

Daffodils and other spring flowers made bright the handsome rooms of Mrs. Robert Lee's residence on Wednesday afternoon and evening when the Ladies Aid of First Presbyterian church entertained at tea.

Mrs. D. G. McQueen, Mrs. M. J. McLeod and Mrs. R. H. Christie received with Mrs. Lee, many callers dropping in for a cup of tea during the afternoon or in the evening.

Mrs. William Barnhouse acted as general convener.

Pink carnations and starry white narcissi in a silver basket were used on the tea table, where, during the afternoon, Mrs. Harold Deeton, Mrs. A. W. Ormsby, Mrs. George Boothe and Mrs. George Massie presided.

Mrs. H. C. McDonald and Mrs. A. D. Grant were in charge of the tea table during the evening. Mrs. John Rae showed the callers into the dining room in the afternoon, and Mrs. P. G. Thomson acted in this capacity in the evening. Assisting were Mrs. Russell Dwenny, Mrs. Eddie McDougall, Mrs. Fulton Gillespie, Mrs. Clifford Crafts, Mrs. Victor Horner, Mrs. Charles Harford, the Misses Marjorie Sinclair, Edith Gavin and Ina Tait.

The den had been transformed into a miniature bazaar, where Mrs. Norman Smith and Mrs. Andrew Leslie sold home cooking, and Mrs. J. E. McDonald and Mrs. J. McIntyre looked after an attractive array of work. Mrs. E. J. Robson was at the candy table.

PAINS ALL OVER BODY

Two More Cases of Feminine Illness Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Barrington, N. S.—"I had terrible feelings, headaches, back and side aches and pains all over my body. I would have to go to bed every month and nothing would do me good. My husband and my father did my work for me as I have two children and we have quite a big place. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then got a little book about it through the mail, and my husband sent to Eaton's and got me a bottle, and then we got more from the store. I am feeling fine now and do all my work and am able to go out around more. I tell my friends it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that makes me feel so well."—Mrs. VICTOR RICHARDSON, Barrington, Nova Scotia.

Dull Pains in Back

St. Thomas, Ont. —"I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found great relief from the dull, heavy pains in the small of my back and the weakness from which I suffered for five years after my boy was born. After taking the Vegetable Compound and using Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash I am feeling better than I have for the past seven years, and advise my friends to take it."—Mrs. F. MADGE BELLAMY IS STARRING IN FILM AT RIALTO

"Very Confidential" Is Latest Hit of Favorite Star

Madge Bellamy, beautiful film star, proved many months ago that comedy-drama is her forte. In "Very Confidential," her new picture which opens Monday at the Rialto theatre for a three day showing she is bubbling with humor and resplendent in some of the most becoming gowns ever seen upon the silver sheet. The story gives Miss Bellamy plenty to do and she does it with a finesse bordering upon genius.

The added feature on the some program is an absorbing tale of the West told in "Terror of the Bar X," the latest starring vehicle of Bob Custer.

Gordinier Players to Present Comedy, "Up in Mabel's Room"

Everything would have been quite all right, because, as a matter of fact, it was a perfectly harmless present Garry had made(if Mobel hadn't appeared at an inauspicious moment, after Garry's wedding, and refused to return his gift when he asked for it; fearful of what might happen should his jealous better-half learn the truth.

This is the starting point of the great Wilson Collison-Bertram Harrison farce comedy, "Up In Mabel's Room," originnaly presented by A. R. Woods with John Cumbetrland in the special attraction at Pantages theatre all next week, with matinees Thursday and Saturday.

The frantic efforts of Garry to secure his gift to Mabel; the stubbornness of the young lady in refusing to oblige him; the stupidity of his associates in their mad effort to assist him, all tend to work to the end of limitless fun.

It has been many a theatrical moon since so funny a play as "Up in Mablé's Room" has been secured for the local theatre-going public, and Manager Gordinier is to be complimented on his achievement, and record-breaking business should be his reward.

BATTALION RAT GIVES BIG IDEA

"Dick Whittington and His Cat" Coming Here to Empire

One of the most interesting stories connected with the latest and most outstanding of pantomime hits F. Stuart-Whyte's 'Dick Whittington and His Cat", is the source of the original idea.

Naturally enough, since Mr. Whyte's reputation as a producer of successful pantomimes, is international, the subject of possible future productions was almost continuously in the back of his mind. One day, he ran across a little native village. The moving-picture group was confronted by battalion after battalion of highly developed rats.

"What a dramatic sort of a situation," one of the party said to Mr. Whyte.

"Dramatic," he repeated, "That gives me an idea."

The idea rapidly developed into Dick Whittington and His Cat and the theatre-goers of Edmonton will soon have the opportunity of viewing at first hand, the results of the brain-wave.

Latest Western Feature Starring Ken Maynard

The bad men of the old west, in spite of their killing instincts, were sometimes heroes to the surrounding community. The famous bad men of California, such as Murrietta, Joaquin and others of that type, robbed only the rich and then gave generously to the poor. These interesting facts of the west are brought out vividly in "Gun Gospel," the latest Western feature starring Ken Maynard, which comes to the Capitol theatre on Thursday.

Divorce statistics indicate that the most dangerous years of married life are the first year and those between the fifteenth and twentieth.

BUBBLING OVER LATEST REVUE WITH DUMBELL

"Bubbling Over", the latest Dumbell's Revue, will be the attraction at the Empire theatre for one week, starting Thursday, March 8.

The same splendid cast of singers, actors and dancers who made "Oo, La, La!" such an outstanding success earlier in the season, have been retained for this ninth annual springtime offering.

That announcement alone is enough to insure crowded houses here, however, we have the added assurance from Vancouver and the west-coast cities that the "Bubbling Over" show is fairly overflowing with good things in the way of entertainment.

The comedy sketches come in for plenty of praise, and the individual song numbers are heartilly approved, while a mineature musical comedy called "Anything To Make You Happy" seems to be making everyone happy.

"Bubfling Over" is described as being as new as the sunrise and just as bright and glorious.

Like every new show in the series of Dumbells' Revues, it must be seen to be appreciated.

"Second to None" Is Coming to Monarch Theatre on Monday

"Second to None," is at the Monarch Monday, the Britannia Films production which features Moore Marriott in the role of the sailor-hero, opens with the burning of a tramp steamer, from which the only survivor is an orphan-girl stowaway who is picked up by the battleship "Bellatrix" and adopted by the vessel's commander.

On the way to the home of the officer, the child meets her former playmate and best pal, Bill, a newspaper boy who is persuaded to become a sailor. Fired with the ambition to be worthy of his sweetheart in her new life, he works hard, becomes a petty officer and returns to renew his boyhood courtship. He finds that the girl has become engaged to the commander of his vessel, and, his hopes dashed, he deserts. The news of the outbreak of the war brings him back to his ship and whilst reconnaitring, the latter unexpectedly discovers a superior enemy force and "hangs on." Successive salvoes of shells make the ship's deck a shambles and his gun put out of action, the hero gallantly goes to the torpedo tubes and registers a direct hit on an enemy ship which turns turtle and sinks.

Chaplin's "The Circus" Is Original Story

Charlie Chaplin, author, star, director and producer of "The Circus", the new low-brow comedy for high-brows, which comes to the Empress theatre soon has once again filmed an original story. Charlie thinks that not any book can be filmed, that a moving picture made from a book necessarily must be a reincarnation, and that the movie should be pudged distinctly from the book.

"You know, I wrot and directed 'The Circus' myself."

GREAT PICTURE COMING HERE

"Old Ironsides" Will Be at Empress Theatre for Three Days

James Cruze's "Old Ironsides," which comes to the Empress theatre beginning next Monday might truly be called a picture of miracles.

Although ten thousand people were engaged during the filming of the Paramount photoplay, not a single serious injury marred the making of the production.

Following are a list of some of the close calls experienced while the picture was being made:

Eight sailing vessels were sunk in a terrific storm off Cape Hatteras while towing them to the Pacific coast for use in the photoplay.

Thre emasts snapped aboard the frigate "Constitution" when the ship was caught in a heavy ground swell.

The entire company was lost at sea in a storm for seventy-one hours.

Six cannons exploded when over-enthusiastic gunners filled them with overcharges of powder during the terrific battle sequences.

Tryon and Patsy Ruth Miller Are Starring Again

The outstanding success scored by Glenn Tryon and Patsy Ruth Miller in the Universal production, "Painting the Town," resulted in the illistrious pair being starred by that organization in "A Hero for a Night," which comes to the Dreamland theatre on Monday as the feature attraction.

According to those who should know, "A Hero for a Night" is even more laughable than the first opus and will establish a new highwater mark for other comedy teams to shoot at. Tryon is a self-made, wise-cracking aviator, who flies to Russia by mistake to show his girl friend how good he is. Patsy Ruth Miller is the girl who eventually agrees with him on that point and several others.

Harry O. Hoyt wrote the story, and he has injected a number of original and laughable sequences that are guaranteed to rock the house with mirth. William James Craft directed with the same skill and carefulness that marked his production of "Painting the Town."

The supporting cast is large and contains the names of some of the best known players on the screen, including Burr McIntosh, Lloyd Whitlock, Ruth Dwyer, Bob Milash and many others.

J. BARRYMORE AT THE CAPITOL

"When a Man Loves" Is Coming Here on Monday

Even without its absorbing story and thrilling action the production of "When a Man Loves", starring John Barrymore, which comes to the Capitol theatre on Monday, would be a great picture because of its sheet pictorial beauty.

Besides its many sided appeal to the imagination it is an ever changing delight to the eye. No expense was spared in the erection of the gigantic settings, perfect and realistic in every least detail. The costumes of a naturally colorful and decorative period are of unparallelled magnificence and beauty. The photography of these by the master who filmed "The Sea Beast" and "Don Juan", accentuates them and suffuses them with a romantic glamor which enchants the mind and gives the spectator the illusion of utter realty.

"When A Man Loves" has as its setting the gay and dissolute Paris of Louis XV when love and chases were the chief occupations of the few and dire poverty the lot of the many. Never has Barrymore essayed a story of more power and heart appeal than this one and Dolores Costello, the adorable heroine of "The Sea Beast", has arisen to even greater dramatic heights.

On the stage Max Fratkin has prepared a musical program with his Capitolians that will even excel his previous high standard and he will be assisted by George and Lily Garden, Premier Xlyophonists.

Mary Brian Delights Her Critics in First Western Production

Mary Brian, who startled the motion picture industry a few years ago with her startling work in "Peter Pan," and who has since continued her success, has been cast opposite Richard Arlen in Paramount's latest Zane Grey production, entitled "Under the Tonto Rim," which comes to the Princess theatre on Monday. This picture marks her first work in a western production.

Because of her work in several pictures in which she played the feminine lead opposite Richard Dix, it was thought she was ideally suited for the role of Lucy Watson, sister of Bud Watson, the government agent, which is played by Jack Luden. Critics who have previewed the wondrous picture from the pen of Zane Grey, perhaps the best known author living today for this type of story, have been loud in their praise of her work.

"I was thrilled when I learned I had been cast as Lucy Watson in Zane Grey's "Under the Tonto Rim,' first, because it was my first western picture, and secondly, I have always desired to be cast in a Zane Grey production," Miss Brian declared in a recent interview. "I never enjoyed working in a picture more than I did this one," she said.

This production also marks Richard Arlen's first work in a western picture. He is fast coming to the front as one of the best scren players in the business.

"Branded Sombrero" Is Coming to the Rialto Thursday

Buck Jones, Fox Films Western star in "The Branded Sombrero," which comes to the Rialto theatre for a three days run, commencing Thursday, is cast as one of the sons of John Hallett, veteran ranch owners.

Buck is puzzled at the determination of his father to retain his old battered sombrero. Efforts on Buck's part to make his father part with the hat, even the offer of a fine new Stetson, meet with steadfast refusal.

Protest From Beethoven Expert Voiced in Europe

A protest against modern pianists' interpretations" of Beethoven is being voiced all over Europe by S. E. Breil, famous Swiss expert on Beethoven. He is particularly annoyed at several Beethoven programs rendered by American pianists in Europe, and insists that "the Americans in their eagerness for something new are trying to make the old masters speak in a modern idiom." To him, this is like a painter putting modern golf clothes on a portrayal of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

Illustrating his point in a review of Elly Ney's performance of Beethoven's Sonata 106, Mr. Breil says in the Basle Anzeiger: "I doubt if many modern pianists understand the true inner meaning of this great work—that is, the meaning that the tone poet felt and put there. It is the highest expression of the priesthood of music. It cannot be altered into an interpretation of modern life and feeling. From a large number of performances of this sonata by famous pianists whom I have heard during the past two years, I choose Elly Ney's version as the only one particularly noteworthy for its fidelity to the Beethoven tradition.

"This sonata must be rendered as if moulded from mighty bronze. Beethoven the hero, the fighter, must be there. Energy and dynamic passion must spring forth, titanic powers of expression must storm through the hall. The Adagio, then, must be played with fundamental depth of feeling, as a touching lamentation or sorrow. Finally, the fugue of this sonata is of such immense technical difficulty, that it is justly feared and dreaded. Ney's rendering of this terrific text makes hers the most outstanding of all the performances that I can recall having heard from any artist."

Canadian Musicians Make Long Jaunt

During a four weeks' tour of the Western states, the Hart House String Quartet of Toronto traveled 6592 miles visited 11 states and gave 15 concerts. So impressed was the musical editor of the Portland Oregonian with their reception that he dubbed them the "Lindberghs of Canada" in tribute to their unofficial capacity as envoys of friendship from the Dominion.

Immediately on their return to Canada they initiated a new feature of their University of Toronto programs by giving a dual recital with Esther Dale, the American soprano. The same program will be repeated in various parts of the United States, following its initial American presentation at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York on January 30. A review of the novelty by the Toronto Globe says:

"Miss Dale displayed a subtle and finished art in a distinguished program of extreme difficulty. The American singer's astonishing command of technical resources showed to advantage. Flexibility, breath control, and the more obvious vocal virtues are required in the Handel number 'Jubal's lyre,' while Rimsky's 'Romance' was her most immediately popular number because in it she chose to draw strongly upon her powers of dramatic expression. Her achievements in the rarer realms of virtuoso vocalism were a revelation to close students of the voice."

ADOPTION OF GOOD

The innate desire of all mankind for a genuine home and harmonious associations hints the existence of a true and immortal relationship. Despite the many discords which mortals have suffered from in their frequently misguided efforts to work out this desire in practice, there remains, none the less, a persistent clinging to the ideal of home, as representing the natural basis and centre for the expression of what is good in experience and activity. It is a noticeable fact, however, that the homes which most nearly approach the ideal of true happiness are those in which the members recognize the spiritual values as of greater importance than mere personal or material possessions or pleasures, and in their living consistently practice the precious virtues of loving-kindness, unselfish affection, gladness, and appreciation.

It was, possibly, the image of happiness presented by such true home experiences that moved Paul to speak of humanity's turning, through Christ Truth to God the Father, as the "adoption of sons," for the sense of sorrow, of aloneness and homelessness, disappears when some realization of the nearness and loving-kindness of God is gained. This need of adoption as children of God has come upon humanity because of its own straying away from the true sense of existence as spiritual. Therefore, its return to the understanding of God as the infinite Father, or divine Love, seems like finding a new relationship, a higher sense of home and heaven.

—Christian Science Monitor.

Tests made by scientists prove that color effects are as follows: red and orange stimulate; deep yellow cheers; green has a slowing effect and white induces irritation.

Concert Givers Need Have Lights Lowered

The editor of the London Chronicle wonders why the theatrical custom of lowering the lights during musical performances has not been adopted by concert givers. He declares that the need seems just as great and perhaps greater in musical halls than in the theater.

He adds: "The first use of this device whice we recall having noticed in London was during the past season, at the three Wigmore Hall recitals given by Esther Dale, the American soprano. Miss Dale produced an effective 'atmosphere' by lowering the lights during each group of songs, enabling her audience to concentrate more easily and to enjoy the music undistracted.

"Absence of visual distractions undoubtedly makes for greater receptivity, and in music it makes easier the process of following the mood of the artist through varying phrases.

"Wager's patron, King Ludwig of Bavaria, who listened to music, himself unseen, was not so mad in this respect as some of his contemporaries thought."

HERE'S A NEW WORD.

Speaking of new words for up-to-date vocabularies, Pianist Anton Rovinsky, whose specialty is concert programs arranged in novel and arresting sequences, labels the garbage-can school of art with the adroit word, "futilism." Felix Salmond, the British cellist, approves the word as "more refined than many I have heard, and just as expressive."

REVISION PROGRAM PRACTICE

The customary procedure of singers in arranging their programs has been reversed by Jerome Swinford, the baritone, in his concerts in New York and Chicago this month. He has begun with a ballad, usually the bluff and hearty "Begone, Dull Care," leaving his more classical arias for the latter part of the program.

SUMMON AMERICAN SINGER

Esther Dale, American concert soprano, has been selected as principal guest artist at the Isle of Man Festival in England next May. This is the first time that an American has been chosen for this honor. The festival is the most important event of the musical season in northern England.

PIANO CIRCUS

Forty Oregon pianists, playing on 20 pianos, participated in an ensemble program recently in Portland, given in honor of Madame Elly Ney, the Beethoven pianist, who appeared as soloist. This musical novelty, appropriately labelled a "piano circus" is a part of a campaign for "bigger and better music" for Portland. It is said to be the largest ensemble of its kind ever presented in public concert.

"Evangelist G. W. White has proven to his Vancouver audiences to be a lecturer of unusual ability. His broad experience on the lecture platform covering a period of 20 years, in more than 30 States and Provinces on this continent, has made him a master of his profession. One marked characteristic of his audiences is the large number of men in constant attendance."—Vancouver Sun.

Noted Continental Lecturer and Evangelist to Deliver a Series of Lectures in Edmonton

Three Lectures each week—on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

The Lectures will cover the whole range of Bible subjects and will create and stimulate faith in the Bible as the inspired Word of God.

The three Lectures of the first week will be on the subject—

"HEAVEN"

SUNDAY NIGHT—"Heaven; What Is It and Where Is It?"

TUESDAY NIGHT—"Two Men That Went to Heaven and Came Back. What Did They Say About the Place?"

THURSDAY NIGHT—"Does the Apostle Peter Keys of Heaven? Is He in Charge of the Gate?"

"Heaven! What Is It and Where Is It?"
OPENING LECTURE

Evangelist White will tell you the exact location of Heaven—What its inhabitants look like—What is there and what is not there—If we will feel badly because some are missing and if we can enjoy Heaven without them. He will read it to you, in the Bible. Do not fail to hear this great opening lecture, even if you have to postpone some other engagement.

Dr. F. Nicholls Heads Fish and Game Association

NEW OFFICERS ARE NAMED AT ANNUAL MEET

Many Visitors Here for Parley From Distant Points

New officers were elected and a very profitable evening was spent by the members of the Northern Alberta Game and Fish Protective league at the Macdonald hotel Friday night.

Officers elected for the coming year were: president, Dr. R. Frederick Nicholls, vice-president, Dr. P. A. McDonald, fish section, C. F. Newall, K. C., big game section, R. H. Baird song bird section, Mr. Cantin; membership, W. F. H. Mason; game bird section, Norman Fraser; secretary-treasurer, Neville R. Lindsay.

At the start of the meeting retiring President H. H. Cooper was in the chair and a rousing welcome was given by him to the incoming executive officers.

Commissioner Speaks

The principal speech of the evening was given by Benjamin T. Lawton provincial game commissioner, who reviewed the principal matters pertaining to Alberta of the things taken up by the interprovincial meeting of game wardens at Ottawa in January.

This body meets about every two years and this year was the first time that Newfoundland ever sent a representative.

At this meeting there were many people from the States and it was most amusing to hear that there was a bag limit proposed from some of these places for rabbits and squirrels.

Destructive Ducks

In speaking of the ducks that destroyed farm crops in Alberta last year, Mr. Lawton said that 52 permits were issued to destroy the same and the estimated damage was $1,255 and the total birds killed under the permits were 612, but that most of the farmers affected were too busy with their crops to do the killing of the birds themselves.

Hungarian partridges, according to the game commissioner, were very numerous in the Viking district and had done considerable damage to crops by flying into them with their wings outspread.

Long Season

Speaking of the interprovincial meet, Mr. Lawton said that it had been pointed out that a hunter could legally start in Alberta on September 15 and follow the ducks and shoot them until January in the southern states, although the daily bag limit in the States was about five birds lower than in Canada.

Driving birds in to the hunter by motor boat was condemned at the meeting.

Some talk of a national game association was favored but it was thought best to perfect provincial associations first and it was thought best to regulate the shipment of trophies by provincial permits as there had been many difficulties in seeding the same to the States.

It was shown that the provincial game authorities had no legal recourse after game had crossed any provincial line.

Rights of hunters on public lands had been interpreted and it was found that without permit they had no rights legally and were trespassers on any land and water that they had no permit for unless they owned the place themselves and it was also shown that the bank of a lake was where the vegetation ceased or where the character changes.

Mountain Sheep

The league has asked that if the boundaries of Jasper park be changed to allow forest preserves, the mountain sheep be protected, but have been informed that the Dominion has nothing to do if any such change is made.

K. A. Blatchford, M.P., and Hon. Charles Stewart have promised every support to the league.

Rainbow trout fry have been asked for all streams west of here and brown trout fry have been asked for all places where they were placed last year.

The federal government has been very favorable to Cold lake being made a sport fishing resort according to the report, and assurance has been given that commercial fishing there will be reduced. Ottawa is anxious to know what bass will do in Alberta waters and the experiments in Lac la Biche are being watched.

Fish Commissioner Rodd was present at the meeting and stated that he thought the large-mouth bass were adapted to Alberta, but the small-mouth ones were out of the question and reported that the C. N. R. was going to stock Lake Wabamun this year, where the water is good and food plentiful.

Game Commissioner Lawton and Fish Commissioner Rodd were voted as permanent members of the league.

Pictures of Alaska were shown by the extension department of the University of Alberta.

"LINDBERGH AGAIN FLIES THE AIR MAIL"

Carrying thousands of letters, all marked with a special stamp: "Lindbergh Again Flies the Air Mail," Col Charles Lindbergh on Feb. 20 was to span his old mail route between Chicago and St. Louis. The ocean spanner and messenger extraordinary of good will to the world at large, expressed a desire to go over the familiar route, partly as a tribute to the training he received as a regular mail flyer before his trans-Atlantic flight. Here is shown the plane he was to use, which is very similar to his Spirit of St. Louis. Inset shows Lindy with a sack of mail.

PASTOR AT RED DEER RESIGNS

Exclusive to Bulletin

RED DEER, Feb. 25—Rev. J. W. Churchill pastor of the United church at Red Deer has tendered his resignation to the officials of the church, to take effect in June. Mr. Churchill has been in the pulpit of this church for five years and he and his wife have won for themselves a lasting place in the hearts of many Red Deer folk who will see them leave this town with regrets.

Other business coming before the board was the election of new officers for the board, these being: Recording steward Mrs. J. J. Gaetz; Envelope Steward, M. D. G. Horn; Treasurer, W. E. Payne. The reports received from various church societies the women's missionary auxiliary the Sunday school and the ladies' aid society all showed encouraging progress.

To Present Play

The Red Deer community players are presenting a three act comedy entitled "Cappy Ricks" at the Crescent theatre on Wednesday and Thursday nights, March 7 and 8.

Mrs. F. W. Jaynes is the efficient director of these players who yearly stage a very creditable performance the proceeds of which are devoted to some useful community service, in this case towards the funds of the proposed swimming pool.

The cast of the play is composed of young people well known locally with Mr. Chase Collins in this instance in the leading role of Cappy Ricks. The other persons included in the play are Mrs. J. T. Holmes, Miss Page Houston, Miss Marion Jarvis, Messrs. Trevor Harris, Sherrill Welliver and Lyman Welliver.

The Misses Dorothy Morton, Francis Trueman, and Anna Trueman are putting on some attractive Hawaiian dances in between acts of the play.

Fierce Fighting in Guadalajara State

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 25.—Special dispatches from Guadalajara report that two rebels were killed when police broke up an attempt to obtain ammunition in that city. A running fight through the streets which lasted half an hour followed the entry of a band of about thirty who were alleged to have sought munitions left in a house by their agents. With the exception of those killed, the rebels escaped without having obtained the munitions. Alfonso Moya and two women were later arrested on charges of complicity.

Report Shows Health of City Splendid

The lowest weekly incidence of communicable diseases recorded for several years in this city is shown in the report which was submitted to the city commissioners Friday afternoon by Dr. T. H. Whitelaw. The total number of cases reported was 14 as compared with 36 for the previous week.

Five cases of scarlet fever are shown, a decrease of 3 from last week, while not one case of diphtheria has been reported during the past seven days. Chickenpox and mumps with four and three cases respectively, make up the list.

Statistics show that the average British woman now is 5 feet [illegible] inches tall, has a "pull" of 183 pounds and a grip of 58 pounds.

Regimental School.—The regimental school inaugurated to afford a thorough groundwork of cavalry drill and tactics to newly engaged recruits and as a refresher to already trained men, has been enthusiastically taken up. The syllabus of training, which is now in its third week of operation, has been planned by the officer selected as chief instructor to cover not only the drill movements from a primary individual department training to the more intricate collective regimental drill, but also by a series of lectures to deal with the tactical and strategical use of cavalry both as an arm and in conjunction with other arms.

The subjects of these lectures have been decided and the delivery of them has been allotted to the various officers of the regiment who will by this method enlarge their knowledge of the subject by study and gain experience in propounding theories to their commands.

The senior non-commissioned officers have also been allotted certain lectures, these being subjects more particularly within the province of the non-com. to instruct.

The system of mutual instruction has been provided for, and will enable the junior N.C.O.'s and the smarter trooper to demonstrate his fitness for promotion. This side of the training is being carefully watched, and will govern future promotions throughout the regiment.

All regimental duties during the school are being detailed by roster to enable junior officers and N.C.O.'s to become familiar with them.

New recruits are presenting themselves at each parade, and while there are still several vacancies to be filled both in "A" and "B" squadrons, applicants are urged to present themselves early in order that they may receive the benefit of the training now in operation.

Next week being the fourth week of the syllabus, a "general knowledge review" will be held when each member of the school will be tested in the work already accomplished. It is confidently expected that the majority will pass this test but a second class will be formed for those who from inability to attend all parades are below the passing standard. Newly engaged recruits will be included in this class to which special attention will be given in order that they may catch up with the senior class by the next review parade.

The syllabus provides for mounted work both in the form of drill and in field schemes as the weather conditions permit, and providing the same enthusiasm and attention to detail is shown by all ranks, should so prepare the regiment for camp that our work there should not only be a pleasure but should ensure the Efficiency Cup being captured and brought to Edmonton.

A highly diverting and extremely valuable piece of training will be undertaken, as soon as material is available, in the form of a sand table, upon which portions of local terrain will be produced in relief and practical schemes worked out by the aid of models.

It is hoped to inaugurate a series of schemes in which various arms of the service as represented in the Edmonton garrison, will compete or combine.

The probability of annual training being extended to cover a period of twelve days, commencing approximately on July 1st should be noted by all ranks and an early endeavor made to arrange with employers for the necessary vacation.

Regimental Notes

D. C. R. A. league shoot.—The 19th A. D. Rifle association held their second D. C. R. A. shoot at the Connaught Armories on Thursday evening, Feb. 16. About fourteen marksmen turned out, including a few new marksmen who promise to uphold the reputation of the 19th in shooting. Trooper Skell and Trooper Williams both made good scores and should improve when they become accustomed to the new "bull's-eye."

Indoor shooting is a good preliminary training for the outdoor work in the spring, and young shots are advised to turn out to the Thursday night shoots so that we can have some good teams for the provincial shoot next summer.

VISITORS WIN MANY PRIZES AT RED DEER

RED DEER, Alberta, Feb. 25.—After three well filled days of fine curling on eight of the keenest sheets of ice played on locally, icemaker Bruno Krause being responsible and receiving the congratulations from all the curlers, Red Deer's annual bonspiel came to a hard played finish on Friday night, there being one local man on the trophy list.

The finals found four Red Deer handlers of the rocks and brooms in the double draws, against four outside rinks, proving the excellence of the home town players, as there were only nine rinks of Red Deer men entered at the start, against fifteen visiting sets. Outside rinks were as follows: Innisfail, three; Lacombe, three; Evarts, two; and one each from Edmonton, Ponoka, Castor, Didsbury, Sylvan Lake, Little Red Deer and Calgary. Secretary Joe LaFrance deserves great credit for the success of the 'spiel.

Grand Challenge—Clarke, Red Dere, beat Parsons, Red Deer. Thompson, Ponoka, beat Welliver, Red Deer.

Thompson with A. Crawford, H. B. Edwards and W. Russell, beat Clarke in the finals.

Real Estate—Clarke, Red Deer beat Chisholm, Lacombe; Reed, Red Deer, beat Fulton, Red Deer.

Reed, with H. E. Bawtinheimer, A. E. Cornfield and H. N. Blades, beat Clarke in the finals.

Henry Birks—Munn, Red Deer, beat Clarke, Red Deer; Mather, Castor, beat Freeman, Innisfail.

Dun and Mather are to play off this draw at Castor some time next week.

Consolation—Freeman, Innisfail, beat Munn, Red Deer.

Scott, Calgary, beat McLevin, Red Deer; Hary Scott, with A. Hol[illegible], F. Avery and E. Woodrock beat Freeman in the finals.

Two lady curling teams skipped by Mrs. O. Boodle and Mrs. D. Chisholm came to Red Deer on Friday to play the local lady sweepers for the first double game for the Red Deer wholesalers trophy. The Red Deer teams skipped by Mrs. G. H. Lindsay and Mrs. E. Grey, won handily, 13-4, 17-8. The local teams go to Lacombe next week to play the return games for the cup.

SEEK REPEAL OR REDUCTION THEATRE TAX

With petitions ready for signature in every theatre lobby in Alberta and with resolutions now going through the various trades unions and other organizations calling for a reduction if not the abolition of the Amusement Tax in this province theatre owners are preparing to call on the provincial cabinet and make representations setting forth their stand in the matter.

"The people who pay the amusement tax are just the ones who cannot afford it since the cheaper forms of entertainment are their only possible pleasure," declared W. J. Long, secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners association of Alberta.

War Time Measure

"It seems only fair to me that this tax should be abolished because it was originally imposed as a war time measure and the money raised by it was never used for the purpose for which it was instituted.

"In view of the fact that nearly all the provinces in Canada have materially reduced the tax the Legislature of Alberta should lead the way by abolishing it on all tickets up to 50 cents. In this way they would relieve the burden which rests wholly on those who cannot afford it.

"I have seen people come to the ticket office to buy a seat and on being told that the tax was so much they would pick up their money and walk away. This clearly illustrates the fact that people are disgusted by still having to pay such an imposition.

"A great interest is being taken in the signing of the petitions and we expect to have from 75,000 to 100,000 signatures by the time we present it to the Legislature. In the meantime we feel quite confident that as we have such a good case there is every possible chance that the legislature will approve our petition."

DULL SEASON FOR WORKERS

Now is the dull time between seasons at the provincial employment bureau, but demands from the farms and bush amount to between 25 and 30 vacancies a day.

Just now many of the bush camps are closing down everything but hauling operations and the bushmen are beginning to come into the city in fair numbers. Many of them have homesteads or farms and are going onto them to get ready for the spring cropping, but a number will go out on farm or construction work and will have their annual holiday in Edmonton till the spring work starts.

There is no unusual unemployment for the time of year was the report from the bureau, and a strong demand for labor is anticipated.

The Athabasca Construction and Sawmills Ltd. has asked the supreme court for a lien on logs and lumber on timber berth No. [illegible] which the company [illegible] for the [illegible] Lumber company from Dec. 1 to date. The amount claimed owing is $9375.

MOTOR CARS FOR THE FEW

Annual Auto Salon Shows Elaborate and Expensive Models

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Highly embossed invitations have brought members of the Park Avenue and Long Island elite to this year's annual automobile salon at the Hotel Commodore.

For right at the foot of New York's exclusive and luxuriant avenue are gathered the latest creations of the world's masters in coachwork and automobile manufacture. This is the auto show of society, the one from which, it is said, new ideas will come for use on the more popular models one or two years later.

Guarding jealously their secret [illegible] until the opening hour, the exhibitors at this salon pride themselves in the singularity and [illegible] of their products. Most seem to follow a general trend toward convertible or all-weather bodies, as well as the sporty phaeton or roadster type of car. But every exhibit on the ballroom floor of the Commodore has some unique features that reflect the peculiar characteristics of its designer and builder.

Cost is only secondary in this great display. The cars shown [illegible] of the most expensive and exclusive vehicles in the world. One foreign car, the Isotta-Fraschini straight eight, is equipped with a cabriolet body by Fleetwood, and is priced at $22,000, and several others cost little less than that.

What's $22,000

What is of primary importance is the custom body construction of [illegible] American and six European coach builders. For this is essentially a body exhibition.

Each body reflects wealth, superiority and refinement. Every little appointment within is made sedulously for those who are accustomed only to the finest. Bright colors, sweeping lines and handsome trimmings combine to give the vehicles a dashing air, and [illegible] is enhanced by expensive fittings and decorations.

Every thought is given to the desires of those in position to buy these cars. There is storage space for golf bags, for instance, just behind the rear seat. In some of the cars a small cabinet for glasses and refreshments is found, and even a miniature ice chest is included.

Upholstering is Expensive

Many are upholstered in reptile skins, from python to lizard leather, [illegible] are [illegible] in appearance and very durable. [illegible] have needle-point interiors [illegible] highly expensive broadcloths.

The high seat backs of some of the phaetons are set at an angle to allow for deep cushioning and greater comfort. [illegible] rests are supplied in the car for use when only one or two passengers are riding in back.

Doors are wide. Folding windshields are provided for rear passengers of the convertible phaetons. And some cars even have a deck over the rear that raises to permit passengers to enter.

Fourteen of the cars on show are making use of non-shatterable glass in windshields.

Set Up Like Home

Down-filled cushions on the rear seat, sewed to keep them in shape, [illegible] is an innovation in upholstery [illegible] comfort.

In short, the interiors of the new [illegible] have been decorated as if they were small drawing rooms. The seats have been done in figured designs, the side walls and ceilings left plain and the trimming and laces made just elaborate enough to set off the whole. Vanity cases and smoking sets are in harmony with the interior decoration.

Just as exquisite as the interior is the external design of each car. The lines and color combinations tend to form a highly satisfactory and harmonious body. All contribute to a flashy and delightful appearance.

Four exhibits of these cars have been planned for this year. The one in New York is the first. The next is at the [illegible] from Jan. [illegible] to [illegible]. The [illegible] will be at the Hotel Biltmore, Los Angeles [illegible] and the fourth at the [illegible] San Francisco [illegible] to March [illegible]

Bert Pendleton and [illegible] of [illegible] Auto Sales returned this morning from Regina where they have been attending the Oldsmobile dealers convention, which was held in that city Tuesday and Wednesday. About seventy-five dealers from as far as [illegible] Francis, Ont., and West as far as Cranbrook, B. C., were in attendance. Bert enjoyed his first ride in the New Oldsmobile and he [illegible] in his opinion that there is nothing to equal it for the price, on the market today, for appearance, easy riding and mechanical features. CHANDLER HAS WESTINGHOUSE VACUUM BRAKE

First American Car to Install This System on All Models

"It is a proud event in Chandler history for Chandler to be the first automobile in America to adopt Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes for its entire line of new 1928 models," says Sid Black, vice-president of the Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation.

"Every model in the new Royal Eight, Big Six and Special Six series will carry Westinghouse vacuum brakes at no extra cost.

"The application of the vacuum type brake to the motor might seem new to the American public," says Mr. Black, "but it is not new among European motor car buyers. Abroad, the leading and most expensive cars such as Mercedes, Daimler, Minerva, Sunbeam, Isotta Franchini and numerous other [illegible] are equipped with this type of brake. What is more, for the last fifty-nine years Westinghouse brakes have been used on steam and electric trains, subway cars and busses, where the need for absolute safety has always been the greatest.

"The big outstanding difference of Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes as compared to the average type brake is that the same amount of pedal pressure that one would apply with the average car, produces treble braking action with Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes. Physical effort is reduced to the minimum. Although the brakes are powerful acting they are [illegible] responsive as a hair trigger, [illegible] ing to Chandler engineers. The pressure of two fingers on the brake pedal will stop the car.

"The action of stopping a Chandler equipped with vacuum brakes is achieved without jerking, skidding or sideway. These are accomplished by the manipulation of the foot pedal in the usual manner but with one-third the effort that is ordinarily required because the foot pressure is supp[illegible] a power unit acting in unison with the braking system.

"Chandler officials feel that with the movement being sponsored nationally for greater safety, Chandler should with its adoption of Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes, enjoy the hearty endorsement of the motoring public."

The largest map in the world is in San Francisco; it cost $100,000 and took 18 months to complete.

STUDEBAKER TO OFFER PRIZES FOR OLD CAR

Contest Open to All Studebaker Owners Anywhere in Canada

A veteran car contest, its purpose to discover the oldest Studebaker car still in service, has just been launched by The Studebaker Corporation through the medium of the Studebaker Wheel, a monthly magazine for motorists.

This was the statement made here today by J. S. McCallum, local Studebaker-Erskine distributor.

"Studebaker already boasts a little more than 1000 members in its famous Hundred Thousand Mile Club—a unique organization composed entirely of owners who have driven their Studebaker cars over 100,000 miles," said Mr. McCallum, "but they are looking for the oldest Studebaker in captivity that is still carrying on.

The contest is restricted to Studebaker owners or members of their families—no Studebaker dealer or employe being allowed to enter a car. All that is necessary to enter the contest, according to the local dealer, is to take a picture of the car with the owner and have either a notary public or a Studebaker dealer attest to the fact that it is still running. The photograph and statement, in addition to the motor and serial numbers and the date of purchase of the car are to be sent to the Veteran Contest Editor, The Studebaker Wheel, Walkerville, Ontario.

J. S. McCallum, of McCallum Motors, who is staging a most attractive exhibit of the new Studebaker and Erskine cars today and all next week.

"The older and funnier they look, the better—Just so they are Studebakers and still running," said Mr. McCallum.

There are five cash prizes offered the winners. First prize, for the oldest car, will receive $50; second prize, $25; and three honorable mention prizes of $10 each. The contest closes midnight, April 30.

Pigeons have been known to attain a speed of over a mile a minute.

NEW FUEL APPROVED

Ordinary gasoline mixed with 20 to 30 per cent of anhydrous alcohol has been approved by the American Chemical Society as a superior motor fuel. Cars using it operated smoothly, had an easy pickup and were free from knocks.

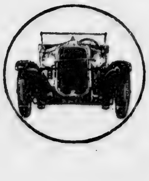
"The Most Amazing Thing that Pontiac Six has ever done"

Combining New Elements of Style, Beauty and Performance



THE world expects much of the Six which has created such spectacular records of success in its first and second year . . . and, in the New Series Pontiac Six, the enthusiastic anticipations are more than realized.

Beyond question, this is the most amazing thing Pontiac Six has ever done . . . it is a thing that only Pontiac Six, backed by the almost unbounded engineering and manufacturing facilities of General Motors, could do.

The New Series Pontiac Six is the last word in stylish design, with new and vividly beautiful Fisher Bodies, finished in rich new harmonies of genuine Duco, its imposing appearance enhanced by the new, higher, narrower radiator, the massive full-crown fenders and the newly-designed headlamps.

In mechanical and engineering advances the New Series Pontiac Six presents no less amazing progress. Greater power and smoothness have been secured by a unique combination of refinements, including the new GMR "blue-streak" cylinder head, new fuel pump, new carburetor with accelerating pump, new manifolds and many other features.

In comfort and luxury, the New Series Pontiac Six attains a new high record with its more handsome interior appointments, its rich upholstery, its smooth-riding, easy-driving qualities, the security of its self-equalizing four-wheel brakes.

Most amazing of all . . . these revolutionary refinements are offered at amazingly low prices . . . a further evidence of the General Motors policy of using success as the stepping stone to further progress.

Come in today . . . see this car which wins the distinction of being the greatest thing Pontiac Six has ever done.

CABRIOLET IS WHIPPET POPULAR MODEL

The Whippet Cabriolet Coupe being shown at the automobile show, is occupying a conspicuous place among the most popular four-cylinder cars being exhibited there. A new and distinctive note of style together with unique features in design are embraced in this new model which is an addition to the Whippet line of motor cars, manufactured by the Willys-Overland Company of Toronto, Ontario

The Cabriolet Coupe, a two-type car, is mounted on the low swung Whippet chassis, the body as a whole presenting a trim and sporty appearance. In addition it provides the protection of a closed car together with the freedom of the open roadster.

Four passengers are easily accommodated in this car, two in the front seat and two in the rumble seat, which is built into the rear deck.

Encased sponge rubber weather stripping is used to assure an entirely weatherproof body when the top and windows are up. In an operation that takes but a moment the Cabriolet Coupe can be converted from an entirely closed model to an open roadster. This is done by merely folding the collapsible top which fits into a trim boot.

One of the features of this model is the provision for the removal of the panel at the rear when the top is raised. This permits the occupants in the rumble seat to converse freely with the passengers in the front compartment, thus giving a distinct air of chumminess to the car. When the top is lowered the side windows which are set in nickeled frames may be raised, [illegible] three-sided windshield. Automatic windshield cleaner, rear view-mirror and stop light have been added as standard equipment

Fine leather upholstery in the interior adds to the smartness of the Cabriolet Coupe. Landau bows and the top of genuine Burbank material are among the custom car refinements which enhance the individuality of the car

The high standard of performance of the Whippet line of motor cars is maintained in the Cabriolet Coupe according to officials of the Willys-Overland Company. Noted for its [illegible] and fuel economy, power and speed it also embraces numerous features and advantages found in cars selling in a higher priced field. These features include Bendix 4-wheel brakes, increased roominess, low center of gravity to provide greater road stability, higher speed, more power, faster acceleration, force feed lubrication system, silent timing chain, adjustable steering column, oversize balloon tires and snubbers on the front springs.

Willys-Overland officials declare that in the design of the Whippet Cabriolet Coupe, an advanced step has been taken, striking a new idea of value in the light car field

MECHANICAL COP

A new method of traffic control not unlike our traffic lights, is being tried out at Leeds, England. The device consists of a signpost with four arms, bearing the signs, "Pass" and "Stop". On top of the post is a clock. The clock is set for a length of time and at the end of that period, the arms turn round, opening traffic in the opposite direction.

LET THE BUYER BEWARE!

WATCH THE PUMP

Most gasoline station attendants are [illegible] upright [illegible] who want to please you as best they can.

But sad experience in many cities and along the highways have led automobile club officials to sound a general warning to motorists to watch the pump when they order gasoline. They have found [illegible] attendant [illegible] short measured motorists from a quart to a gallon in every order of five gallons of gas.

And they have discovered [illegible] every one of short measure [illegible] when the motorist remains at his seat in the car and casually [illegible] "fill 'er up." [illegible] to the [illegible] his money. [illegible]

It [illegible] for an attendant to take advantage of [illegible] He [illegible] off the valve before [illegible] of the pump [illegible] leaves [illegible] Or he forgets to drain the hose, remembering later to drain it into another's car.

The remedy is to get out and stretch. At the same time an eye might be kept on the pump on its indicator and on the hose.

The "Why" of Willys-Knight Superiority

THE most important development in modern motor car engineering is the sweeping trend towards the high compression motor. High compression gives more power, insuring greater speed and the flashier activity so vital under today's traffic conditions.

Many high compression motors require special and more costly gas to prevent "knocking," even after limited mileage. With the Willys-Knight, you can USE ANY GAS.

The patented Knight sleeve-valve engine, because of the exclusive, fundamental principle of its design, gives not only high compression, but uniform compression. The result is a smooth, even flow of power—at all times, at all speeds.

See and drive this finer Willys-Knight at your earliest opportunity. Admire its beauty, relax amid its luxury, and thrill to its performance.

Willys-Knight Sixes range in price from $1,480 to $1,695. All prices are f.o.b. Factory, Toronto. :: Taxes extra.

But unlike other occupations, it doesn't get monotonous. It's full of life. And there's much cause for laughter on the frozen faces of many traffic judges.

ENGINEERS TRY TO COMBAT KING WINTER

Make Study to Keep Famous Mountain Pass Open All Year

[illegible], Ore., Feb. [illegible]—One [illegible] in the heart of the Cascade mountains, the wits of man are fighting the stubborn stand of nature for the possession of the McKenzie pass in Oregon.

The battle will not be won, nor lost, in a single year. It is too mighty a warfare for that. But the campaign is definitely on.

For years there has been but one highway through the Cascade [illegible] Washington [illegible] down into California [illegible] open to [illegible]. Only one [illegible] highway [illegible] with the [illegible].

[illegible] the Co[illegible] Columbia [illegible] Seaside and Astoria [illegible] to Portland [illegible] Washington east [illegible] Idaho and thence to the Rocky Mountain states, the midwest and the east.

Favorite Summer Route

The McKenzie highway is a favorite route in summer, not only because [illegible] scenic [illegible] but because it [illegible] shortest route from the Pacific highway inland for all the [illegible] country between Portland and the California line. But in winter, when the snows fly, the pass has been closed.

A traffic count, taken on the McKenzie highway, showed that an average of nearly 800 cars daily travelled the route during summer. [illegible]

[illegible] direction of [illegible] Bend state highway commissioner.

Snow Falls Deep

[illegible] poles and highway guide [illegible]

[illegible] to perfection.

But along the highway at the summit and in some level places the winds would drift the snow away from the roadway until the ground was completely bare, and the snowplow was stuck at those points. The bare patches of highway were uncertain, since the winds would shift the drifts, and even snow fences and snow breaks helped little.

This year, until late November, moldboard plows were used to scrape the snow from the highway. Then scrapers distributed the snow away from the edge of the road, where the moldboard plows had deposited it and the situation worked to perfection.

But a fall of nearly four feet of snow in a single night proved too much for the moldboard-scraper equipment, and winter conquered again. The pass was declared closed to traffic, and the study was started.

For some time the engineers can get fairly close to the pass with teams and motors. Later, however, the only means will be by snowshoes. But all through the winter, in storm and in calm, the study will go on, and next year, it is hoped, the work of checking the snow will be successful, and the highway will be kept open.

CANADIAN FORD PLANT IN PRODUCTION

Output Increases and Public Deliveries to Be Made in March

FORD, Ont., Feb. 25—When interviewed by the press regarding production on the new Ford car W. R. Campbell, vice president and treasurer, Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Limited said: "Our production department here is now functioning in the manufacturing of Canadian-built model A's. At the present time our problem is to coordinate the production of our motor and chassis assembly lines with our body production. All three of which are producing in daily increasing quantities."

Questioned about the production of the assembly branches at Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, Mr Campbell replied: "Parts are being shipped to these branches this month and as they have been ready for assembly work it will not be long before they will be into regular production, which will augment our total daily figures considerably." Referring to total daily production figures, Mr. Campbell added: "Our previous daily figure of 800 cars a day will soon be reached and by March deliveries will be made to the public in strict rotation."

The Canadian content of the new car was pointed out by Mr. Campbell. "Every bit of material used in the new car is purchased in Canada except where that article cannot be supplied by a Canadian firm."

When asked about the performance of the new car, Mr. Campbell refered to the lengthy order list now on hand. "Many police departments throughout the Dominion have placed their approval on the new car and have backed up their recommendations by actual orders which in several urgent cases, we have filled."

"Our task of practically reorganizing the production departments of the Ford Motor Company of Canada," concluded Mr. Campbell, "Extends throughout the British Empire. The affiliated companies in Australia, South Africa, Singapore and India must also be changed over to our new production requirements and we hope to have all our plants and branches in full production shortly."

Among the business visitors noticed on the "Row" this week was Ralph E. Hill of San Francisco, Cal., District Sales Manager for Marmon Motor Cars.

• • •

Fred Chorley, Dominion Motors local Ford Dealer, is all smiles today. Ford has just learned that the first carload of the New Model A Fords, consigned to Edmonton for delivery to the public, left Ford Ont., several days ago. Further shipments are expected to leave the factory at regular intervals from now on.

• • •

George Riach, Vice-President and General Manager of Motordrome, Ltd., who, with Mrs. Riach has been holidaying for the past month at Victoria, B. C., returned home Tuesday. Mr. Riach says he thoroughly enjoyed every minute of his stay at the Coast and particularly his daily golf game on the famous Colwood links. The weather has been exceptionally fine and the good citizens of Victoria have been cutting grass on the lawns for some time, and all the spring flowers were in bloom. Although he thinks there is no place just like Edmonton, George states he really did hate to leave the coast.

• • •

Bill Giddy, of Edmonton Motors has it all figured out and says "One reason for the increasing number of automobile accidents is that there are too many one-cylinder minds driving six-cylinder cars."

• • •

One thing we notice: You can say this for some Edmonton motorists. They are always willing to concede that pedestrians have the right to get out of the way.

BUS TERMINAL ON ROOF

A new garage built for the Eighth and Ninth Avenue Railway Company of New York will have a bus terminal on the roof at the level of the 155th street viaduct. This will enable buses to make direct connections with the elevated lines.

The approximate geographical center of the United States is located at a point in the eastern part of Smith Co., Kansas.

The electric unit known as the volt takes its name from Alexander Volta, who made the first voltaic battery.

New Canadian Edition OF STUDEBAKER'S ERSKINE SIX

Larger, roomier, more powerful and at a new low price

$995

F. O. B. Walkerville, Ont.
Government taxes to be added

ATTEND the special New Year's party being held in our showroom today—the most important automotive event of the year—a pre-view showing of the new Canadian edition of the Erskine Six!

This new Erskine Six is built for Canada. Designed to fit Canadian needs. Fitted to Canadian standards. More spacious. More brilliant in performance. Beautiful! Luxurious! Fashionable! Yet lower in price—a remarkable and unmatched value at $995.

Designed and engineered by the same men who made Studebaker's Commander and Dictator the champion "sixes" of the world! Headed by Dr. G. Roos, formerly chief engineer of Pierce-Arrow, Locomobile and Marmon, and W. S. James, former head of an important section of the U. S. Bureau of Standards. A bigger, more powerful engine—smooth, sure speed in abundance at your bidding—the greatest performing engine of its horsepower ever designed!

This is the engine which sent an Erskine Sedan, fully equipped, 1298.484 miles in 24 hours—in a test under the sanction and observation of the American Automobile Association. Better than 54 miles per hour for 24 hours—a record unequalled by any stock car in the same price class.

Compare this new Canadian edition of the Erskine Six with cars costing from $250 to $500 more. Note its generous roominess—doors nearly a yard wide—back seat 48 inches wide—36½ inches from seat to ceiling. Plenty of leg and head room even for six-footers. Comfortable to stretch out in. Passengers and driver ride all day without fatigue! But mere printed words fail to describe the actual ability of this new Canadian edition of the Erskine Six. Come in and see it, then try it out yourself!

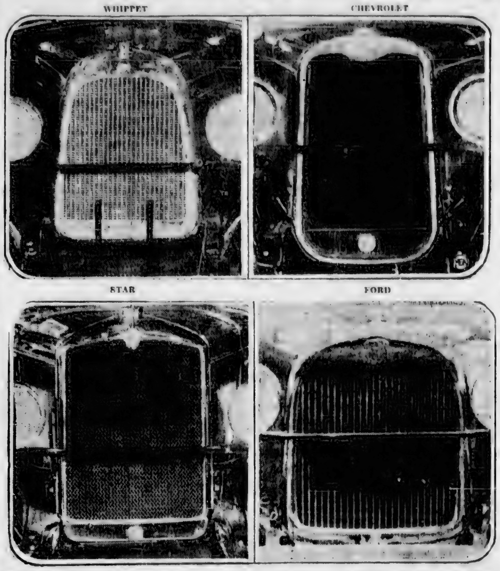
Battle Fronts of Little Scrappers Now in the Automobile Price War



They're all shined up for the imminent price war, are these 1928 models of the leading small cars, photoed here at the New York Automobile Show. And what a battle it will have become along about May when the weather warms and the open road beckons! Look close and you will recognize their battle fronts as the somewhat modified radiators of the Whippet, the Chevrolet, the Star and the Ford.

STUDEBAKER NEW MODELS NOW ON VIEW

Studebaker scores another outstanding triumph in its latest contribution to the art of fine car building. The New President—which, with the famous Commander and Dictator models, were given their first Edmonton showing yesterday by McCallum Motors, newly appointed Studebaker and Erskine Six distributors for Northern Alberta at the remodeled showrooms, 100th Street and 102nd Ave.

The result of two years development, the New President model is all that could be desired by the most particular car owner, speed with safety, pleasing lines and color combinations, luxurious in appointments and equipment. It offers everything that has only heretofore been found in cars at a much higher price. It is a car fully qualified to carry on Studebaker's seventy-six year old tradition of quality.

Notable changes are seen, also, in the Commander and the Dictator models over that of last year. New and pleasing lines, more room and a fine finish in appointments make these popular cars even greater values than ever before.

No less interesting in the splendid exhibit staged by McCallum Motors is the New Canadian Edition of Erskine Six, specially designed by Studebaker engineers for Canadian taste and Canadian roads. Larger, roomier and more powerful, with a higher clearance than formerly, the Erskine-Six will appeal to those who favor the small car and yet desire the utmost in reliability, appearance and finish.

The exhibition will be continued all next week and should prove a pleasing event for all lovers of the finest motor cars.

GREATER VALUE IN AUTOMOBILES SAYS VELIE

The automobile of today is 250 per cent more efficient than the motor car prior to the war and its value is being recognized more and more by the public, according to Mr. W. L. Velie, Jr., Vice President of the Velie Motor Corportaion, Moline, Illinois.

Mr. Velie points out, in confirmation of this statement, that a few years ago, the average automobile had nowhere near the life, power, or economy of the present day car, simply because the manufacturer and the engineer did not know how to build in such a manner that his costs would be commensurate with the retail price of the car.

"Today," Mr. Velie says, "the average automobile in the $1200 class gives as efficient service, both as to economy and its actual operation, as the car of 12 years ago costing four and five thousand dollars.

"Precision manufacture of the automobile has become such a fact that none of the larger companies today build anything but a quality product. Take the case of Velie. Quality was the prime requisite in the designing of the first Velie car in 1908, and the company has maintained this definite policy down through the years to the present day.

"This quality is evident by the fact that over 73 per cent of all the Velie cars built in our 20 years history are still in service.

DODGE POLICY IS EXPANDED

With the recent announcement of the Victory Six by President E. G. Wilmer, it becomes evident that Dodge Brothers, Inc., has definitely entered upon a policy of diversification after many years during which the company operated in a single price field. Mr. Wilmer stated that the announcement of the Victory Six was the final step in an extensive program of readjustment which the company has been undergoing for the last year and a half, conducting its current business without interruption in the meantime.

The 1928 plans of Dodge Brothers include production of three separate lines of passenger cars. The standard four cylinder line the entirely new Victory Six line, and the recently announced senior models. The Graham Brothers truck division, now fully owned by Dodge Brothers, Inc., will continue to manufacture a comprehensive line of commercial cars, trucks in five capacities from ½-ton to 2-ton, and motor coaches. Part of the line is powered with four cylinder and part with six cylinder engines.

It has been estimated that the development and introduction of the new lines has cost Dodge Brothers, Inc., between nine and ten million dollars, including new plant facilities and machinrey. Despite these expenditures and the reduction in sales which accompanied the transition from a single to a multiple line of cars, the company has come through the first nine months of 1927 with all charges and preference dividend requirements fully covered and with $3,252,244 earnings applicable to the common stock. Total earned surplus, as of Sept. 30, 1927, was $28,823,633. Figures for the last quarter will not be available for several weeks, but there was nothing in the situation during October, November and December to indicate any considerable alteration, one way or the other, in the company's financial position.

Marked increase in the activities at the Dodge factories here has been observed during the last few days. It is current knowledge in Detroit that the working force is being augmented substantially, one of the local signs that production is being stepped up.

From official sources it has been stated that the competitive position of the Dodge organization has been materially fortified by the new and diversified lines of products, and that the 1928 prospects for large production in the Dodge plants are considered excellent.

How's She Hittin? Hints On Car Care

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

Science Editor, NEA Service

Motoring in winter is uneconomical at best. Quite a bit of gasoline is needed to warm up the engine before the car is started out of the garage, the fuel mixture has to be heavier, the choke has to be applied often and the oil in the crankcase requires more frequent changing.

Taking time to warm up the car in the morning, nevertheless, returns quite a saving eventually. For then there is less chance of unburned fuel seeping down into the crankcase, diluting the oil, scoring the cylinders and speeding the engine toward a state of ruin.

This is perhaps the most important way, at least, to keep down the cost of running an automobile in winter to as low a mark as possible.

It is understood that there is enough alcohol or glycerine in the cooling system to keep the solution from freezing. If there isn't, there's no hope for the fellow who rushes out of his garage as soon as he has started the engine. That gives the frozen solution no chance to thaw, and steam almost immediately results with drastic consequences to the motor block.

If it's cold outside, and you know there's not enough anti-freeze to avoid a frozen cooling system, the best you can do is to warm up the engine slowly and carefully. If this is done within the garage—with the doors open, of course!—you have a good chance of avoiding steaming and subsequent cracking of the cylinder head.

• • •

The loss in economy during winter occurs while the engine is cold. Then all the fuel that is drawn into the combustion chambers isn't burned up. Some of it is blown directly out through the exhaust. Some remains behind in the form of carbon. And some does the worst damage by seeping down the cylinder walls into the crankcase.

There the fuel, mixing with the lubricating oil, thins it out considerably and makes it less effective as a protective, anti-friction film.

The cylinder walls become scored and the piston, cam and crankshaft bearings are left unprotected.

• • •

It is good practice, whatever the precautions that are taken, to test the oil in the crankcase every 500 miles or so. Diluted oil is thinner than a lubricant should be and it contains black sediment.

If the oil has been thinned down, it should be drained out and replaced with fresh lubricant. This should be thinner than the kind used for summer driving, for cold weather tends to thicken it and retard its circulation.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Vance believes Skeel innocent of the murder of Margaret Odelj and that he lay hidden in a closet while the strangler did his work. Markham ridicules the theory but Vance is unshaken. Mannix, under pressure, reveals that he had been calling, the night of the murder on a Miss Frisbee, who occupied the apartment adjoining the "Canary's." At five minutes to 12, he says, he saw Cleaver sneaking out the side door of the building—the door which was thought to be bolted on the inside all night. Markham confronts Cleaver with this information and asks him why he lied about his whereabouts

* * *

CHAPTER XXXVI

For a long time there was tense silence. Then Cleaver spoke.

"I've got to think this thing out.

"I'm going to tell you what I did that night, and you can take it or leave it."

Again he was the cold, self-contained gambler. "I don't care how many witnesses you've got; it's the only story you'll ever get out of me. I should have told you in the first place but I didn't see any sense of stepping into hot water if I wasn't pushed in. You might have believed me last Tuesday, but now you've got something in your head and you want to make an arrest to shut up the newspapers——"

"Tell your story," ordered Markham. "If it's straight, you needn't worry about the newspapers."

Cleaver knew in his heart that this was true. No one—not even his bitterest political enemies—had ever accused Markham of buying praise with any act of injustice, however small.

"There's not much to tell, as a matter of fact," the man began. "I went to Miss Odell's house a little before mdinight but I didn't enter her apartment. I didn't even ring her bell."

"Is that your customary way of paying visits?"

"Sounds fishy, doesn't it? But it's the truth, nevertheless. I intended to see her—that is I wanted to—but when I recahed her door, something made me change my mind——"

"Just a moment—how did you enter the house?"

"By the side door—the one off the alleyway. I always used it when it was open. Miss Odell requested me to do so, so that the telephone operator wouldn't see me coming in so often.

"And the door was unlocked at that time Monday night?"

"How else could I have got in by it? A key wouldn't have done me any good, even if I'd had one, for the door locks by a bolt on the inside. I'll say this, though: that's the first time I ever remember finding the door unlocked at night."

"All right. You went in the side entrance. Then what?"

"I walked down the rear hall and listened at the door of Miss Odell's apartment for a minute. I thought there might be some one else with her, and I didn't want to ring unless she was alone. . . ."

The man hesitated.

"Was it," prompted Vance, "because you had telephoned to Miss Odell a little while before, and had been answered by a man's voice?"

Cleaver nodded slowly. "I can't see any particular point in denying it.......Yes, that's the reason."

"What did this man say to you?"

"Damn little. He said 'Hello,' and when I asked to speak to Miss Odell, he informed me she wasn't in, and hung up."

"That, I think, explains Jessup's report of the brief phone call to the Odell apartment at twenty minutes to twelve."

"Probably," Markham spoke without interest. He was intent on Cleaver's account of what happened later, and he took up the interrogation at the point where Vance had interrupted.

"You say you listened at the apartment door. What caused you to refrain from ringing?

"I heard a man's voice. Otherwise I'd have rung the bell."

"Could you identify the voice?"

"Hardly. It was very indistinct; and it sounded a little hoarse. It wasn't any one's voice I was familiar with but I'd be inclined to say it was the same one that answered me over the phone."

Cleaver frowned and looked past Markham through the open window.

"I know what the words sounded like," he said slowly. "I didn't think anything of them at the time. But after reading the papers the next day, those words came back to me——"

"What were the words?" Markham cut in impatiently.

"Well, as near as I could make out, they were 'Oh, my God! Oh, my God!'—repeated two or three times."

This statement seemed to bring a sense of horror into the dreary old office—a horror all the more potent because of the casual, phlegmatic way in which Cleaver repeated that cry of anguish. After a brief pause Markham asked:

"When you heard this man's voice, what did you do?"

"I walked softly back down the rear hall and went out again through the side door. Then I went home."

A short silence ensued. Cleaver's testimony had been in the nature of a surprise; but it fitted perfectly with Mannix's statement.

Pesently Vance lifted himself out of the depths of his chair.

"I say, Mr. Cleaver, what were you doing between twenty minutes to twelve—when you phoned Miss Odell—and five minutes to twelve when you entered the side door of her apartment-house?"

"I was riding up-town in the Subway from 23d Street," came the answer, after a short pause.

"Strange—very strange." Vance inspected the tip of his cigaret. "Then you couldn't possibly have phoned to any one during that fifteen minutes, eh, what?"

I suddenly remembered Alys La Fosse's statement that Cleaver had telephoned to her on Monday night at ten minutes to twelve. Vance by his question had without revealing his own knowledge created a state of uncertainty in the other's mind. Afraid to commit himself too emphatically Cleaver resorted to evasion.

"It's possible, isn't it, that I could have phoned some one after leaving the subway at 72d Street and before I walked the [illegible] to Miss Odell's house?"

"Oh quite," murmured Vance. "Still, looking at it mathematically: if you phoned Miss Odell at twenty minutes to twelve, and then entered the Subway, rode to 72d Street, walked a block to 71st, went into the building, listened at her door, and departed at five minutes to twelve—making the total time consumed only fifteen minutes—you'd scarcely have sufficient leeway to stop en route and phone to any one.

"However, I shan't press the point. But I'd really like to know what you did between eleven o'clock and twenty minutes to twelve, when you phoned to Miss Odell."

Cleaver studied Vance intently for a moment.

"To tell you the truth, I was upset that night. I knew Miss Odell was out with another man—she'd broken an appointment with me—and I walked the streets for an hour or more, fuming and fretting."

"Walked the streets?" Vance frowned.

"That's what I said." Cleaver spoke with animus. Then, turning, he gave Markham a long calculating look. "You remember I once suggested to you that you might learn something from a Doctor Lindquist. Did you ever get after him?"

Before Markham could answer, Vance broke in.

"Ah! That's it—Doctor Lindquist! Well, well—of course!......So, Mr. Cleaver, you were walking the streets? The streets, mind you! Precisely!—You state the fact, and I echo the the word 'streets.' And you—apparently out of a clear sky—ask about Doctor Lindquist.

"Why Doctor Lindquist? No one has mentioned him. But that word 'streets'—that's the connection. The streets and Doctor Lindquist are [illegible] same as Paris and springtime are one. Neat, very neat......And now I've got another piece to the puzzle."

Markham and Heath looked at him as if he had suddenly gone mad. He calmly selected a Regie from his case and proceeded to light it. Then he smiled beguilingly at Cleaver.

"The time has come, my dear sir, for you to tell us when and where you met Doctor Lindquist while roaming the streets Monday night. If you don't, 'pon my word I'll come pretty close to doing it for you."

A full minute passed before Cleaver spoke, and during that time his cold staring eyes never moved from the district attorney's face.

"I've aleady told most of the story, so here's the rest."

He gave a soft mirthless laugh. "I went to Miss Odell's house a little before half past eleven—thought she might be home by that time. There I ran into Doctor Lindquist standing in the entrance to the alleyway. He spoke to me and told me some one was with Miss Odell in her apartment.

"Then I walked round the corner to the Ansonia Hotel. After ten minutes or so I telephoned Miss Odell, and, as I said, a man answered. I waited another ten minutes and phoned a friend of Miss Odell's, trying to arrange a [illegible] I walked back to the house.

"The doctor had disappeared, and I went down the alleyway and in the side door. After listening a minute, as I told you, and hearing a man's voice, I came away and went home. That's everything."

Sales Tax Protest Still Unanswered

In reply to Mayor Bury's letter of protest against the federal government levying a sales tax against the city for gravel used on roads throughout the municipality and taken from a city-owned pit, a letter from Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, today sets out that tehsales tax has been reduced 25 per cent, but no mention is made of withdrawing the government's claim of $437.05 for 1926-7.

Henry Duprie, who pleaded guilty on Feb 23 to taking a girl under 16 years of age away from her father at Mercoal has been sentenced by Judge Crawford. He was bound over on good behavior for six months with a $500 bond.

Maple Leafs Qualify to Meet Canmore for Alberta Title

Review of Sport

By KEN McCONNELL

Edmonton Maple Leafs, one of the best amateur hockey teams that this city has turned out in many long years, won the right last night to meet Canmore in the two-game series for the Alberta Amateur Hockey championship, when they defeated the Calgary Wheat Kernels in the final match last night at Calgary by a score of 3-2, thus winning on the round 6-3.

The Maple Leafs will play their first game with Canmore on Monday next and the two teams will return to this city for the final game on Wednesday.

This will probably be the Maple Leafs' toughest assignment. The Canmore boys have a splendid reputation and usually teams which are members of the Crow's Nest League, are right up in the fight for amateur hockey laurels.

So if the Canmore lads are nearly as good as some of their predecessors, they are going to be hard to stop and the Maple Leafs will have plenty to do in taking the verdict.

* * *

However, the locals are fully capable of winning out. There seems no possible chance of eight better amateur hockey players being on any one team in this province. They have splendid system in the team. Their combination is the best and they have some exceptionally brilliant performers, men who can be called upon at any time to step sixty minutes in any hockey game and go at top speed.

If the Leafs win against Canmore they will earn the right to travel west to Vancouver where they will play against Trail, B. C., in the western amateur hockey finals.

Every one of the local boys have decided on this trip. All they have to do is turn back Canmore. It will not be any fault of theirs if they do not see the Pacific Coast in the next week or two.

* * *

For the purpose of fostering good, clean athletics and helping their employees keep fit, the Canadian National Railways have organized a Dominion-wide athletic organization. F. F. Keillor, of this city, is the Western Regional representative on the Dominion body.

Each district or "region" as the railway boys have it, will have its own slate of officers and they will govern their own sports. Championships in each sport will be held at the end of their respective seasons, the winners of the eastern and western regions playing off for the titles at stake.

It is a splendid idea, one that will help foster the spirit amongst thousands of employes and their employers. Incidentally, any member of the western region is also a member of any other region in the Dominion.

* * *

Watch Mr. James McLarnin, the Vancouver fistic marvel. Only recently he slapped Mr. Kid Kaplan, former lightweight king, for a goal. Last night he took only one minute and forty-seven seconds to knock out the pride of New York, Sid Terris, and one of the leading contenders for the lightweight championship of the world.

Previous to McLarnin's Kaplan fight it was said that, in the event he won, he would be given an opportunity to take the title away from the champion, Sammy Mandell. He won and quite easily at that. Then Mr. Mandell ducked and so it was decided, as the New York officials decide such things, that McLarnin must meet Sid Terris before he would be given a fight with Mandell.

Well, Mr. McLarnin has walloped Kaplan and he has sunk the hopes of Terris. If anyone has qualified for a championship battle, the Vancouver boy certainly has.

But we shall see.

New Zealand Cricket Team Out for One Run

DEFEATED CALGARY TEAM IN FINAL GAME LAST NIGHT 3-2

Win Edmonton-Calgary Series by Score 6-3 — First Match of Canmore Play-off on Monday—Final Fixture Here Wednesday Night

BY HARRY SCOTT
Exclusive to Bulletin

CALGARY, Feb. 25.—Edmonton Maple Leafs eliminated Calgary Wheat Kernels here Friday by defeating the Wheatmen 3 to 2 in the second of the home and home series, thereby giving the northerners a 6-3 verdict on the series. The game here Friday night was devoid of any great brilliance but gave the Edmontonians an opportunity of demonstrating to the largest crowd that has seen a game here this year that they were quite the better team.

The Maple Leafs played a defensive game in the opening period being content with occasional rushes when they broke up the Calgary offensive. Neither goal tender was given much work, and the play by both clubs was rather ragged.

DANNY CARRIGAN GETS OPENING COUNTER

In the second period, came nearly all the scoring. Carrigan, clever Edmonton forward, went through alone and counted the first goal of the match. Calgary evened shortly afterwards when W. McLeod converted a pass from Elliott.

Calgary's big chance of the evening followed but the Kernels passed it up. Grove was banished and in the excitement stayed off for only about 20 seconds of his minute penalty. As a result a second Edmonton player went to the penalty box, which left Edmonton two men short. But the remaining Leafs staved off the attack and when they returned Maher scored from Kinney and Carrigan shortly afterwards added his second goal to put the visitors ahead 3 to 1.

On Defensive

The third period was the traditional last period when one team plays strictly defensive and other sends all the players up on the attacking line. Several times Leaf sorties looked dangerous but the Calgarians monopolized most of the play although they were seldom very dangerous. The last count came shortly before the finish of the game when Vickerson stickhandled his way through and scored.

The Lineups

Edmonton—Castagner, J. Kinney, W. Kinney, Collingwood, Carrigan, Groves, Duggan and Maher.

Calgary—Taylor, Savage, H. McLeod, Elliott, W. McLeod, Vickerson, Gerlitz, and Grisdale.

Referee—Jack Gordon.

Important Independent Hockey Match Tonight

The Civics and Bankers will clash in a sudden-death game tonight to decide who will enter the play-off of the Independent Hockey league. Play will start at 8:30 sharp.

The winner will meet the Great West Garment team on Monday in the first game of the play-off. The team that wins on Monday will play a two-game series with Gillespie-Gas for the league championship.

Tonight's game should be productive of some fast hockey as both teams possess a nice collection of puckchasers.

Gordon Williamson will referee.

LEO LOMSKI WILL FIGHT JOE SEKYRA

Tommy Loughran Decides On Taking Three Months Rest

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—After Tommy Loughran, returning today from a cruise in the West Indies, announced that he would not defend his light-heavyweight championship for at least three months, Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., and Joe Sekrya, Dayton, O., leading contenders, were matched to meet at Madison Square Garden on March 30, it was officially announced. The Lomski-Sekyra bout will be for ten rounds at the light-heavyweight limit of 175 pounds. The winner will get first crack at Loughran's title, probably in June.

Lomski was the last of Loughran's three previous opponents in championship bouts, which took place within a period of three months. The champion is allowed, by commission rule, an interval of six months between title fights. He, with Lomski, was expected to figure in the March 30 bout, according to previous plans.

Before departing for his home in Philadelphia Loughran declared that if he fought at all within the next three months his opponents would be heavyweights.

Toronto Claims First Junior Skate Champ

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—Toronto claimed the first junior figure skating champion of Canada in the amateur class Friday evening, when Stewart Reburn, 15-year-old member of Toronto Skating club, won over two Ottawa contestants, Paul Belcourt, and Jack Hose, Minto Skating club, who were judged second and third respectively.

In the ladies' figure-skating championship contests, Miss Dorothy Benson, Winter club, Montreal, won first place, and the ladies' amateur championship, while Miss Frances Claudet, of Minto club, Ottawa, came a close second, with Miss Elizabeth Fisher, of Toronto third.

ANOTHER BROTHER ACT

If Nick Moore, brother of Wiley Moore, makes good with the Yankees this spring, another brother act will be added to the list already in the majors. He also is a pitcher.

GIRL IS JOCKEY NOW

Miss Lillian Jenkinson, 21-year-old Nebraska girl, is believed to be the only woman who has the right to ride on any track in the United States.

ALBERTA AND B. C. PLAY IN VANCOUVER

CALGARY, Feb. 25.—British Columbia and Alberta Senior Champions will clash at Vancouver on March 5 and 7 in the Allan Cup playdowns, it was announced Friday evening. The winners play the Saskatchewan champions on March 10 and 12 at Regina. The winners of the second round meet the winners of the Thunder Bay league on March 15 and 17 to decide the Western Canada Champions. This game will be played at Winnipeg or Fort William.

As the intermediate finalists in Alberta have challenged the seniors, Alberta will be represented by either Canmore, Edmonton Maple Leafs, the seniors, or by Lacombe or High River.

In the junior series if the Calgary Canadian-Falcons defeat the Blairmore team, the series between the British Columbia winners and Alberta will be played at Calgary. If Blairmore wins the Alberta series and Fernie, the British Columbia series home and home games will be played. Games are scheduled for February 29 and March 2.

Finals At Toronto

The western winners play at Regina on March 5 and 7. The winners of the Thunder Bay junior league play the Manitoba winners at Winnipeg after which the winners of this series play the winners of the Alberta-Saskatchewan-British Columbia series. The Western Canadian winners play in the Dominion finals at Toronto.

FORT JUNIORS WIN

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Feb. 25.—In the first game of the junior play-off series, Fort William defeated the Port Arthur West Ends 5 to 2 last night. The winner of the series will meet Kenora for the championship of the Thunder Bay district.

CLOSE TO 18,000 FIGHT FANS SEE M'LARNIN K.O. TERRIS

New Yorker Got Static in Just One Minute and Forty-seven Seconds—Vancouver Boy Must Now Be Given Bout With Champion

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—A new fistic sensation—young Jimmy McLarnin of the baby Irish face and placid mien—came out of the west last night and flattened Sid Terris, pride of New York's lightweights, with just two punches. McLarnin is a Vancouver boy.

Labelled as the next lightweight champion, and scheduled to battle Sammy Mandell for the crown next summer, the stocky little Celt from the Pacific Coast stalked calmly into the Garden ring and before 18,000 spectators—the most doubting fight fans in the world—definitely established his fistic class for all time.

JAMES WENT TO WORK IN HURRY

There was just a little feinting of the head, a little movement of the shoulders and a short right-hand punch to the chin that put a fear of forked lightning into Terris' heart. Then as Sid tried his left hook, another tiny bolt of leather-lightning, travelling so short a distance that half the spectators missed its flight, crashed full on the point of Terris' chin.

As if his legs suddenly had been cut from under him with a giant scythe, Terris dropped flat on his face, head pillowed in the glove of his right hand, while the referee tolled ten and the largest crowd of the present indoor season howled in acclaim of an Irish warrior.

Over Soon

The bout lasted but one minute and 47 seconds, and even in that short space of time there was little action until the crashing climax. Terris, a bounding, dancing bolt of speed, shot out to set the pace at the opening gong.

He did, too, for over a minute, while McLarnin stalked him carefully, rolling his head from Terris' leads with both hands cocked for the kill. Almost at the start, Jimmy sent a whistling right past Sid's ear that brought a pained expression to the bounding one's face.

Then Terris landed a left hook, his sole offensive contribution of the evening. A flurry on the ropes, the bound back to the centre of the ring and then the flash of leather and the thud of Terris' fall from the front ranks of the lightweight contenders.

He's Irish Lad

For minutes after the battle was over, the huge throng pressed close to the ringside and cheered the boyish kid, Irish stamped all over him, who had just downed the Ghetto's pride. Finally, as Terris wept quietly in his corner, McLarnin was seized, placed high on the mob's shoulders and carried away in triumph. Terris was unconscious almost five minutes from the finishing punch and had to be carried from the ring.

The downfall of Terris, presaged somewhat by several knockdowns in recent battles, still came as quite a shock to the spectators. The New York speedster was a six to five favorite entering the ring. Both scaled 133 1-2 pounds for the battle, with McLarnin at that weight, settling all claim that he had grown out of the lightweight class.

Set Gate Records

The paid attendance was 17,950 and the gross receipts $91,956.25, setting an indoor record for the present season.

EDMONTON LADY CURLERS DID WELL AT WETASKIWIN 'SPIEL

Mrs. McMurdo of Wetaskiwin, Defeats Mrs. Conn, Edmonton, in Final Grand Challenge—Mrs. Norquay Defeats Mrs. Terwilliger in Final Game

Exclusive to Bulletin

WETASKIWIN, Feb. 25.—The first prize in the Grand Challenge in the Wetaskiwin ladies' bonspiel remains in the city, as Mrs. McMurdo with her strong rink, won Friday morning in a hard struggle against Mrs. Conn of Edmonton. It was a great battle from start to finish with big ends being the feature. Mrs. Conn scoring a five end, and Mrs. McMurdo coming right back with a four. The last game of the 'spiel was staged Friday afternoon between two Edmonton rinks, Mrs. Terwilliger and Mrs. Norquay. This was also a very fine exhibition of the popular game and was not won until the last end was about over, the latter came off victorious.

The Prize Winners

Grand Challenge—1, Mrs. McMurdo, Wetaskiwin; 2, Mrs. Conn of Edmonton; 3, Mrs. Quesnel of Edmonton; 4, Mrs. Legge, Edmonton.

H. R. French

Ramsey House League Hockey Final To Be Played Tonight

The first game of Ramsey's House Hockey league playoff will be played at Jimmy Smith's South Side ice emporium this evening at 8:15, between the Maine Store and Annex outfits.

The series will consist of two games, total goals to count. The teams have been playing good hockey right along and the games should be very interesting. Each team has a sprinkling of players that perform in the various other city leagues which adds to the attraction. A few senior players cavort for the department store clubs and they, along with the rest, should make it a real, fast series.

Remember, first game tonight at 8:15.

FRED KEMP IS BIG WINNER AT KILLAM 'SPIEL

Takes Citizens' Cup—Jim Dowdell Beats Bob Noble

Exclusive to Bulletin

KILLAM, Feb. 25.—Fred Kemp's Edmonton rink, comprised of Kemp, skip, Jack Fitzgerald, third, Pearson Fraser, second, and "Sorrel-Top" Jimmy Dowdell, lead, won the Citizens Cup in the bonspiel which has just ended here. The Citizens' Cup is put up by Robert E. Noble, manager of the Royal George Hotel, Edmonton and is one of the finest trophies in any bonspiel in Alberta.

It was one of the most successful bonspiels ever held in this town, twenty-nine rinks competing. J. Shannon of Killam won the Grand Challenge and Grand Aggregate. There were two open competitions and the Consolation.

Jack Dunlop, another Edmonton rink, got third prize in the Challenge. There was a great battle waged for the premier leading honors in Western Canada bonspiels by Jimmy Dowdell and Bob Noble. After a vote of the citizens had been taken, Dowdell was acclaimed the victor, but the count was close.

Those on the Dunlop rink were Jack Dunlop, skip, George Freeze third, Davie Reidford, second and Bob Noble, lead.

Secretary O'Brien was delighted with the 'spiel and desires to thank all the donors for the many splendid prizes.

MANITOBA TRIUMPHS

SASKATOON, Feb. 24.—University of Manitoba defeated University of Saskatchewan here last night 2 to 1 in the opening round of the Western Canada Inter-collegiate co-ed hockey series. Bessie Pickersgill, clever skating defence player of the Manitobans, scored both goals for the visitors. Doris McKenzie saved Saskatchewan from a putout with a goal in the third period. The Manitobans scored once in the first period and again in the second.

TOD MORGAN WINS

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 25.—Tod Morgan of Seattle, world's junior lightweight champion, won a ten round decision over Ritchie King, of California, in the main event of a boxing card at the Auditorium here last night.

[illegible] team were able to score [illegible] final frame. The Freight team were unable to strike their usual form last night while the Calder crew were playing at their best for the full sixty minutes.

As a result of the game last evening, these two clubs now have to play a sudden death game on Monday night to decide who will meet the Shops in the final [illegible]. Monday's fixture will be played at the Arena as usual, probably following the Independent Hockey league play-off game on that night so that fans will have the opportunity of looking over the teams in each league.

Stan Stephens handled the bell.

The Lineups

Calder—Faulder, Donighue, Shook, Faulder, Rutter, McMahon.

Freight—McKechnie, B. Ferris, English, Borden, Walker, Pateman, Hagan, Inkate.

J. R. Anthony, Rider of Three Grand National Winners to Try Again

LONDON, Feb. 25.—It is more than likely that Jack Anthony will "come back" to the saddle in the Grand National. At any rate, the rider of three "Liverpool" winners states that it should not be assumed that he will not have a mount in March. It is quite possible that Anthony will be astride Bright's Boy in the big Aintree Steeplechase.

OVERTIME DRAW

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 25.—Hamilton Tigers and Kitchener Millionaires are still tied for third place in the Canadian Pro. league standing as a result of a 3-3 overtime game here last night.

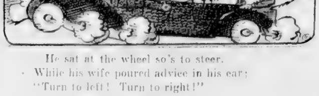
Last Lines for this Limerick Must Be in Bulletin Office by Midnight of March 6



He sat at the wheel so's to steer.
While his wife poured advice in his ear;
"Turn to left! Turn to right!"
Oh, it's really a fright,

....

NAME ....

ADDRESS ....

THIRTY WORTH-WHILE CASH PRIZES

For the best answer to each Limerick the Bulletin will send the author a cheque for two dollars. Thirty Bulletin readers, therefore, will participate in the cash prizes. In each case the decision of the limerick editor must be accepted as final.

Read over the Limerick Contest Rules—and get busy on Limerick No. 4. Then watch for Limerick No. 5 Monday.

LIMERICK RULES

Each day, for 30 days, the Bulletin is printing the first four lines of a limerick. Write a line to complete the limerick and mail it, or bring it to LIMERICK EDITOR of the Bulletin. Be sure to write your name and address plainly. Watch the time limit on each limerick. Winners for each day's limerick will be announced as soon as possible after day the limerick appears, but ten days will be allowed to lapse before the judging is done to give out-of-town readers a chance to compete.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—With colder weather prevailing over the domestic winter wheat territory, wheat prices averaged higher early today. Absence of snow covering in various parts led to fears in some quarters that further crop damage to wheat would ensue.

Opening at ¼c decline to ⅜c to ½c advance, wheat subsequently scored additional gains in some cases.

Corn starting unchanged to ⅛c up, later continued to point higher. Oats were firm.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 25—Flour, unchanged. Shipments, 78,616 barrels.

Bran, $33 to $33.50.

Wheat, No. 1 northern, 126½; March, 127⅛; May, 129½; July, 131.

Corn, No. 3 yellow, 91 to 93

Oats, No. 3 white, 53⅛ to 55¼.

Barley, 81 to 94.

Rye, No. 2, 107¼ to 109¼.

Flax, No. 1, 216¼ to 228¼.

LIVERPOOL CLOSING

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 25—Wheat, No. 2 red western, 10s, 6d.

Livestock

EDMONTON STOCKYARDS, Feb. 25—(Report for the week ending Feb. 24)—Receipts: Cattle, 693; calves, 114; hogs, 2,123; sheep, 167.

Compared with the previous week, receipts were considerably lighter, but the class of cattle offered for sale was of fairly good quality and bidding was decidedly keen on all classes of good cattle, which were readily cleaned up at fully steady prices. Common cows of the thin type were hard to move. No material changes have taken place in prices from last week but trading is keen and the market has a stronger undertone. Choice butcher heifers can be quoted 25c higher as compared with the close of last week, with only a few of the really good ones coming in. The stocker and feeder market continues strong and it is difficult for traders to supply the demand. The calf market is decidedly stronger, with a few exceptionally choice vealers bringing as high as 15c.

The hog market continued steady all week, with the ruling price for thick smooths being $8.33 off cars, and selects $8.85.

Sheep receipts continue light and trading indifferent. There was no material change in the prices and what few sheep were on offer were cleared at fully steady prices. Choice lambs were selling at $13, bulk of the good kinds from $12.50 to $12.75; good yearlings, $9.50 to $10; and good to choice butcher ewes, $7.50 to $8.50.

Following are the ruling cattle prices:

Bulk of the good to choice steers sold this week from $9.50 to $10, a few odd ones selling a little higher; plainer kinds of steers from $9 down. The bulk of the offerings of good to choice heifers sold from $8.25 to $9.25, odd ones bringing a little more; medium heifers from $7.50 down. Good to choice cows from $6.75 to $7.50; medium kinds from $6 down. Canners and cutters, from $3 to $4; good bulls from $4.50 to $5; medium bulls, $4 to $4.25. Good feeders, $7.50 to $8.50, depending upon quality and condition, good stockers, $7 to $7.50; medium kinds from $6 to $6.50. Bulk of the good to choice calves sold from $10 to $13—a few exceptionally choice calves sold as high as $15; common to medium calves, $5 to $8.

AT CALGARY

CALGARY, Feb. 25—Receipts: Cattle, 3; hogs, 342.

Steers, choice, $10 to $10.50; fair to good, $9 to $9.75. Butcher heifers, choice, $8.50 to $9; fair to good, $7 to $8.25.

Butcher cows, choice, $7 to $7.50; fair to good, $6 to $6.75. Bulls, good, $5 to $5.50. Stocker steers, choice, $7.50 to $8; fair to good, $6 to 7.25. Stocker heifers, choice, $6 to $7; fair to good, $5 to $5.50. Feeder steers, choice, $8.50 to $9; fair to good, $7.25 to $8.25. Calves, choice 10 to $13. good, $8.25 to $9.50. Lambs, fair to good, $11 to $12. Sheep, fair to good, $6 to $10. Hogs, select bacon, $8.75 to $9; thick smooths, $8.25 to $8.50; heavies, $7.75 to $8

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO, Feb. 25—There were only a few strong spots on the Standard Mining exchange Friday, although with three or four exceptions, no decline amounted to more than ten cents.

Sudbury Basin moved up to $23 during the early trading, but later slumped steadily until the close, when the quotation stood at $22.05, a net loss of 70 cents. The new shares touched $7.70 and finished at $2.25, down 45 cents.

International Nickel opened at $77, dropped to $74.50 and then rallied to $78.50, a gain of 25 cents. Only 100 shares of Treadwell Yukon came out at $37, up 80 cents.

Pend Oreille scored an overnight advance of 80 cents to $18.50. The peak for the day was $19.75 and last transactions were at $18.80.

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting was 45 cents lower at $17.20, but Sherritt-Gordon moved up 5 cents to $7.25. Central Manitoba lost 5 cents of its previous day's gain and ended at $1.50. San Antonio was steady at 30 cents.

Aconda was the leader in activity and fluctuations were over a fairly wide range. The close of 30½ cents was at a decline of 3½ cents.

Noranda was off 15 cents to $17.80, Amulet off 10 cents to $3.15. Teck Hughes and Kirkland Lake Gold were steady at $8.50 and $1.54, respectively.

Dome Mines was unchanged at $12. Hollinger was 4 cents lower at $17.01, McIntyre, 5 cents lower at $26.25.

FUR AUCTION

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 25—A ten per cent. advance over the previous month in otter and a similar decline in lynx, featured the second days session of the Seattle Fur exchange's monthly auction here on Friday.

Bids on the collection of 400 otter were lively, being sold at an average price of $26. Lynx averaged $40.50 for the offering of 1,700 large and extra selling on a basis of $60.

Ten thousand ermine sold well, the best price being $3.75 and the average $2.35. The better grades of wolf were in demand, the best lot of pale silky northwesterns bringing $23.25. The collection averaged $14.25.

Marten were favored, the best lot bringing a high price of $57.50 and the offering of 1,750 averaging $23.50. Fisher were all taken at open market prices. The best lot fetched $102 and the average was $60.25. Beaver sold poorly, but at a slight advance over January.

HIDE SHORTAGE SOLE CAUSE OF PRICE INCREASE

Shoe Manufacturers Are Faced With Problem in Meeting Demands

The continued advances in the price of hides have necessitated a further advance in the price of leather. Hides constitute by far the largest proportion of the tanner's cost, probably from 65-70%, and with hide prices from 75% to 100% higher you can see what this must mean in the cost of producing sole leather. The outstanding reasons for this condition appear to be somewhat as follows:

The main reason is the inexorable law of "Supply and Demand." The world's markets are depleted of hides, tanners must have hides to make leather. Therefore, the price of the hides available is being constantly forced upwards. When this movement will stop no one can tell. There is nothing that can be seen today to indicate lower prices.

"Why" of Shortage

Why this shortage? (1) A smaller production of cattle. (2) A smaller kill of cattle. (3) A smaller type of cattle being killed. (4) A big movement of hides from South America to European countries.

(1) Whereas the population in North America has increased in recent years from some 58,000,000 people twenty-five years ago to some 125,000,000 today, the number of cattle has decreased from some 70,000,000 twenty-five years ago to some 65,000,000 today—more than double the number of people to be shod and supplied with all other leather requirements from a smaller number of cattle.

Part of this reduction in the number of cattle available is accounted for by the fact that when the great war ended there were more cattle in the United States than at any other time. Following the end of the war during 1920 and 1921 the surplus number of cattle caused such a reduction in the price beef cattle would bring that prices declined nearly 60% within a year and a half. This reduction in price forced many cattle men out of business, and this in turn resulted in more cattle being killed than were being produced, so that in the seven years following the war there was a reduction of about 11,000,000 head of cattle in the United States alone. Fewer cattle were fed in 1924 on account of shortage of feed, but with a big feed crop in 1925 there was heavy feeding and a big kill in 1926 so that a surplus of cattle were finished during that year, and prices in consequence declined, resulting in fewer cattle being fed for beef, and killed, during 1927.

(2) Re the kill—Twenty of the large killing centres killed 1,200,000 head of beef cattle less in 1927 than in 1926.

Fewer Cattle and Smaller

(3) There has developed a constantly increasing demand for a smaller type of beef, caused by the almost universal demand for smaller beef for table use. This has caused the kill of a great many so-called baby beef cattle, sometimes not more than one year old and the hide from this type of beef possibly does not weigh 50% of the hide from the larger type of beef cattle that used to be killed. Hence, if you have as many of these small hides you have less than half the actual quantity of hide material which can only produce half the amount of leather that would be available from the large type of hide.

(4) From January to the end of October, 1927, North America imported from Buenos Aires in the Argentine Republic 2,424,000 hides. During the same time Germany imported from the same point [illegible] hides. Belgium 823,000 hides, France 816,000 hides, and England [illegible] hides, and during the same time North America imported from Montevideo, the Port for Uruguay, [illegible] hides, while Germany imported 793,000. Russia 294,000. Belgium [illegible], and England [illegible]. With these European countries able to finance their purchases of these large quantities of hides it leaves a corresponding shortage on this continent.

Stock On Hand Reduced

Then with regard to supplies of hides and leather on hand in the United States today as compared with five years ago. The latest figures available show:

3,100,000 hides in 1927 as against 7,441,000 hides in 192[illegible]

3,348,000 sides sole leather in 1927 as against [illegible] sides in 192[illegible]

4,3[illegible] sides of upper leather in 1927 as against [illegible] sides in 192[illegible]

32,084,000 lbs. of [illegible] as against [illegible] lbs. in 192[illegible]

In addition, therefore, to a shortage of hides there is also a comparative shortage of leather, and there are no accumulations of either leather or hides as far as [illegible] the world today.

"Beach" Natural Gas Ranges

With the advent of Spring, housewives, who have the good fortune to possess "Beach" Gas Ranges, equipped to cook automatically, will be planning their hours of leisure. The "Beach" is the only range fitted with the famous Robertshaw AutomatiCook. You can set the regulator and leave a whole meal cooking in the oven. Your responsibility ends till its time to serve.

Your kitchen will be the most pleasant room in the home, if you install a "Beach" range with AutomatiCook. Just think, you can prepare a full meal, put it in the oven, and go away for an hour, two, three or even more. Visit friends, go motoring, play tennis, golf, go horse-back riding—in fact you can do just what your fancy dictates.

Four Burner "Beach" Gas Range

This range is beautifully finished in black and white electro enamel and has grey porcelain top dust tray, door panels, main front and front feet. Black porcelain burners, grids, and oven linings. Remainder of range comes in electrically baked enamel. Factory equipped with thermometer and Touch-A-Button lighter.

Dimensions:

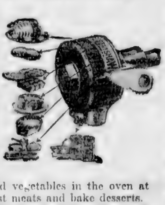
ADVANTAGES OF Robertshaw AutomatiCook



1—Automatically maintains the correct oven temperature. You do not have to stay in or even near the kitchen when cooking.

2—Eliminates guess work and the pies, cakes, biscuits, cookies, etc., are just right every time.

3—Roasts all kinds of meats and fowl—rare, medium or well done.

4—Boils cereals, soups and vegetables in the oven at the same time you roast meats and bake desserts.

5—Cooks a whole meal in the oven at one time without any attention whatever. You may leave the house for a period of from three to five hours and return to find the whole meal cooked perfectly for serving.

6—Dries and sterilizes dishes and affords a warming closet of large capacity.

7—Saves more than its cost every year.

IT'S LEAP YEAR, SPOTTY
The Nebbs
By Sol Hess
DADDY, I LEARNED A POEM ABOUT THE CALENDAR_ TEACHER SAID EVERYBODY SHOULD KNOW IT.
WELL LET'S HEAR IT
THIRTY DAYS HAS SEPTEMBER, APRIL, JUNE AND NOVEMBER, ALL THE REST HAVE THIRTY ONE, EXCEPTING FEBRUARY _ WHICH ALONE HAS TWENTY EIGHT _ UNTIL LEAP YEAR GIVES IT TWENTY NINE.
THATS FINE_ I LEARNED THAT WHEN I WAS A BOY AND I USE IT EVERY TIME I WANT TO KNOW HOW MANY DAYS THERE ARE IN CERTAIN MONTHS.
WELL, LEAP YEAR _ WHAT DOES THAT MEAN _ WHAT MAKES THE EXTRA DAY?
THE ASTRONOMERS OF JULIUS CAESAR SETTLED THE SOLAR YEAR AT 365 DAYS AND 6 HOURS_THE DAYS WERE 24 HOURS EACH WHICH LEFT THE 6 HOURS OVER EACH YEAR SO EVERY FOURTH YEAR THERE IS AN EXTRA DAY BECAUSE 6 TIMES 4 IS 24 AND 24 HOURS MAKE A DAY.
SO EVERY FOUR YEARS THERE IS AN EXTRA DAY ADDED TO FEBRUARY WHICH GIVES IT 29 DAYS AND IT'S CALLED LEAP YEAR _
AND IN LEAP YEAR A WOMAN HAS THE RIGHT TO PROPOSE MARRIAGE TO THE MAN SHE LOVES THAT'S HOW YOUR MOTHER GOT ME!
IS THAT SO?_YOU TAGGED AFTER ME BOTHERING THE LIFE OUT OF ME_I JUST MARRIED YOU TO GET RID OF YOU!
I'M GOING OVER TO SEE MURIEL AND KINDA MENTION IT TO HER.
DO YOU KNOW THIS IS LEAP YEAR AND IT'S ALLRIGHT IN THIS YEAR FOR A GIRL TO ASK A FELLOW TO MARRY HER?
ARE YOU SURE IT'S ALLRIGHT THIS YEAR AND IT ISN'T BAD MANNERS?
NO, IT'S PERFECTLY ALLRIGHT_MY DADDY TOLD ME SO.
AND IF THE GIRL ASKS THE BOY, DOES HE HAVE TO MARRY HER?
SURE HE'S GOTTA IN LEAP YEAR.
WELL I'M GOING RIGHT OVER TO JIMMIE TYLER'S HOUSE AND ASK HIM_HE'S SO BASHFUL HE WOULD NEVER ASK ME _HE WOULDN'T.
GEE! WHAT A FOOL I WAS TO TELL HER!

ARE THOSE YOUR TWIN COUSINS YOU TOLD ME ABOUT, OSSIE?
YES-AUNT MINNIE IS GOING TO LET ME TAKE THEM OUT FOR AIR EVERY DAY!
GEE, THEY LOOK SO MUCH ALIKE I WOULDN'T BE ABLE TO TELL THEM APART=WHICH IS WHICH?
THIS ONE IS THIS AND THAT IS THAT!
BUT THEY MUST HAVE NAMES!! WHAT ARE THEY?
ALL AUNT MINNIE CALLS THEM IS SUGAR PLUMS!
THE SAME NAME FOR BOTH OF THEM?
I GUESS SO=BUT I CAN TELL WHICH IS THIS AN' WHICH IS THAT!
BUT THIS ONE MIGHT BE THIS TOO!
IT MIGHT, BUT THEN THAT ONE WOULD BE THIS!
DO YOU KNOW HOW TO SEPARATE THEM?
AUNT MINNIE SELDOM DOES THAT BUT WHEN SHE WANTS TO SHE PUTS ONE IN ONE ROOM AN' TH' OTHER IN ANOTHER= SEE?
SAY!! WHICH ONE DO YOU PUT IN ONE ROOM??
SOMETIMES THIS ONE AN' SOMETIMES THAT!
HOW DO YOU KNOW WHICH ONE YOU'RE PUTTING IN WHICH ROOM?
WE LOOK AN' SEE WHICH IS IN THE OTHER ROOM AN' THEN WE KNOW WHICH ROOM THE OTHER IS IN!
BUT IF ONE OF 'EM WAS IN THE HOUSE AN' TH' OTHER WAS AWAY SOMEWHERE, WOULD YOU BE ABLE TO TELL WHICH WAS IN THE HOUSE?
OH, SURE! SURE!! OH, SURE!
ALL WE'D HAVE TO DO WOULD BE TO LOOK AT HIM AN' THEN WE'D KNOW THAT TH' ONE WE SAW WAS THE ONE IN TH' HOUSE, AN' THEN, OF COURSE, TH' ONE AWAY SOMEWHERE WOULD BE TH' OTHER!
THERE ARE ONLY TWO OF 'EM, WHICH MAKES IT AWFUL EASY!!

MR. BUTCH is Home from OTTAWA

By MERRILL DENISON

She thought when I was made reeve this year we ought to go down to Ottawa and kind of represent the town and meet the governor-general.

Someone says "bow, bow" in a loud whisper and then I realized I must be standing out there before the governor-general.

There seemed to be a lot of generals and colonels lined up in rows that we passed between, but I didn't get much chance to notice anything but Maggie's train.

Somewhere off the corridor there must have been a door that kept opening and shutting because there was a draught every so often.

SOCIETY NOTES

MR. AND MRS. JOE BUTCH of Maple avenue returned home last night from Ottawa where they attended the drawing-room given by their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Willingdon in connection with the opening of parliament. Both Joe and Mrs. Butch were presented to Lord Willingdon and his wife in person. While glad to get back home to Middleville, Joe and his good lady said they were wonderfully impressed by the treatment they received in Ottawa, and Joe states he never had quite such a time in his life. Mrs. Butch will address the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Grove Street United Church next Monday afternoon when she will tell the ladies something of her experiences in the capital.'

The editor handed us the above item from the Middleville Bugle.

"How about going down to Middleville and interviewing Mr. Butch?" he asked.

"Do you mean Mrs. Butch?"

"No, I mean Joe Butch himself," said the editor. "The whole world knows pretty well what Mrs. Butch will say. Her story has been told 10,000 times. But what are her husband's impressions? According to the Middleville Bugle Joe states he never had quite such a time in his life. Go down and find out exactly what that means."

We found Mr. Butch in the rear of his hardware store, three blocks from the Middleville railway station, and explained our mission.

"Mr. Butch," we said, "we have come to get your impressions of the drawing-room at Ottawa which you and Mrs. Butch recently attended."

"The person you want to see is my wife, Mrs. Butch," the gentleman replied. "She's been working on her impressions for a church meeting she is going to speak at and has them all in her head."

"No," we insisted, "it is your impressions we want, Mr. Butch. Charming and original though we know Mrs. Butch's impressions would prove, we prefer to hear what you thought of the function."

"Well, it was quite a function all right. There is no question about that. It was quite a function. Of course I only went along because the wife set so much store on it, and you'd really ought to talk to her. You could get her up at the house right now. She has it all planned out in her mind what she's going to tell the church women, and she could tell you something real interesting you could put in your paper.

"As a matter of honest fact," went on Mr. Butch, "I'm not sure I had any impressions at all or not. You see, I haven't been much of a man for society. I left that end of things pretty much to Maggie, that is Mrs. Butch, while I was building up the business here, but she thought when I was made reeve this year we ought to go down to Ottawa and kind of represent the town and meet the governor-general.

Stuck Feathers on With Gum

"OF course a person would really get a better idea of what the governor-general was like and really see more of him from the News Weekly down at the Maple Leaf Theatre here in Middleville than you do down there at the drawing-room at Ottawa. By the time you get to the governor-general you've stood around so long and you're naturally so nervous you don't hardly see him at all before you have to get out of the way to let somebody else behind you get introduced.

"Another thing is you're so kind of anxious to do the right thing that your mind has hardly any chance to look around much and see what is happening. Besides that I had on a pair of new shoes that hadn't been broken in to be comfortable, and a view I caught of myself in a mirror in this dress suit with swallow tails I had on made me feel sort of uncomfortable, because it struck me I must look pretty much of a fool, although I don't suppose I looked any worse than most of the men there. At least I had on a proper pair of trousers instead of those tight silk golf knickers some of the men had to wear. A Windsor uniform, I think Maggie said they called it.

"Of course she went through with the whole thing like she'd been used to court circles all her life. That is she was all right once she got her train fixed so that it didn't pull her dress up at the front and show too much of what she had on. These trains, you know, are pinned on to the shoulders of a woman's dress and the weight of them and the way they drag on the carpet makes them drag a dress up in front. With these short dresses the women are wearing they make it kind of bad.

"But the feathers gave her almost more trouble than the train. You know all the women have to wear three ostrich feathers stuck on to the top of their heads if they are married and two if they're not married. I couldn't find out if anybody only wore one feather. These feathers are very important. Maggie could tell you why they set so much store on these feathers. She knows all the ins and outs of the business, and I guess she told me once, but I've forgotten.

"I don't know whether they would kick you out if you didn't have these feathers, but the wife had her heart set on them and since I'd only gone there because of her, I advised Maggie to wear the feathers if she wanted them. They look something like a scimpy Indian head-dress and there are some women that can wear them and some that can't.

"The trouble with them is they were invented when women had long hair and all they had to do was to poke the stems in their back hair and the feathers would stick up straight. Maggie's hair is bobbed and is pretty short in the back and she had such a time figuring out some way of keeping these feathers straight I thought we mightn't get to the reception at all. Twice I had to go downstairs into the lobby of the Chateau—that is where we stayed—and buy her something she wanted for the feathers. I just slipped on my overcoat and turned the collar up, and the whole place seemed pretty well filled with men like me getting something at the last minute, and all the bell hops were flying around with clothes over their arms. You could tell from just walking through the lobby there must be something important going on in the city.

"Maggie got the feathers fixed with some elastic, and I heard of some young girls that used chewing gum.

Not Having Any Precedence

"THERE was another thing that kept me kind of worried so I couldn't get any real impression and that was the cards you have to take along with you to get into the reception. Our member—it was him and his wife that were taking us, presenting us, I guess you'd call it. Well, our member sent these cards to us and there was two or three of them. One for getting you into the building, another to get you past into the room where the governor-general was and another you gave away just before you were presented so they would know who you were.

"I thought a person would be introduced, but they don't do it that way. You write who you are on these cards and four or five men in different kinds of uniforms call out your name.

"There was nothing on these cards to tell which was which and you have to remember what you are supposed to do with each card by the color. There's a white card for one thing, a blue card for another and a pink card for another. I don't know but what there might have been only two cards. Maggie wanted me to memorize these colors so I wouldn't do the wrong thing, and I think I got as good a memory as most—I mean I can carry the price of every article, wholesale and retail, in the store in my head—but I couldn't seem to get those colors straight in my mind no matter what I did. Maggie was naturally fussed over getting herself looking as nice as she could and we had quite an argument over the cards.

"But even if these things hadn't happened before we ever started I don't know if I'd have been able to get any impressions anyway after putting myself into a stiff shirt. There were men there that looked as if they almost liked a stiff shirt, but I could never be comfortable in them. I'm worrying all the time whether one of those little studs will fly out, and I never can seem to keep the collar from wilting.

"We got over to the parliament buildings in good time. I think we must have been about the first ones there. The member was going to meet us over there, so we got a taxicab and drove over, although it wasn't as far as from here down to the hotel. I would have walked, but Maggie wanted to do the thing up right.

"There were a lot of soldiers standing around, and some of these men sent me one way and Maggie another. It is a big building and I was afraid I might lose her, but I found our member down where the men left their hats and coats, and he took me to where she would come out and then told us where we were to wait.

"He told us we would have to wait on account of other people having the precedence. There is a regular order you go in, it appears, and no one can go in before their turn comes or they get a letter about it afterwards. Maggie thought that me being reeve—that is kind of a public official—we should get in soon, but there must have been a lot of people had precedence over us.

"The place the member sent us to wait could have been down in the basement. It was in a great big long corridor built of white stone and it looked just like a good clean tunnel. When the people of Canada paid 14 million dollars for those parliament buildings they certainly got their money's worth in corridors. They run all over the place and they looked about a mile long.

Following Maggie's Train

"WELL, this place where we were told to wait was in one of these corridors, and there was no place to sit down anywheres, and nothing to see once you'd looked down the corridor a couple of times. There must've been a couple of hundred people waiting down there like us who didn't have any precedence, and the women didn't have on hardly anything at all. I don't mean they weren't respectable, you understand, but their clothing gave them no warmth, and somewheres off this corridor there must have been a door that kept opening and shutting because there was a draft every so often that pretty near chilled me through.

"Well, we must have waited down there about an hour and everybody was getting pretty restless and worn out standing up and doing nothing but wait. It would be quite a while yet before our turn came. It seems there was eleven hundred people there, and I figure we must have been somewheres around the thousand mark.

"Some of the men that were waiting down in this corridor tried to get up a flight of stairs that was there, but there was a soldier up at the top that kept them back.

"I wanted Maggie to walk around while we were waiting, but she wouldn't leave this place because our turn might come at any minute. I was suffering terrible from these tight shoes I had on from standing on the stone floors. By the time we were told to go upstairs I was about worn out, with my feet hurting me, so I wasn't able to get any impressions when we really did begin to move.

"We must've been standing down in this tunnel about an hour and a half, although it seemed a couple of years, when the people we were with started going up the staircase. I got pretty rattled then by Maggie asking me if I remembered which cards to use and telling me how I should act when we got up to the room where the governor-general was, and all I could remember was that I had to follow her and when I got in front of the governor-general I was to bow and then I was to bow to the lady I'd see standing beside him, and then back out. I didn't see how I was going to go backwards if I couldn't look around to see where I was going, but Maggie said the most important thing was this backing.

"We got up to the head of the stairs, and into another corridor which was about the same size as the one we'd been in except it had a carpet and a lot of pictures on the walls, but I didn't have much of a chance to look at any of these because of getting final instructions from Maggie on how to act.

"Then we came into a bigger hall with a high ceiling which had kind of a church screen at the end of it. You could see through this screen into a big room, beyond which was the senate chamber and was full of people but Maggie dropped her train on the floor then and I didn't pay much attention to anything except to try to keep from stepping on her train.

"Well, a soldier or someone told us each person had to have their own cards and I gave Maggie hers, and then we passed through a kind of vestibule into this big room. There seemed to be a lot of generals and colonels lined up in rows that we passed between and over at the right there was a big crowd of people but I didn't get much chance to notice anything except Maggie's train.

Feeling Mighty Foolish

"THIS senate chamber must be one of the biggest rooms in the world, for I don't ever remember walking so long in my whole life without going through a door. Someone over at the left took the last card I had and I think I heard someone say my name over a couple of times, but I ain't sure. I just had my eyes glued on Maggie's train when all of a sudden it wasn't there. One minute I saw it and the next it was gone, and I looked up and found myself right in the middle of this room all alone, with everybody staring at me.

"Someone says 'bow, bow' in a loud whisper and then I realized I must be standing out there before the governor-general, and I bowed to where the lady and gentleman were standing up on a kind of platform, but I don't know then whether I was bowing to the governor-general or who I was bowing to.

"Then I remembered what Maggie had said about backing out, and I started to back, but I can see now nobody was paying attention to what I did because they were all interested in watching the next person being introduced, so I turned around and walked out the far door as fast as I could.

"I never felt so much of a d. fool in my life because of the way I'd been kind of taken by surprise when I bowed, and the whole business struck me as kind of a waste of good time standing around in draughty corridors for a couple of hours and then walking down a long room to bow to someone who you could hardly see and wouldn't ever remember you again anyway.

"I felt so foolish about the whole thing I wanted to go back to the Chateau, but Maggie wanted to stay on longer, and we went in the room where all the people were standing, but it was so crowded you couldn't see anything. Maggie seemed to take a lot of pleasure out of it, but I can tell you I was pretty glad to get back to the hotel and take those shoes off.

"Of course, I can see it must be a good thing for trade. I suppose everyone of those women that were there must have bought new dresses and things to go with them, and got their hair fixed up specially, and been to a beauty parlor. If the rest of them spent as much getting ready as Maggie did, and there were lots who spent more, then I guess almost a half million dollars were put into circulation that perhaps otherwise wouldn't have been spent, and that is a good thing for the prosperity of the country. I know the change I had left out of five hundred dollars wouldn't be worth banking.

"But as I say, you ought to go up to the house and have a talk with Mrs. Butch. You can see how I couldn't get any impressions like you are wanting, and she has it all in her head. I'll just slip my coat on and take you over. She'll be glad to talk to you."

Mr. Butch put on his hat and coat and together we walked to his home on Maple avenue. Mrs. Butch received us graciously in their living-room.

"The scene in the Red Room," she said, "was one of unparalleled splendor and magnificence. Seldom has Canada witnessed such beauty, such magnificence and such regality. There were statesmen resplendent with the decorations of foreign courts, soldiers whose breasts glittered with the heroic trophies of wars. Their X's—" Mrs. Butch paused. "Of course, you know," she said, "no one in Ottawa ever speaks of the governor-general or Lady Willingdon in any other way than His X or Her X or Their X's. Their X's," she resumed, "entered, followed by . . ."

(Mrs. Butch's story is already sufficiently familiar to the readers of this paper to be spared repetition.—Ed.)

The Yellow Hammer

By BARBARA EUPHAN TODD

(The Scottish interpretation of the yellow hammer's song is, Deil, deil, deil take ye!)

ONCE within an elfin smithy
Underneath a roof of withy,
Lived a goblin, who was flunkey
To a good-for-nothing spunky*;
And he shod his raging horses
(Kelpies) by the water courses,
Till he dropped his golden hammer
In the dyke and 'gan to yammer:
'Lamb o' Satan, fey and crookit!
Deil, deil, deil tak ye!
Deil tak ye!" Deil took it!
Now, in livery of amber,
Where the purple vetches clamber,
Bird for aye, of time unheeding,
Still he looks for what he's needing.
You can see him flitting, perching,
Zipping, dipping, flipping, perching,
Hunting for his yellow hammer.
You can hear him fret and stammer,
Till the golden corn is stookit,
'Deil, deil, deil tak ye!
Deil tak the deil! Deil's took it!"

NO WONDER

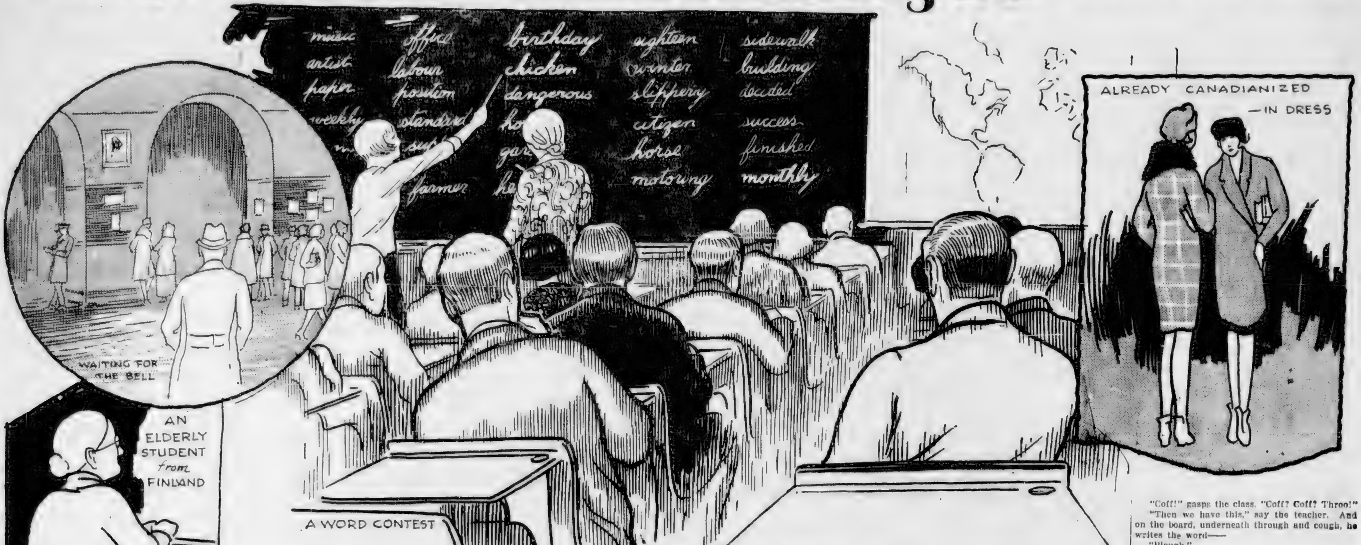
MAN'S chagrin and humiliation could be no greater than that of one seen at a recent fashion parade.

He told the floor-walker who ushered him towards the elevator that "he was just looking for a birthday present for his wife"—but he had happened to come upon a fashion parade in full swing, had in some unobservable way got in the promenade procession itself, and was seen following a very smartly attired creature down the room at snail's pace.

As he was being hurried towards the elevator he was heard to say, in abashed tones, "I saw a lot of women and thought they would be after something my wife would like—oh, oh, and I wondered why she was walking so slowly!"

English a Chinese Tongue

By GREGORY CLARK



TYPES ATTENDING THE NIGHT CLASSES

IT is hard to be a Canadian.

Especially if you happen to have been born a Pole or a Czech or an Italian.

It is so hard, in fact, that there are several thousand grown-up Poles, Czechs, Lithuanians, Hollanders and what not registered in the Canadian public school night classes that go on three nights a week in some large cities

With leaps and bounds the Canadianizing of foreigners is going on. A couple of years ago in the city of Toronto a handful of school teachers who knew no foreign languages other than college French or German, were toiling after supper on small classes of new strangers. To-day from fifty to seventy-five male school teachers in the same city are organized in what appears likely to be a most important enterprise before it goes much further.

These teachers teach only in English. The majority of their classes are adult foreigners who have only the haziest notion of English.

But they are showing extraordinary results. These volunteer pupils come gladly, eagerly. They are taught the simple, practical English language. They are taught to read it and write it. But in the process they are taught the rudiments of Canadian civilization. They can go on to geography and arithmetic if they want it, they can go as high as night schools go. But as a means of acquainting our foreign recruits with the Canadian ideal and the Canadian point of view, this simple schooling, offered to people who come of their own free will is, even in its present early stage of development pretty hard to beat.

At least fifty to seventy-five of our male educationists are being given a thorough acquaintance with our foreign immigrants. The immigrants are being given a sound elementary acquaintanceship with Canadian life and manners.

The work is growing at a tremendous rate.

And a spirit of extraordinary interest and good feeling animates Canada's foreign night classes.

How does a schoolmaster who knows no Russian or Polish or Bohemian teach a polyglot class of adult men and women?

Most of these immigrants who come to night school are literate, to some extent, in their own tongue.

The teacher starts at the beginning.

The Foreigner's Big Handicap

FIFTEEN to twenty, mostly men, squeeze themselves into the little public school seats and desks. The teacher stands up and calls his roll, reading the strange names, strangely written, and making the acquaintance of this class. A spirit of strangeness, of foreignness, hangs over all. Everybody wonders how on earth a beginning is to be made.

The teacher takes out his pencil and paper and holds them up, signing to the class to do likewise. Then, holding forth the pencil, he says, slowly and distinctly——

"Pencil. Pencil."

He then persuades them by signs and intonation to say the word after him.

In all their strange intonations, they repeat the word after him. Then he writes it large and distinctly on the blackboard. And these Russians and Germans and Poles and all races of the earth study with interest the curious letters we use in Canada for the well known and simple art of writing, for their well known and simple art is entirely different.

Then he teaches them paper.

"Paper," he says. "Paper."

And he writes it, calling out phonetically the meaning of each letter.

Very slowly and simply they go through all the simple names of things around them, pencil paper, ink, desk, window, I, you, we, have.

And almost before they know it these Czechs and Poles and Russians can say, with perfect ease, the astounding sentence:

"I have the pencil. You have the pencil."

("I 'ave ze pan-seel. EE-oo 'ave ze pan-seel.")

They learn to write, each in their own national handwriting, their own word for each article and then, in English letters, the English word for it.

It is slow going at first. Teaching them the English alphabet, teaching them to write these strange letters, so simple to us, so very curious to them. The teacher writes a word on the board, then sentences, and they read them together and individually, the meaning being very simple and the pronunciation. They use the first book school readers.

We saw girls three weeks in the country from Russia who could read the sentences on the blackboard straight ahead, without a pause, their inflection and accent all wrong, but already having mastered the writing and the sound of the words.

Mr. Reg. Canning, the night principal at the same school, showed us one girl who had been a year and two months in Canada, who had missed only two night classes in all that time, on account of having her tonsils out, and she had mastered an almost perfect accent, and spoke slowly and intelligently in simple English.

"What does wood come from?" asked the master of the third grade of night class—those who had done a year or who had otherwise commanded some knowledge of English.

Learning Purely by Memory

THE class pondered the question silently. Looking at one another. At last one husky young Austrian shyly says:

"From de contry."

"Yes, but what gives us wood?"

"Tree!" cries a girl, suddenly.

"Right! The trees give us wood. Now, what tree do we make much of in Canada?"

No answer.

"What tree do we love in Canada?"

Another girl starts up, excitedly.

"Chreestmas tree!" she exclaims.

"No, no," the teacher joins in the laughter. "What tree do we love and venerate?"

"Apple tree," ventures a hungry-looking young Czech.

"No. What tree do we sing songs about?"

"Ah! Mapple tree!" shouts a big piano mover.

"Right! Maple tree. Maple. May-ple!"

To show the slow, patient way they go about this schooling of a polyglot class, the teacher says:

"What is metal? Metal."

They listen to his word intently. They look at one another and study and ponder.

At last a girl ventures——

"Bress."

"Brass. Yes, brass is a metal. Look." And the teacher points to brass window catches, brass door hinges. "What is onother metal?"

"Ah-loo-mil-um!" pronounces a Finnish girl with tremendous pride and much rolling of the splendid word in her mouth.

"Right! Aluminum. What is made of aluminum?"

"Deeshes!" calls the Finn girl, proudly.

With infinite patience, these masters whose patience is born of years of schooling children, repronounce and repeat every word that comes hard to foreign tongues. The W's and Th sounds are particularly hard for them. "Werry" for very, and "werb" for verb, and "dis" for this.

Little stories, little sentences of everyday life, are what they start on. There is no haste.

For this English language is a sort of Chinese language to foreigners whose languages are ruled by laws of sound and sense.

"You must memorize," says the master, to his class. "Memorize. Get it into your mind. For there are no rules. Look at this."

And on the blackboard he writes the word——

"Through."

"How do you pronounce that?"

The class looks with mingled horror and amusement at the ugly word, filled with combinations of letters that are unheard of in their speech.

"All right, Tako, what do you think that word sounds like?" asks the teacher of a bright young Russian. He rises up very puzzled and after a long pause and much whispering to himself under his breath, he says——

"Trug."

"No," says the teacher. "It is throo. Throo!"

Our Terrifying Language

THE whole class pronounces the horrible looking word over and over again, with amazement—"throo, throo, throo!"

"All right," says the teacher, "now look at this." And he writes on the board underneath "through" the word——

"Cough."

"How do you pronounce that?" he demands.

And with one voice the class cries:

"Coo!"

"No," responds the teacher. "Coff!"

"Coff!" gasps the class. "Coff? Coff? Throo!"

"Then we have this," say the teacher. And on the board, underneath through and cough, he writes the word——

"Plough."

"Ploff!" shouts the class.

"No, plow," says the master. "Then take this." And he adds to the unbelievable collection the word——

"Dough."

"Dow," call some. "Duff, doo, doff," yell others, not to be fooled again.

"No," says the teacher. "It is doe."

As if it were not enough to show how completely hopeless a muddle the English language is in, the teacher concludes with the word——

"Rough."

One by one the class take a whack at it. One says roo, another roff, another says roe, another ree, another ruh, and one thinking the darn thing might have only one more possibie sound, stands up and growls out——

"Rrrmmmmffff!"

At last the teacher admits that it is ruff.

"Now, you see, you must memorize," says the teacher. "Do not trust to rules, there are no rules. You must memorize, like the Chinese."

A great puzzle to the foreigners are the past tenses.

"Hurry-hurried; play-played; walk-walked. But to-day I catch, what did I do yesterday?"

"Catched," says the class with one voice.

"No, caught," says the teacher. "I sing to-day, what did I do yesterday?"

"Singed!"

"No, sang. I break to-day, what did I do yesterday?"

"Breaked, brang, brack, bracken," guess the class.

"Broke," says the teacher. He gives them examples of curious irrelevancy of English—see, saw; buy, bought; eat, ate; wake, woke; what strange things they are."

"I hit to-day, what did I do yesterday?"

"Hat! Hot! Hate! Hitten! Howt! Hoot!" guess the class.

"No," says the teacher, sadly, because even here it becomes more sadly mixed. "Just hit. Hit, hit. I hit him to-day, and I hit him yesterday."

Domestic Smuggling

◆ ◆

By CAESAR SMITH

Illustrated By GUY RUTTER

A THING every angler must learn sooner or later is to have the clerk put the fishing tackle into an envelope or paper parcel, not in a box.

Most fishing tackle comes in boxes, you see. Spoons and plugs, traces and all the important items of an angler's life are put up by the manufacturers in little boxes.

And they rattle.

No matter how careful you are, you are bound to run upstairs or shift your coat-tails suddenly or do something that makes that confounded little box in your pocket rattle.

And the jig is up.

"Ah," breathes Mrs. Smith. "Some new fishing tackle, eh?"

"What! Eh!" I exclaim, all innocence.

"What did I hear rattling in your pocket?"

"I dunno. My keys? My matchbox?"

"Come!" says Mrs. Smith. "Let's see!"

And very sheepishly I go through my pockets curiously, just as if I didn't know that I was tingling with expectation, waiting until I can get up to my den and shut the door and bring the new Kerpunkle Minnow out into the full light of the den lamp and gloat over its shining beauty. I find it at last, with an air of surprise.

"Ah, yes—a little thing I picked up this morning."

Mrs. Smith takes it and examines it, with lifted nose.

"What a contraption! I can't imagine what on earth a grown man can see in such trinkets as this."

"My dear, it is, by all accounts, one of the fishgettingest lures ever devised by the mind of man. You cast that amongst the lily pads, and zowie, bang, you get the biggest old he bass . . ."

"Stop!" cries Mrs. Smith, putting her hands over her ears. "The same old stuff! The big- [illegible] keep picking these things up now for? It's [illegible] until you can use them."

"I'm caught!" she moaned.
"Indeed you are!" I said sternly.

"I don't go to lodge," I say to Mrs. Smith. "I don't play poker. I don't go to clubs. I am only a fisherman. And what can a fisherman do in the winter time but think of his fishing?"

My real reason, of course, is to collect my tackle over the winter, bit by bit, a dollar here, a couple of dollars there, so that when summer comes I do not have to explain to Mrs Smith where that $40 or $50 went to.

However, it is a lesson to a man. Make the clerk tie up the tackle in a rattle-proof little parcel. No boxes.

A new lure came out the other day that was simply a marvel. It will, so the advertisements in the sporting magazines say, revolutionize the art of bait casting. It consists of a small wooden centre, painted like a frog, with free-moving metal fins like a chub's, it has a brown hackle in front and long rooster feathers painted red and green streaming off the back. It is also luminous with sulphur paint and it has been dipped in a special secret preparation that makes it smell like an earthworm.

The beauty of this bait is that it represents all lures at the one time. If a bass feels like a frog he takes it for a frog. If he feels like a worm the lure goes for a worm. It is the sort of universal lure we anglers have been looking for a long time.

I had it carefully wrapped in paper, and threw the box away.

After supper, I was sitting in the living-room in my smoking-coat when Mrs. Smith left me and went upstairs. I thought I heard her moving about my den. This worried me, because my own mind was on my den at the moment. I was just waiting a decent time before retiring there myself, to open and hold up and gloat.

Suddenly an anguished cry came from upstairs. It was Mrs. Smith.

"Caesar! O Caesar! For heaven's sake!"

I dashed upstairs.

Mrs. Smith was standing in the cupboard doorway, and when I got to her side I saw her hand in my business coat pocket.

She could not get it out.

"I'm caught!" she moaned.

"Indeed you are!" I said sternly.

"My finger! Oh, it hurts!"

She was caught on the Kapunkle Min now!

With tender care I helped her get her hand out of my pocket. With it came the small parcel containing the Kerpunkle, one hook of which was imbedded in Mrs. Smith's finger

With my cutting pliers out of my big tackle box I nipped off the barb while Mrs. Smith breathed O and Ah, and then I touched it with iodine from my tackle box medical kit, wrapped it with a little finger bandage and kissed it to top it all off.

Mrs. Smith looked at me with a very blushing countenance.

"What will you think of me?" she cried.

"It is nothing, my dear!"

"I feel like a thief!"

"Tut, tut!"

"But Caesar, dear, you came home with such a fishing tackle look. You could not eat your dinner for excitement. I listened carefully for a rattle and could hear nothing. I got you to dance and jump with the boys to make anything rattle that you might have in your pockets. And then I simply was eaten up with curiosity, because I thought it must be something awfully expensive or unusual that you had. So I just sneaked up and felt in your pockets and g-got s-s-stuck!"

She was very mortified.

"My dear, I should have shown it to you!"

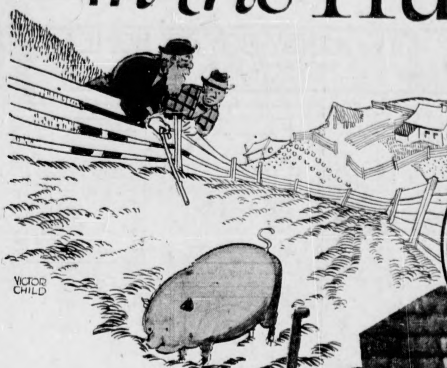
"Caes," she said, "from now on show me everything you like, because maybe if you were a clubman or a poker fiend or a race track gambler I wouldn't be so happy. So just you be your own boss and show me any darn thing you like to bring home."

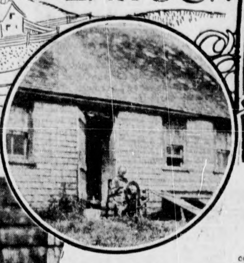
It was a great victory.

But now that the smuggling is over I can't think of a single thing I need.

"The BIGGEST ISLAND in the Hull World"

By GEORGE PEARSON





A fisherman's home on Tancook Island.

Northwest Cove, Tancook Island.

"EVER hear tell of Tancook?" I shook my head.

"Well, I'll tell you a story that'll explain. Once there was an old man went to Halifax with a load of cabbages. 'Where you from, ole man?' they ast him. 'Well, sez he, an' he threw his whiskers out like this, 'I cum from the werry biggest island in th' hull world! The werry biggest!' sez he. 'Well, ole man,' sez they, lookin' at him, 'you sure cum a long way. 'Deed I have not,' sez he. 'Well, where is yer island then? What's its name?' 'Tancook it be, mister!' sez he, just like that."

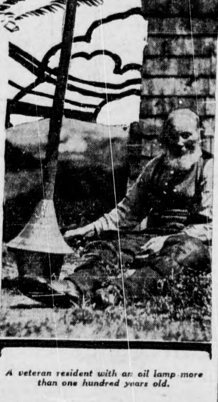
Rose Macauly in her book, "Orphan Island," describes the society that evolved on a Pacific island on which a shipload of foundling children were shipwrecked and completely isolated for seventy-five years. The result was something fearful and wonderful to behold.

That is what has happened on Tancook except that the isolation has lasted twice as long but has not been so complete as that of Orphan island. Tancook was settled by German Hebrews nearly two hundred years ago. In colonial times anti-Semitism was more pronounced than at present, and because they were Hebrews, the new settlers were forbidden access to the mainland, which added to the isolation their island position imposed upon them anyhow. That is one story. Another is that the original settlers were Hessian soldiers, the paid mercenaries of the British in the revolutionary war, who upon being disbanded after peace came, settled on Tancook. Old records appear to confirm the former story; the Tancookers themselves are quite hazy as to their origin, but whichever is right there is no doubt as to their Germanic origin; their names are nearly all German, and many of them Hebraic, and the speech is that of Germans speaking a broken English which curiosity has decided negro characteristics, and is utterly unlike the usual German-English.

They no longer practice the Hebrew faith, if they ever did. Most of them are Baptists; a few are Holy Rollers, and with them religion is religion; it fills many lives. Perhaps the infusion of Gentile blood indicated by the English names of a few families affected the change; if so, the English Gentile influence was not complete, for those bearing English names speak the same negro-German-English as the others; so if they imposed their religion on Tancook they took its speech.

Every Tancooker's a Boat Builder

TANCOOK is one of the three hundred and sixty-five islands lying in Mahone bay on the Nova Scotia coast, many others of which have similar Orphan island civilizations of their own. Having heard about it in Chester, that charming seaside resort which is only an hour's run from Tancook, we set out for it in a motor launch. The boatman pointed out other islands as we plunged along. "There's the pint off Little Fish Island, just handy there to Gooseberry, in the lee o' Squid. That's Quaker island with th' lighthouse on it; an' that island that looks like someone with a Merry Widow hat is Star Island. Big Tancook's just beyond, an' acrost the passage from it, Little Tancook." On the way we saw a six hundred pound albacore or 'sail-fish' plowing through the water with his sail up, a back-fin that projects sixteen inches out of the water, and when the fish submerges, is drawn down into a slot in his back like the centre-board of a sailing boat.



A veteran resident with an oil lamp more than one hundred years old.

We passed a forty-foot fishing boat bowling along under full sail. "That's a Tancooker," the boatman said. "An' a pretty slippery piece of wood, too. You can always tell 'em. We build boats on this coast second to none anywheres. Folks come here from all over to get their pleasure-craft built. But none of 'em can touch the Tancook boats. Every man-jack there's a boat builder and builds his own boat for his own fishin'. Women-folks 'tend the farms while they're away. Most every man there can drive a straighter furrow, build a better boat, and catch more fish than any other folks along o' this coast. Seems like it's in their blood; an' they're cut off so's they have to depend on themselves anyhow. Nobody else'll do it for them. They all got money in the bank, too; they're hard workers an' good farmers; they ain't got no poor; their potatoes is the first to get to Halifax each year, an' they're famous for their cabbages. Wait 'till you see their cabbage-houses! Of course rum-runnin' helps their bank account, but they were well-fixed afore that started."

They're Never Lonely There

TANCOOK came into view. It rose out of the sea like the top of an immense billiard ball, bald, forbidding, rocky and treeless, a desolate and utterly uninviting looking vista of weather-beaten houses, small fields and occasional mangy brush, the whole a few miles in extent. On the beach a few boats were drawn up, and the men working on them gazed at us with the avid curiosity reserved for rare occasions. The boats were broad of beam with saucer-shaped bottoms for drawing up on shore in winter, and although thirty to forty feet long, drew only a foot and a half of water. Those fast boats range up and down that coast; one sees them everywhere from Gloucester to Cape North, wherever fish are. At Louisburg and Glace Bay in the swordfish season, the Tancook boats outnumber all others, as they do in the rum-running from St. Pierre and Miquelon. Piles of lath lobster-traps and scollop drags littered the beach, the former like large rat-traps, the latter mere baskets weighted to stay on the bottom, with balloon nets above that swell out and trap the scollops as the nets are dragged along the ocean-bottom.

Everything was of the sea, the very farms. In the rear of the first house the chicken-house consisted of the overturned bow of a schooner wrecked on this shore, and the chickens ran in and out the port-holes. The store was closed; the owners fished and it remained open only at night when it became also the gathering-place of the community, for there was no other hall. Big Tancook holds six hundred people and little Tancook two hundred more, all so inter-married there are less than a dozen family names on the two islands.

The store was opened for us to buy the essentials of lunch. They were essentials, for the stock consisted of little except fishing supplies and flour and sugar and other of the most necessary foodstuffs. Pine benches lined the walls; it was obviously more than a store; and while we sat on them and ate our meagre lunch washed down with Cassia wine that had just been run in from St. Pierre, curious Tancookers came in to inspect us. "Aren't you ever lonely here in the winter?" I asked one. "Oh, no," he replied. "We gets togedder, especially when it's making vet an' de wedder's bad, an odder times wen de wessels are all in from de fishin'. After de fall is best 'cause den the girls is cum back from de main where dey is in service in the summer. Wednesday an' Sattiday nights we comes here an' gits on dese benches an' dances."

I secured a guide and began to explore the island. "There's a cable connecting Little an' Big Tancook," he vouchsafed. "It carries the government telephone from Blandford on the main over here. It's the only connection between them. Big Tancook is four miles long an' a mile wide; "Little" is a mile an' a half by three-quarters. Big Tancook is to Little what the main is to Big . . . the bright lights. The passage between Big an' Little is called Western Chops, an' th' one between Little Tancook an' Blandford on the main' is Eastern Chops because when the tide runs in or out in a breeze it makes it choppy; Eastern is the passage out to sea. There's a radio at the store now. It works splendid; you can hear it clear down to the pier.

One old woman said the music came from nowhere and it must be the box; she listened all around it to see if she could hear the music coming through the air. They laugh at the classical stuff; they like jazz. But anyhow it's never heard much here; everybody's in bed by nine an' up at four. Hard working? Never saw the beat. And the women as bad as the men. They fish all spring an' summer an' the women do all the field work while the men are away, an' they're great farmers here, noted for their early crops; beat the main all hollow. Big families, too. You never know who you're talking too, though; they're all related. Not so religious as they used to be before rum-runnin' took such a holt, but strong as ever in politics, all red-hot Liberals or Conservatives, an' fight a lot amongst themselves about it."

"A good place to stop a week or so," I remarked. "Yes, but take plenty of chloral along with you. Before plowin' time you'd know Tancook even if you couldn't see it. Fish-offal, an' sometimes whole fish, cover the land for fertilizer; that's partly what makes their crops so good; but sometimes they forget to plow the fish in. Then you kin smell this island clear out to sea."

We passed the Orange Hall. That and the church and the school were the only public buildings. There was no village, just a scattered collection of tiny farms, fenced off by low pole fences into tinier fields which looked as though nothing could possibly grow in them; the soil was broken slate, the bedrock of which thrust out here and there in great sheets and boulder-like out croppings. Little cow-paths, barely wide enough for an ox-cart, wandered along between the fields; occasionally we met a wagon, the man walking on ahead of the oxen, sometimes turning to walk backward while he swung his whip over their heads, coaxing them on. But the oxen never hurried. There was not a horse on the island. Neither were there any trees; a scrubby brush in the distance appeared to be the only natural growth. Bird and wild life was equally lacking; whatever was there was the work of man.

One old near-centenarian who showed us over his farm confirmed this. His was an English name, and his German accent less pronounced. "Deer have come to Tancook from de main," he said, "and swam away. But dere is a scatterin' rabbit." He reckoned he must be ninety-odd years old.

No Policeman on the Island

THERE were others to carry on his traditions; grandsons and daughters lived in adjoining houses, and they with the great-grandchildren of this patriarch already constituted a sizable community. One of his sons was typical of island versatility. He was magistrate, blacksmith, sail-maker, boat-builder, farmer, gardener and odd-job man. He could turn his hand to anything and specialized in all kinds of delicate mechanical work. "But dere is no policemans an' dere was never no murder done on Tancook," the old man said proudly.

Spring comes late on Tancook. It was the first week in July but the solitary clump of lilacs in front of one house was just beginning to bloom; and the cabbages which are one of the principal sources of island wealth were not yet all set out. "This is what we calls a 'piece'," the old man said as we leaned on the low pole fence of a tiny field. "Powerful good soil for de cabbage." It did not look it to any but a Tancooker; it appeared to be nothing but disintegrated slate, most of it in fragments an inch or two across. "Cabbage-houses" dotted the landscape. Every toy farm had one, a large dug-out in the hillside, half in the earth and half out, and ten feet high. In them at the harvest time cabbages were packed tightly like apples in a barrel. "Ye sh'd be in Tancook at th' Kraut-treadin' in th' fall,' the old man said. "Them is great times."

Time was relative to one so old. In the house we admired the hooked mats and the clock. "Old, isn't it?" we asked. "Oh, no!" he said. "I bought it durin my own lifetime. I only had it a short time . . . fifty year." He directed us on our way. "You go down by Th' Horn Fence Road an' th' Sou' West Beach Road to Steven's Corners. Thar ye'll come to th' Public Road." It appeared that was Main Street and the others semi-private roads. "School-House Road takes off Public. Beyond ye'll come to Canvastown on Sou' East Cove. Sou' West is beyond again. Then you comes to Backalong where most houses is an' as fer as settl'ment goes. Long time while I bin Backalong. Gittin' old . . . gittin' old."

On Sou' West Beach road we met his majesty's mail. It was carried by a strapping and handsome youth clad in fishermen's clothes, and wearing great heavy sea boots that reached his hips, in spite of the heavy sack of mail he carried from one end of the island to the other. He was shy of the strangers, and perhaps suspicious and escaped from us with unfeigned relief. Three times a week he carried it thus, he said. And: "No, there was no mail in winter. "What do the people do?" we asked. "Well, they jus' does without," he answered simply.

A few sheep here and there dotted the fields. Those, the mail-boy, an occasional ox-cart with its cattle and driver, and furtive faces at windows were the only signs of life; a miasmic air of depression hung over the place, but even that was offset by the interest aroused in one by such surroundings.

They Love the Old Home

ONE man was just back from St. Pierre with a load of liquor and was going again the next week. He was not so suspicious as the others and offered to take me along. "Dey can't touch me nohows," he boasted. "It's all in de law. I takes my vessel to Halifax all proper an' good an' th' man makes me my papers dere for St. Pierre. My vessel's only hired. I don't sell de lickers. Dey unloads me on de high sea an' I don't bring none on de land. Dat St. Pierre is great place. Funny? It soun's like an army. . . all dose Frenchmens in dere wooden shoes on de pavements. An' lickers! Mister, blocks an' blocks o' warehouses full! We got to uncase all we take aboard de wessel. She's small, an' cases take de room so we pack de bottles in de straw in de hol'."

An old-timer said: "Always, God bin good to us here. I got monies in de bank. Cabbages, tobacco, fishes . . . jus' like de loaves an' fishes o' de Master. I don' hold wid de 'Main.' Dey are gibben to idols dere. I stays on Tancook. Not in years hab my feet set off'n it. De young uns, dey go. Don't know what's cum ober dem no more. But me an' her, we stays here like I say, an' all de oders too o' God's people. In de winter dey can't go dough. Not even the young uns! Only sometimes de devil make de ice. Den dey go. Sin an' idols. Was you to de 'morial service?"

We had not been but that was not our fault: We had not heard about it. It was an island funeral. The undertaker was also the Tancook watchmaker or repairer, electrician, telegrapher and telephone operator, and commissioner of schools.

There is no lack of love for Tancook by those who live there, and their self-confidence is sublime. One man with a frozen toe knocked it off with a chisel and hammer and afterwards dressed it with ox-gall and salt water. "No doctor-man will get any dollars out of me!" he said; and he had five thousand dollars in the bank at Blandford.

Home is always Home, Sweet Home, even on Tancook. In one house was a buxom, prosperous-looking matron from Boston, back visiting her "folks" for the summer.

There is a minister, but the minister never stays long, there is always a new one; and there is no doctor on Tancook. But one girl from Tancook who worked as a servant in Boston, when her time came to have a child, returned to Tancook and her mother so she could receive good care. Doctor or no doctor, a Boston hospital wasn't good enough for a Tancooker!

HAVE SCOTS SENSE OF HUMOR?

(One of the standing jokes of the day, and every day, is that of why Scotsmen tell yarns against themselves. Some people assert that if a Scotsman is to see a joke he must be told it when he is young! Others assert that he is humorous because humor is a gift.)

By J. M. HOGGE THE FORMER SCOTTISH MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

SCOTSMEN are as witty and humorous as any other people. As a matter of fact, most people are the same if only we can penetrate their exterior. This may be illustrated by an excellent Scots story. A Scotsman in London for the first time was taken by an English friend to "Scott's," in Piccadilly. They looked at the sideboard, and the Scotsman thought of lobsters, which he had never seen before. "I'll hae ane o' they red things," he said. So they sat down to lobsters. They had scarcely begun before the Englishman was called to the 'phone. When he came back the Scotsman's plate was empty.

Alarmed, the Englishman exclaimed, "What's wrong, didn't you like it?"

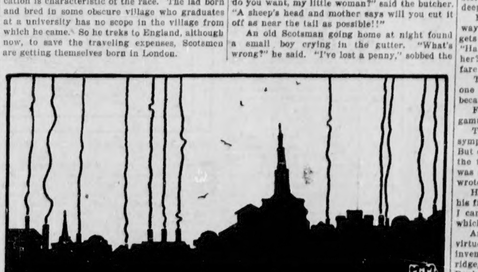
"Like it," replied the Scotsman, "it was grand; it was grand, but the crust was awfu' hard!"

Most of our crusts are very hard, but beneath them most people are grand or responsive.

The principal feature of a Scots story is its mechanism. No people can express in fewer words a greater wealth of humor.

An old Scotsman was the solitary occupant of a third-class carriage at King's Cross until, just as the train started, a dapper young fellow jumped in. "Good evening, sir," he said. The old Scotsman looked up over his paper and mumbled "Good evening." Nothing more was said until they reached York, where the young man alighted. As he closed the door he said, "Good night, sir." "Chatterbox," murmured the old Scot.

Thrift in words reminds one that thrift stories are peculiar to Scots. Scotland stands where she does because of her discipline in thrift. The sacrifice of parents for their children's education is characteristic of the race. The lad born and bred in some obscure village who graduates at a university has no scope in the village from which he came. So he treks to England, although now, to save the traveling expenses, Scotsmen are getting themselves born in London.



I could complete this article with thrift stories, but I must content myself with only a couple.

A little girl went into a butcher's shop. "What do you want, my little woman?" said the butcher. "A sheep's head and mother says will you cut it off as near the tail as possible!!"

An old Scotsman going home at night found a small boy crying in the gutter. "What's wrong?" he said. "I've lost a penny," sobbed the boy. "Weel, dinna greet," he replied, "here's a match."

These stories illustrate another characteristic of Scottish humor. The salient point is placed before one; the rest is left to be inferred.

Scots humor has practical uses. Sir Harry Lauder has achieved a reputation for meanness which is altogether foreign to his nature. For some reason or other he took a fatal step into stories of this kind, and he is long since knee-deep in them. Here is one of the best.

Harry and a chum get into a Glasgow tramway car when they are boys. A pretty little girl gets in and sits opposite. Harry's chum says, "Harry, whit wey do ye no gang and sit aside her?" Harry replies, "Wait till she's paid her fare!"

That's the fun of a Scots joke, for Sir Harry is one of the most generous men alive. I know, because I know him so well.

Finally, it is extraordinary how the whole gamut of life can be portrayed by Scots stories.

Take an ordinary, commonplace virtue like sympathy. Sermons have been preached on it. But can any sermon match this? A Scotsman in the trenches during the war caught a flea and was about to kill it when he remembered Burns wrote a poem to the field mouse.

He stayed his wrath, and holding it between his finger and thumb, said, "I canna promote ye; I canna decorate ye, but I can reinstate ye"—which he did.

And so I could go on through many other virtues. Space forbids. We are a great race. We invented the kilt, the bagpipes, golf, haggis, porridge, Annie Laurie and Harry Lauder, the Banks of Loch Lomond and England, and until the crack of doom will draw our dividend.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

WHEN FRANCES WANTED ANYTHING

WHEN Frances wanted anything that Daddy wouldn't get,
She seldom begged and never cried or went alone to fret;
But quietly would say, "I'll have to ask a fairy friend
If he won't bring me what I want—he's sure to come or send."
And sure enough she'd often find next morning by her bed
Just what she wanted, neatly wrapped and tied with cords of red.
And then she'd dance and cry, "I knew some little gnome would hear
And bring my gift—a child the fairies love they're always near."
And since I think what Frances says is very likely true,
Each little boy and girl should try her plan—now why don't you?
But when you ask the fairies you should see that Dad is near,
So he, as well as any friendly gnome, your wish may hear.

THE PUFFER

IN the Atlantic Ocean, that big blue, open space on your school globe, lives a very curious fish called the Puffer, because it can blow itself up. He is rather a small fellow to have his home in such a big place as an ocean, as he never grows more than six or eight inches long, just a convenient size for other fish to eat.

But nature was very good to him, and stuck a whole lot of sharp spikes all over his body, something like the stickers on a chestnut burr. So hungry fish would find him mighty hard to swallow, even if they could get him in their mouths. And another thing that makes life safer for him is the strange power he has of sucking in air, until he gets almost as round and tight as one of those little red balloons that are sold on the streets when the circus comes to town. When he gets well blown up the spines stand straight out, and the fish that tries to swallow him certainly would have a time of it. Now, of course, when he turns himself into a balloon, he is too light to stay down under the water, so he pops up to the surface and bobs about like a cork; driven by the waves without any power of guiding himself.

When a big fish swims up and tries to gobble him down, its nose bumps against the ball and knocks it away on top of another wave. If you have ever played the game where you try to bite an apple floating around in a tub of water, you will realise what the big fish is up against. Very few fish can open their jaws wide enough to take him in; so about all they can do is just punch him with their noses, which only serves to send him bounching along like a football when it is kicked. It must be very puzzling to the fish that tries to bite it, and can't, when he is right there waiting to be bitten.

So the big fish play ball with him, until they get disgusted and give it up, and go off somewhere else, and look for a dinner that is note quite so round, and light and sticky.

When they have quit pushing him about with their noses, and he is left alone, he lets the air out, and he at once shrivels up to his natural size and shape, and becomes a very ordinary appearing little fish, and goes on about his business as if nothing had happened. But sometimes a very sad thing happens, for if he should be near the shore when he blows himself up, the waves may roll him far up on the beach, and the first thing he knows he is high and dry on the sand. Then the wind steps in and takes charge of things, and blows him here and there until he dies, and he becomes exactly like an inflated bladder.

And as the dry skin is very thin, and you can see through it just as you could through glass, the natives of some countries put a candle inside and use the poor little Puffer fish for a lantern. It is said that when the fish lets the air escape, so that it can return to its normal shape, it makes a hissing sound, just as it does from a punctured tire. The puffer is usually found in tropic and semitropic waters, and it is not unusual in the Gulf stream.

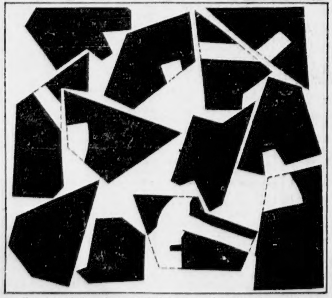
My 1 is an animal of the rabbit family. My 2 is a walking stick. My 3 is location. My 4 is soapstone. My 5 is continued pain. My 6 is a vegetable. My 7 is a story. My Zigzag Diagonal is connected with the youth of Washington.

A WASHINGTON PUZZLE



Cut out all the pieces, and then paste them together again on a stiff piece of cardboard, and see if you can form a perfect square with a white object on the square, which is emblematic of Washington's Birthday. What is it?

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

CICILY HOLLINSWORTH was dressing for a ball, her first ball, for she was twelve years old and considered quite a grown-up young lady. But Cicily was far from pleased.

"Ah me!" she exclaimed. "And to think that I shall not be allowed to take Tabitha with me."

"Fi! Fi!" cried her nurse Rogers. "Make sure to remmber to courtesy and to walk with the polite mincing gait of a lady of fashion and to give the hand a trifle of a flourish when presenting it to a gentleman—especially if young Mr. Washington be present. There is a young gentleman of parts! Ah me! 'T is wondrous to behold his manners and hear his pat replies."

"Mr. Washington!" laughed Cicily. "Why, he is only a boy! Parts, indeed! Tabby, you would laugh till you split to see Georgie at a party. He is so tall and shy."

Little Tabby gave a deep sigh of envy. Tabby was everything her friend Cicily was not. To begin with, Tabby's father was a poor but cheerful gardener, while Cicily's father was rich and gloomy. Tabby was lively and quick, Cicily was quiet and took her time about everything. Tabby was slender and dark, Cicily was fair and stout.

Cries of "Murder!" came from Cicily when her nurse put on her triple-steel stays and began pulling them in, in order to give her young mistress a waist of eighteen-inches.

"This will be the death of me!" cried the poor child.

Tabby could not help laughing.

"I would gladly stand worse than that," she said, "to be going to a ball, and with such a fine red velvet dress trimmed with galloons and garlands, and such a gorgeous feather-head-dress! Besides methinks Mr. Washington is the handsomest youth I ever clapped eye on!"

"Oh, Tabby, if you could only go in my place and wear my stays," panted Cicily. "I would much rather sit at home and play with my dolls than go to a foolish party wearing such tight clothes."

Of course, this was impossible. Tabby could not take her friend's place. It was a great pity that Cicily had to be born just when she was instead of a couple of hundred years later when steel stays would be a curiosity.

"I think I can perchance get Tabby in to see the ball," said Rogers, tying on one of Cicily's numerous petticoats. "There are to be some young girls to bear trays of flowers and candies through the crowds of guests, and since one of these wenches is sick, Tabitha might go in her place."

Tabby was thrilled at the idea. She began dancing about until sternly reminded of her P's and Qs.

Oh, what a party it was, and what a splendid time Tabby had looking at everything with her bright dark eyes, and what a wretched time Cicily had trying to dance in her tight triple-steel stays. Tabby gave her friend many an encouraging nod and smile, but Cicily grew quieter and quieter and gloomier and gloomier, and then she disappeared.

What had become of her? Tabby's little slender feet bore her nimbly through the gay crowds of people, until she ran into a very handsome tall boy, who was wandering anxiously around not looking where he was going.

"Oh, Master Washington," said Tabby. "Have you seen Miss Hollinsworth?"

"I am looking for her," replied the boy. "She promised to come right back, but she has not returned."

"Now, what has Cissy done!" thought Tabby. "Please you, sir, do not let it be known that she has disappeared," she said aloud. "Let us find her."

They went out into the great hall, and while the young boy looked outside Tabby ran upstairs and began to search.

As she went into one of the big bedrooms, she heard a scuffle and there on the floor lay one of the scarlet slippers Cicily had complained of as being too tight. Tabby looked under the bed and there found her friend wrapped in a blanket, a bundle of clothes hugged to her breast.

"I couldn't stand it," Cicily said. "I had to be comfortable."

Tabby laughed and laughed and told Cicily about George looking for his partner.

"Well, go down and tell him I nearly fainted, for it is the truth," said the stout girl. "Leave me that tray of comfits, prethee."

Tabby set down her tray of candies and ran down to tell Mr. Washington that Cicily was all right. She found him prowling around in the hall which was dimly lighted by candles. The music from the ballroom drifted to her and she could not help dancing a little as she came down the hall. How the boy's eyes twinkled, and how gallantly he bowed and swung her around and in a moment they went skipping about in a little dance of their own.

"It is hardly right," laughed Tabby, "and my father only a gardener, though a wittier man never lived."

"Hush," whispered the boy, an earnest look on his face. "I do not believe that some are born above others. A good gardner is better than a bad king."

Tabitha often remembered that little adventure later. She felt so awed and almost frightened by the tall boy.

"When you are a man," she said, "you will do something wondrous. Oh, I know it! You are like no other boy."

"Oh, yes, I am," he laughed. "But thank you for the dance which I enjoyed very much."

Up scampered Tabby to find her friend, but as she came near the room, she heard a stern voice speaking, and she tiptoed quietly along, with a fluttering heart.

Alas! Cicily had been caught in her hiding-place, by her aunt, Mrs. Bascomb Bennington Livermore.

"In my day," the good lady was saying, "girls of your age were kept strictly. Dear knows what this world is coming to! Children getting wild and disobedient, and answering back to their elders, refusing to take advantage of privileges, scorning advice. Bread and water for a week would be my treatment for you."

Tabby came inside anxious to help her friend, but she need not have worried. Cicily was lying on the bed, her eyes tight shut, and Tabitha heard a soft snore-ish sound float from her parted lips. Mrs. Livermore pointed at her niece.

"Look at that spectacle and tell me what the world is coming to!" she demanded, staring at Tabby.

"Why, Madam," said Tabby, "perhaps the world is coming to looser and better clothes."

"Impudent minx!" cried Mrs. Livermore. "Call this child's nurse and have her taken home at once."

"Poor Cicily isn't very strong," ventured Tabby gently. "She nearly fainted."

"Every girl of quality should expect to have fainting fits," snapped Mrs. Livermore haughtily. "I used to faint five or six times every day."

"Alas!" thought Tabby. "And I have never fainted even once. Still, perchance a good wench like me is better than a doleful lady of quality, as Master Washington would say."

And off went Tabby to find the indignant Rogers, who also wanted to know what the world was coming to when girls insisted on being comfortable instead of stylish. She, too, told of the old days when little girls always minded their Ps and Qs.

Home they went sadly, little dreaming that they were living right in the middle of History, but then, we don't dream it either and we are living in history too. And grown-ups still ask little girls what the world is coming to. So there you are!

"Oh, Mr. Washington," Said Tabby, "Have You Seen Miss Hollinsworth?"

The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING.
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N. H.

PICTURE FRAME

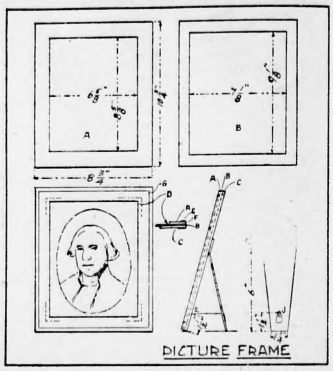
EVERY school room and the home of every patriotic American should have a framed picture of the "Father of his Country" in sight upon his birthday, and this sketch suggests how any "Handy Boy" may remedy any such deficiency.

We will make the frame to fit the 7" x 9" picture of Washington, which may be secured from any school supply house for a few cents. Cut three pieces of heavy paper board 8¾" x 10¾". In piece A make an opening 6⅝" x 8⅝", being sure that it is square, in the middle each way, and that the face is neither torn nor scratched. Piece B should be at least as thick as the piece of glass 7" x 9", which is to fit in the 7⅛" x 9⅛" opening to be cut in the board, or another piece should be added. Glue or paste pieces A and B together strongly with edges flush and the openings showing a ¼" rabbet on the back as at D; place a weight upon them to hold them straight until the glue has hardened. Clean the glass, place it in rabbet of B with the picture behind it, with one or more thicknesses of soft paper back of it to insure perfect contact with the glass when back C is in place.

Make a hole in the back C large enough to receive a narrow piece of tape as at E, pass the tape through and glue the end on the inside of C. Unless piece B is thick enough to insure that the picture will not slip out of place, touch the corners of the back of the picture with glue. Touch the back of piece B lightly with glue in spots, place picture and paper pads back of the glass, lay piece C in position and leave under pressure until the blue hardens.

Fold passe-partout or heavy adhesive paper tape around the edges as at F, being sure that it shows the same distance, say ¼" around the entire front of the frame as at G. Make back leg of heavy paper board, cut partly through at H to allow it to bend like a hinge; make a hole in the leg at J and glue the leg strongly in the middle of the back as indicated. Pass the tap through the hole J and glue it to allow the correct slant to the picture.

Shellac the frame and give it a coat of gray or black lacquer or opaque paint if a black and white picture is in the frame, but if a color print has been used, gold paint or colored lacquer will be better.



SOME OF WASHINGTON'S RULES FOR CONDUCT

IN the presence of others sing not to yourself, nor drum with your fingers or feet.

Turn not your back to others, especially in speaking.

Jog not the table on which another reads or writes.

Lean not on any one.

Read no letters, books or papers in company. But when there is a necessity for doing it, you must ask leave.

Look not nigh when another is writing a letter.

Let your countenance be pleasant, but in serious matters somewhat grave.

Strive not with your superiors in argument, but always submit your judgment to others with modesty.

Think before you speak.

When another speaks be attentive yourself and disturb not the audience.

Undertake not what you cannot perform, but be careful to keep your promise.

Make no show of delight in your food.

Feed not with greediness.

Lean not on the table.

Neither find fault with what you eat.

Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire, called conscience.

THE JUNIOR COOK

A RED SALAD FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

A cook is often puzzled when carrying out a red, white and blue color scheme so this salad that is red will be welcome.

Wash, crisp and cut into strips enough lettuce to serve your party.

Arrange in neat nests on individual plates or on a large serving dish.

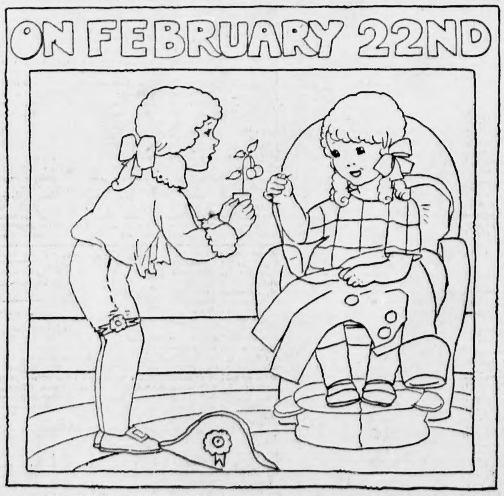
Make a dressing by mixing together

½ cupful mayonnaise.
¼ cupful chilli sauce.
1 hard boiled egg (cut fine).
1 pimento cut fine.

Put a large spoonful over each portion of lettuce.

Serve with cheese crackers.

It is best to bring out the blue in the table decorations and depend on the food being red and white. Occasionally one can get pretty blue candies, but in the main blue tinted food appears too obviously colored and is not in good taste.



(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

HERE is a RED cherry with GREEN leaves and a BROWN pot!" said little Mr. Teddy to YELLOW-haired Susie May. Teddy was dressed up like George Washington because he was going to be Washington in the school entertainment. Susie May was helping Teddy and sewed on one of the big YELLOW buttons of Teddy's BLUE coat. The coat had light YELLOW collar and cuffs that were the same color as Teddy's trousers. His blouse was White and so were his stockings. Teddy wore BLACK shoes with large YELLOW buckles on them and his hair was tied with a BLACK ribbon. Of course, he wore a wig.

Susie May wore a RED and White checked frock and her shoes were BROWN, so was her bow. Susie May sat in a big BLUE armchair with her feet on a YELLOW and RED footstool. The footstool had RED tabs to hold it by. Susie had a GREEN pillow behind her.

Teddy had a cocked hat. It was BLUE with a YELLOW button and a RED ribbon on the side. He had a similar button and ribbon at his knee, too.

Both children had PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks and RED lips. The wall was TAN (use BROWN and YELLOW mixed) and the wainscoting and floor was YELLOW, but the round rug was PINK and BLUE with a pretty YELLOW center.

Paint the border of this picture RED and the lettering BLUE.

The Postman

I SEE him coming down the street
Each morning, and I run to meet
The friendly post man with his bag of mail.
Sometimes he says there's one for me,
Sometimes he gives me two or three
To carry to my mother without fail.

If I'm indoors, I hurry out
Each time I hear his jolly shout
Of: "Mail!" I'm always anxious then to see
If from that bag so brimming full
Our kindly letter-man will pull
An invitation to a party out for me.
